supported the resolution, claiming that the experience and judgment of the bishops would strengthen the delliberations of the lower house.

Rev. Principal Lloyd, of Saskatoon, thought that the influence of the matured minds of the bishops ought not be lost to the lower house. He contended also that if any comparison was to be made, the lower house was more representative of the church than the upper house. If discussions take place in the upper house not fitting the knowledge of the lower house, it is not a sound practice. If the laify and lower clergy can meet together, why not the higher clergy along with the other orders? As representatives of the church, the members of the lower house were entitled to hear the discussions of the bishops.

Archdeacon Gilmour thought that the presence of the bishops in the lower house would be helpful and inspiring rather than tending towards restraining the utterances of the lower clergy.

Chancellor Davidson strongly opposed the resolution.

Resolution Lost.

Here a resolution to adjourn the discussion and defer the taking of a vote was overwhelmingly defeated. It was pointed out by the prolocutor that a two-thirds vote of each order would be necessary to carry the resolution. On a vote being taken the resolution was lost by the clerical vote, which stood 35 in favor and 33 opposed to the resolution. The lay vote was 31 in support of the resolution, and only 8 against it.

The text of the resolution read:

He Turns Against Reciprocity

Mr. F. N. Gisborne, of Ottawa, was re-elected registrar of the lower house. Chancellor Worrell, of Toronto, asked leave to withdraw a resolution to have both upper and lower houses meet together in one body.

Dr. Hoyle asked that the resolution be laid over, rather than withdrawn, Mr. Charles Jenkins, of Petrolea, favored the withdrawal of the resolution, declaring that he believed in the principle of a second chamber, which added a conserving influence that offered a safeguard against popular surges of emotion or changes of feeling to which a popular assembly like the lower house is liable.

Mr. W. B. Carroll favored laying over the resolution.

Able Men Together.

Judge Flizgerald, of Charlottetown, expressed the opinion that it would be better for the church as a whole, and for all orders to have the bishops and for all orders meet together. The trend of modern thought was to bring able men together, and not to segregate them. It would be a retrogression to take the resolution off their books. Chancellor Conybeare also objected to withdrawing the resolution. It would probably take some time to make the bishops see the matter in a favorable light, and it would be well to keep the matter before the synod for consideration.

Chancellor Davidson, of Montreal, strongly opposed the resolution, and for an externed and been the subject of a make the bishops and for consideration.

Chancellor Davidson, of Montreal, the church as a discussion came up. I looked upon the resolution came up. I lo opinion, in order to facilitate the business of both houses, the lower house lought to urge upon the bishops the adoption of the resolution.

Time Uselessiy Consumed.

Dr. J. W. Hoyles seconded the motion for adoption of the resolution. He was uselessly consumed in sending business first to one house and then the other. He was loath to believe that in the presence of the bishops in the lower house, the clergy in the lower house would be restrained in their discussions, He believed the clergy were men of independence.

Mr. W. B. Carroll spoke in favor of the resolution.

Mr. E. G. Henderson opposed it, holding that the separate meeting of the upper house served as a check on unwise and hurried legislation.

Dr. Scott contended that it was desirable for the bishops to view matters from a different standpoint, as they do in the separate chamber.

Dr. Paterson-Smyth favored the resolution and pointed out advantages derived from the single chamber system in the church in Ireland.

Mr. Thomas Mortimore, of Toronto, supported the resolution, claiming that the experience and judgment to the course of his speech Mr. Haultain said he had been mistaken in his first estimate of the value of the American market to the Canadian farmers, from a Stress essence learned that so far the worth aid the course of the walke of the country and the worth aid the prespored type and the worth aid to the country and the worth aid the prespored type and the w
