SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 7, 1884.

Nomination by a party is not equivalen to election on polling day, but under the by the republican convention will almos certainly be president of the United States if he lives until March 4 next. No on voters than the democrats, the whole country over, but there is always a possi bility that the minority may win through breaks and divisions among the majority sprit de corps is pretty strong with our why republicans all over the country should not vote "solid" for the nominee of the

The event confirms our anticipation of yesterday that the "dark horse" nonsense would prove to be about played out. Sensible Americans have been feeling their country disgraced by the wretched system and the White house made a prize to be won by weakness and mediocrity rather then by strength and ability. One consideration there is, which probably weighed a good deal with the convention. In 1876 Blaine had 285 on the first ballot, the next to him being Morton, with 125. He ought to have been chosen then, and doubtless would have been but for the "dark horse" dodge. On the first ballot in 1880 Grant had 304 and Blaine 284, the general leadwell understood at the time that the third We fancy that this time Blaine must have been greatly helped by a pre vailing feeling in the convention, that he had been cheated out of the nomination nce before, if not twice, and that to select Supposing Blaine to be elected, what would the event mean, and what would be his policy? In the first place, his nomina tion over Arthur is a distinct triumph for the out and out protectionists in the party, and a defeat for those within its ranks who were inclined to coquette with free trade. The platform adopted is protectionis enough to suit even "Pig-iron Kelly," who is reputed to be the most uncompr protectionist in the whole United States The Globe talks of the platform as being the production of a party whose mandate is exhausted; but our contemporary will probably get new light on the subject ere another twelve months have passed. Blaine's nomination now means that in all proba bility the backward step taken by congress in 1883 will be re-traced, and that the pro tective policy will be more firmly established than before.

If Blaine ever reaches the White house he will without doubt inaugurate a vigorhe will without doubt inaugurate a vigorous foreign policy. By some he is looked upon as an American jingo, but, as there is a good deal of the cool, calculating Yankee about him, he is not likely to be over-impulsive, or to do anything very rash or risky. In the fishery dispute Great [The World will attend—Ed.] or risky. In the fishery dispute Great Britain and Canada will certainly find him a far harder case to settle with than either Arthur, or Garfield, or Grant would have been; that much we Britishers may put in our pipes and smoke it. He is a man of Mrs. Frankish, I would suggest to the ultra-American ideas, and probably on in deciding not to give contracts to men who were supporters of the separate schools, even though their bids were the lowest, is wrong in principle, and wrong in policy. It will only widen wounds that ought never to have been made, and proest bidder, provided he will do the work as is called for, and a man's religion-or his opinions or the institutions which he supports-ought never to come into consider ation in the settlement of these matters The board of school trustees have set a bad example, and we would like to see them retract their resolution at their first opportunity. But on the other hand, a man's religion or the institutions which he supports ought or the institutions which he supports ought not to be a reason for his preference. If the board of public school trustees have shown a certain amount of antipathy shown a certain amount of antipathy towards Roman eatholics or those who support separate schools, the Ontario government, on the other hand, have shown discreditable truckling to Roman catholic influence. It is a fact that there are men who have been given positions in the service of the province simply because they service of the province simply because they are catholics, and who are in ne way competent to fill the offices which have been assigned to them. A notable instance is furnished by the provincial bureau of statistics, where a Roman catholic has long held the position of assistant secretary who is not competent for the place, and whom the m alone to be the criterion by which men are judged. But it seems the Ontario governent are governed more by a man's re

The Globe's London correspondent hinks he sees signs that the two great Canadian railway companies are coming to an understanding. He says that some attention has been given in London to a paragraph appearing in the Canadian Gaette, which is thought by some to indicate desire on both sides for the bringing about of a more amicable feeling between them. The Gazette, which speaks for Canadian Pacific railway interests, remarks that the pooling of traffic and interchang of directors, or a practical amalgamatic is quite out of the question. And the two npanies must remain perfectly distinct and, in a sense, must be rivals. and, in a sense, must be rivals.

"But," it goes on to point out, "there need be no cutting of rates, no senseless waste of revenue, and we are glad to feel able to express our confidence that that calamity is not in prospect. The Canadian Pacific have begun well in regard to their Lake Superior boat service. They carry Grand Trunk passengers to the Northwest undistinguished from those who book right through by the Canadian Pacific, and the attitude of the executive chiefs of the two companies towards the Ontario and Quebec line is favorable to the adoption of remunerative and agreed rates. Now that the fight is over a little restraint and patience will make the best of the inevitable, and that is all that can be dome. It ought to be as possible for these two companies to live neighborly as it is for the Midland and the Great Northern with us.

"It is, of course," says the corresponder himself, "quite possible to attach too much ignificance to these remarks; but there can be little doubt that, as far as the Enghsh public is concerned, any approach to be possible in such a manner as not to affect injuriously Canadian interests."

We may at once admit that a reasonable modus vivendi established between the two omnanies would be better for the interests of Canada than the keeping up of a gigantic and costly railway war. What the country would like to see would be such a ing by 20 at the start. But it was pretty system of competition and co-operation to gether as would be to the benefit of both term proposal would not "take" with the companies, and of the public too. Now, country, and, allowing Grant's election to must such a combination of apparent opbe impossible, the first place fairly belonged posites remain an ideal only, or could it possibly be made a reality? Here is something for the Canadian public to think

> The Globe is weak these days. It is course, always know that it is the old style grit, but on any new doctrine, or on any thing of vital import to the people, it is afraid to state where it stands. It hedged on the independence question, and it hedges on it every day. Just exactly where it stands in regard to Sir Richard Cartwright's declaration we do not know; its readers do not know; and we are not review yesterday of Mr. Huntington's novel is another case in point. That novel has but one object in view, and it is this: to protest against the intolerance which is exhibited toward liberalism in the province of Quebec. But the Globe says not a word on this point, but gives the novel a general and guarded notice.

Public contracts of any kind are desirous of having a place to ride, I ought to be given in every case to the low- have advised the abandonment of that portion granted by the council, from Queen street to the Guns, upon condition that we are allowed a margin in the park running parallel with the road; the entrance to this riding path to commence a short distance east of the guns, so as not to interfere with pedestrians, and to continue round to where the pedestal for the late Hon. Geo. Brown's monument is erected. The fence (with the consent of the university authorities) can be moved in about 25 feet, thus single tree; moreover, the work will be performed entirely at the expense of those desiring the path. I think our request is a reasonable one, for, as Ald. Tunner says, the park is for the whole of the citizens. Toronto is destined to be a large city, and it is in the interests of the entire commun. it is in the interests of the entire community that it should be made as attractive as possible in order to induce wealthy people

While I am on the subject may I ask why our city council do not sup-ply our citizens with the amusement and recreation that a good band would afford. We have two first-class bands in the city, kept up at great expense by the officers of the respective regiments. Why should arrangements not be made to have them-play alternately each week, say from A arrangements not be made to have them play alternately each week, say from 4 o'clock to 6? I am sure that the citizens would consent to be taxed for the small expense required to accomplish this.

No Separate Schoolers Need Apply. To the Editor of The World. SIR: In The World of June 6 the report of the meeting of the trustees of the public schools shows that my tender was the lowest for painting and glazing, and I was awarded the work; but it can plainly be seen that self-interest and bigotry were resorted to to deprive me of it—the apparent true cause my being a catholic. Those parties who opposed my getting the work nust feel very little interest in the welfare of the city and disbursement of the public of the city and disbursement of the public money; $40 has been recklessly thrown away. The public can judge this unprecedented, unjust and shameful transaction. However, I would not make much profit by the affair. The lucky contractor higher than me may rejoice and be liberal, having $40 of the public money for nothing. Parties of every denomination say it is a scandalous and shameful affair.

This spring I tendered for painting the Roman catholic church at Hamilton. My tender was a few dollars higher than the other party. The trustees in this case acted up to what was right and honorable. This contractor was not a catholic. The public ought to insist on giving no more than my contract. If the favored contractor would object, perhaps the proposer and seconder would pay up the $40 difference; but I have my doubts about that result, as it would tickle their pockets personally, not the public. I beg to tender my thanks to those who supported me. It would seem those gentlemen by their heavest independent voter regardless of would seem those gentlemen by their honest, independent vote, regardless of bigotry, are mindful of the welfare and interest of the city and disbursing of public moneys.

Catarrh-A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. vertised cures never record a cure at all.
Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination this accomplished, the catarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh.

The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable tor a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs. A. H. DIXON & SON, 305 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stam
