'Ollie" Morphy's Sickness - National Baseball League Games Yesterday-The English Yacht Genesta.

The Argonaut four, comprising J. W. Hogg, O. Morphy, A. G. Thompson and R. McKay, arrived in town on Saturday evening. They are all looking well, with the exception of "Ollie" Morphy, who is considerably "pulled down." In conversation with a World reporter last night Mr. Thompson stated that the four had been received in England with great kindness, and had all thoroughly enjoyed

On arriving in the old country they went direct te Hepley, though had they been well advised, they would have chosen a spet further up the river, because, as they afterwards learned, Henley is one of the worst places on the Thames to produce lassitude and depression. The weather was fine throughout, and beyond a slight heaviness the olimate had no perceptible effect on them.

was fine throughout, and beyond a sight heaviness the olimate had no perceptible effect on them.

Three orews started in the race they rowed—themselves, the Trinity hall and the third Trinity orews. The third Trinity ran foul of some posts on the north side of the river. The Argonauts were three lengths shead when Morphy suddenly became dazed and was seized with suffocation. As it was utterly impossible to proceed, the crew had to give in. The defeat was the fault of nebody. The men were all in good form with the exception of Morphy, with whem it is hard to determine what was really the matter. He may have been a little "stale," the olimate may have affected him more materially than he thought, or the work may have been too hard for him. However he was pulling in good shape till his collapse.

In regard to the charges made against the Argonaut stroke as being "ugly" etc., Mr. Thompson says that the English journals are evidently under a misapprehension. The Argonauts, and in fact all Canadian caramen, use the slide more than the Britishers, and consequently do a great deal of work with their legs which their trans-Atlantic ceusins do with the longer awaen of their bodies. Besides the

The cutter yacht Genesta, which is to empete against the picked yacht of rice for the America cup, is now lying in New York harbor. The Genesta carries sixteen men in the forecastle. They are all sturdy Englishmen, and are a good looking set, although they were not dressed in uniform. If the Genesta wins, it will be a victory for British seamen; if the Priscills—the United States sloop yacht especially built—wins, it will be a victory for Swedes. The Genesta was built at Patrick-on-the-Clyde by the Henderson Brothers (builders and part proprietors of the Cunard line) in May, 1884, and was designed by Beam Webb for her present owner, Sir Richard Sutton, of the Royal Yacht squadron. She has a steel frame, with elm and teak planking. Her Thames measurement is 81 tons, she is 80 feet long over all, 81 feet on the water line, 15 feet extreme beam, 11 feet 6 inches depth of hold, and draws 13 feet 6 inches of water. She sailed her first race on May 31, 1884, with a whole-sail breeze from South End to Harwich. first race on May 31, 1884, with a whole-sail breeze from South End to Harwich, and came in winner. On two succeeding days she raced over the same course. On cays she raced over the same course. On the third day there was a fresh easterly wind and a nasty jump of a sea, and in the thrash to windward the Vanduara pitched the bowsprit out of her. The Marjorie, too, made dirty weather of it, while to the admiration of all the Genesta, notwithstanding her taut rig, went along quite easily. When the weather mark was reached, and sheets were eased, the new cutter had a commanding lead of the lot, and it was the general expression of those who saw this thrash that this was the boat for the America cup. In the first seven races she entered she captured prizes. During the season of 1884 she started in thirty-four contests, and came out winner in seven and second in ten of these events. To beat the cutter that has made this record the American sloops will have to hump themselves.

London, July 20.—The Racing Calendar announces the prospective debut of the Prince of Wales on the turf under his own name. Hitherto he has owned horses own name. Hitherto he has owned horses under the names of members of the Jockey club. His colors are royal purple bodied jacket, gold braid, scarlet sleeves, gold fringe and black velvet cap. Kingselere has been selected as his training quarters. The prince recently bought a filly, by Hermit, out of Patchwork. Her sister is named Quilt. The prince has named his new purchase Counterpane. She is entered for the Epsom meeting in 1887. In the current number of the "Racing Calendar" the prince's name heads the entry to several other races in the program of future events.

BUFFALO, July 20, -All the league clubs played to-day. At Providence, owing to the superb pitching of young Wood, the Buffalos defeated the champion batsmen The latter nine were completely puzzled by Wood's delivery, but it was a little wild and gave several batters bases on balls. He more than redeemed himself, however, by good judgment, sharp work at critical points and effective curves. The Buffalos batted Radbourne hard and earned the

SUDDEN DEATH FROM EXCITEMENT

Wm. E. Tucker, Gate-keeper at Exhibition Park, Dreps Bead.

At 5 o'clock last evening fire was discovered in one of the booths in the amphitheatre at Exhibition park. It is thought some of the boys who play around the ground started the fire. Very little damage was done, but the brigade was called out. William H. Tucker, the gate-keeper at the park and assistant to Mr. Chamberlain, became terribly excited when the different sections of the brigade began to arrive. He was suddenly seen to sink to the ground, and before help could reach him he was dead. Dr. J. M. Riddall of Parkdale, tho deceased's physician, was him he was dead. Dr. J. M. Riddall of Parkdale, the deceased's physician, was sent for, but of course he could do nothing. Mr. Tucker, who was a corpulent man, suffered for some time from fatty degenera-tion of the heart, and the excitement of the fire no doubt superinduced his sudden demise. Deceased was a native of Deven-shire, Eng., and has been a resident of Toronto for about twelve years. He leaves a wife and a grown son and daughter. Mr. a wife and a grown son and daughter.
