Pausanias the Spartan:

AN UNFINISHED ROMANCE.

By the Author of "My Novel," "The Parisians," &c.

EDITED, WITH A PREFACE, BY HIS SON, ROBERT LORD LYTTON

"Lord Lytton has done well in publishing, after much hesitation, his father's latest work. Though the artist's hand was arrested before his canvas was half filled, yet he has left us a noble fragment which interprets successfully a difficult chapter of Grecian history."—The Toronto Nation.

"There are many scholarly hints throughout the book, and several fine translations. We particularly liked the rendering of our favorite, the hymn of Calistratus."—Canadian Illustrated News.

"Is of real intrinsic interest, and we have many reasons to congratulate the present Lord Lytton and his co-editor, Dr. B. H. Kennedy, upon their decision to place the romance, all incomplete though it be, in the hands of the public."—Observer.

"Shows the master hand."—Standard.

"A literary curiosity, showing how wide was the field which Lord Lytton cultivated, and in what manner he worked."—Scotsman.

"For powerful portraiture of character and vivid reproduction of old-world scenes, this posthumous story far surpasses any of Lord Lytton's better-known historic novels."—North British Daily Mail.
