

NEWS OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO WOMEN

ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW TO PLEASE

Fashions From France Contain Distinctly Solemn Note.

MILITARY STYLES NOW

Close Little Toques of Fur, Velvet or Soft Felt.

Fashions still continue to come from Paris, where the women are making a distinct success of their strenuous efforts to keep thousands of Dame Fashion's faithful workers engaged. The costumers and couturiers are achieving delightful new triumphs and their complete success lies as usual in the fact that there is something new to please the wearer. There is a distinct note of solemnity in the attire of the fashionable French woman now, as she steps forth in her modish dark suit in navy, hunter's green or black. The type has been admirably adapted to the Toronto devotee, who appears faultlessly garbed in her long belted coat with fur collar rolling high at the back, her gored flare skirt and neat cloth top boots, a small close-fitting hat with a trimming of ostrich tips and a well adjusted veil worn to suit the individual taste of madame alone.

Military chapeaux have been ushered in with renewed enthusiasm. There are close little toques of fur, velvet or soft felt—resembling cloth in texture—trimmed with cockades of pleated grosgrain ribbon or choux of plumage. The tricorne is also very popular, appearing in all sizes, and is chiefly worn with coats of the Louis XVI. type. Their adornment is as varied as fashion's whim—still little ornaments vying with soft plume trimmings. In the large picture hats there is a slight resemblance in some models to the mushroom of several years ago. In the spring, rattle will again appear, while some of the popular shades-to-be include sand, old gold, lavender, emerald green, black and white battleship gray and Belgian blue.

WOMEN ARE TOLD TO EXERCISE CARE

Too Strict Economy in Dress Might Cripple Certain Industries.

The spacious drawing-rooms at "Westlawn," the house of Mrs. R. W. Pittie, High Park boulevard, were taxed on Tuesday afternoon to accommodate the large attendance of the Western Hospital Sewing Club. A most interesting account of the recent Christmas festivities held at the hospital was given by Miss Dickson, superintendent, she also being the bearer of the grateful thanks of the hospital staff to the club for its generous gifts to the patients, special mention being made of a well-laden Christmas tree.

Dr. Helen MacMurchy's talk on "Garments in Peace and in War" was admirably adapted to the present time and many practical points were elicited from the khaki and accoutrements worn by the soldiers. The sympathy of Canadian women was evidenced by the vast amount of knitting and sewing being done. The appropriateness of the garments made by this club for needy patients at the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives was referred to gratefully.

A revision of expenditure was needed, the doctor thought, rather than a too strict economy, for on the sale of material and on the workmanship done by the club, a large part of the success of our commerce.

She encouraged the club in the excellent work they were doing and complimented them on the splendid organization now working in the High Park district, and rendering practical assistance to the needy patients in the Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Miss M. Williamson, Hamburg Conservatory, delighted the club with piano selections, adding greatly to the pleasure of the afternoon.

After hearty thanks were given to Dr. MacMurchy and all assisting, a social half hour was spent enjoying Mrs. Pittie's hospitality.

The club holds its next meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Grimes, 64 High Park boulevard, on the first Tuesday in February, when Miss Edith Blin-don, deaconess in Little Trinity parish, will tell of her work down there.

WIFE LOST ACTION AGAINST HUSBAND

Claimed She Had Right to Ownership of Toronto Property.

OSGOODE HALL DECISION

Mr. Justice Middleton Decides Dispute Regarding Dedication of Street.

Mr. Justice Middleton gave judgment yesterday at Osgoode Hall in the action of Jimma Kaakee against her husband, Robert Kaakee, to establish her right to part ownership of Toronto property. She claimed that the property was conveyed to the defendant by Andrew Wilson on a deed dated April 14, and that the purchase price of $3100 was paid by mortgages of $1500 and $1600, the balance of $500 being paid in cash.

She stated that it was agreed that the property should be held by both as part owners, and that $250 of the money paid in cash was given out of her own private means. She was unable to read or write and depended on the defendant for advice. Some time later her husband had the property conveyed to himself without her knowledge, and since the conveyance the second mortgage of $1500 had been paid in full. Mrs. Kaakee also claimed that she had contributed to the payment of taxes and interest.

The husband had lived with her in the house situated on the property for some time after the purchase was made, but for the last five years they had been living apart. He now threatened to evict the family and sell the property.

No Deception Held.

His lordship held that deception had not been practiced by the husband when the property was secured, as she wife alleged, and that she had misrepresented facts in her evidence with regard to the payment of taxes and interest from her own private purse.

In some cases she had produced receipts as if they had been paid by her, but the evidence showed that the payments were made by the husband, who explained to his lordship's satisfaction how the receipts came to be in his wife's name. He further found that Mrs. Kaakee was not possessed of means, and that she had failed to show substantial earnings by either sewing or laundry work, from which she claimed she had accumulated her money.

On no grounds could she succeed in her action, and her own testimony could not be accepted. His lordship gave judgment for the defendant, and stated that Mrs. Kaakee had no right to exclude her husband from taking possession of the property.

Street Was Dedicated.

Mr. Justice Middleton also gave judgment in the case of Reame vs. the Town of Windsor, where a property at Sandwich on Oct. 10 and at Toronto on Nov. 12 of last year.

The question involved was whether a certain roadway, named Medbury street, extending to Crawford House, had been dedicated as a public highway. The plaintiff was the owner of some property south of Medbury street, and was given at the trial in connection with the survey of the property and the location of the roads, but his lordship did not think that of much moment.

Originally the entire block was owned by one Medbury and the proprietor of the Crawford House property. Oullette street did not extend north of Sandwich street, and some time prior to the opening of Oullette street this block was crossed by Burgoyne road, or Water street. The location of this road had not been clearly shown, but there was a defined road north of the American Hotel. By a bylaw Oullette street was extended north from Sandwich street. Medbury street was given to a new ferry, and unless Medbury is regarded as being a public road the dedication of the land described would be vital.

Negotiations took place between Mrs. Medbury and the municipality to close the alleyway north of the hotel and resulted in a bylaw, which recited that Mrs. Medbury wanted the alley closed, and offered to dedicate a strip of land, which for convenience his lordship designated Medbury street. The conveyance was prepared, but Mrs. Medbury never executed the conveyance of the old alleyway nor did the municipality execute the conveyance, but Mrs. Medbury took possession and erected a building.

Since 1881 Medbury street has been used by the public without interference, and before the bylaw was passed a sign had been placed on one of the buildings, stating "This is a private way." It was not removed. His lord-

"Made-in-Canada" applies to Canadian Laundries

Who hasn't read the Made-in-Canada announcements and been impressed by their remarkably patriotic arguments? And yet thousands of Toronto men and women insist on Made-in-Canada in their purchases, with the object of helping Canadian industries, and then send their laundry parcels to the Chinaman—the least valuable to Canada of all the alien classes; whose work might almost as well be done in China for all the good that results from it for Toronto.

Canadian service is just as important as Canadian goods, and more work follows more business. Extend your patriotism to your laundry, and manifold advantages will result for your city, the unemployed, and for YOU.

Don't think it over—there is enough work for more than four thousand white men and women going to Chinamen in Toronto each week. Act NOW!

Phone any Canadian Laundry, send a Postal, or call, and a clean wagon and driver will stop at your door.
