

"It isn't at all nice," cried Aunt Mary. "And I won't move one step until you promise that none of you will ever do such a disgusting thing."

The next day Gerald booked six passages. The deed was practically done.