

climb is not so much as that. The highest measurement it ever got was by the reflecting circle of Sir Howard Douglas, which gave 844. Later and better authority makes it 730 feet. That is high enough to give you a magnificent view, and as the mountain side is precipitous you will be quite as tired as if you went up a thousand feet on any ordinary mountain. After you get up, look to the north and the grand old mountains of Cascapédia are before you; to the south is a smiling country rich in vegetation, while to the southward and eastward lie the Restigouche and the Baie des Chaleurs, with Dalhousie and the other flourishing places of the North. The scenery has been called superior to that of the Susquehanna. Whether it is or not can be best judged by those who have seen both places. Another fine view is to be had from the top of Morrissey's Peak—in fact, there are fine views everywhere, and no toll-gates on the roads to them.

Reference has already been made to the sailing and bathing. Both may be enjoyed to any desired extent. The fame of the Restigouche salmon and trout speaks as to the fishing at Campbellton and in its vicinity. It was a Restigouche salmon that tipped the scale at fifty-four pounds, and numbers have been caught which were of the respectable weight of forty-eight pounds each. Salmon fishing commences about the middle of May, and all the rivers abound with these great and glorious fish.

Fishing for the abnormally large trout already mentioned is had both in summer and winter. It is usual to commence fishing through the ice about the first of March. After the river is clear of ice, early in May, plenty of five and seven pound trout can be caught in the tide with bait. From the middle of May until July they will take either fly or bait, but for good fly-fishing take the month of July. Here are some of the favorite haunts: The Escuminac, 15 miles distant; Little Nouvelle, 22; Little Cascapédia, about 45 or 50, by steamer; Parker Lake, 3; Head of Tide, 5; and Mission Lake, 3 miles from Cross Point on the opposite side of the river. Guides are easily obtained and are reliable men. Parties going to Escuminac can find both accommodation and guides by going to Daniel Brown; and those at Nouvelle will do equally well to make the acquaintance of Thomas Clare. A great deal of information may be had from Mr. O. A. Barbarie, station master at Campbellton, an enthusiastic fisherman and one of the best amateur fly-tiers in the country.

Some of the best fishing to be had is at Cascapédia. It was here that an English M. P., Mr. Ellis, had unprecedented success in 1879, the party of three hooking several thousand pounds. Mr. Ellis spoke of the scenery at Cascapédia as the finest he had ever seen, and it is fine. President Arthur, before he was put on the limits by virtue of his exalted position, also made Cascapédia his favorite resort. Grand Cascapédia is a favorite resort of the Vice-Regal party, the Governor-General having a fishing lodge on that river.

Besides these places, the sportsman is near the Metapédia Valley, and has the Restigouche and all its many tributaries to afford him recreation.

SHOOTING.

A time-honored poem, the author of which is unknown, used to say:

"Oh, were you ever in Restigouche,
To see the Injun shoot-um goose,"
