

his. And he read his answer in them, for they were the tomb of love.

A minute later the heavy hall-door swung to behind him, closing the one and only chapter in his life that was written at once with the dust of hell and with the fire of heaven.

THE END.