Not So Black as Painted.

The directors of the East End Incline Company say that their affairs are not restrained as painted. They are now rearranging their finances to take up the mortgages, and expect to do so on satisfactory terms. The company has 40 acres of land on the Mountain brow, which will be improved for picnic parties, and, with the street railway connection, the directors have no doubt the company will become a paying concern.

Only three more opportunities remain for those who wish to see and hear De Koven and Smith's "The Highwayman," one of the real big treats of the season at popular prices. Following "The Highwayman" the new ragtime extravaganza, entitled "The Coontown 400," will occupy the Toronto. This attraction, as the title denotes, is composed exclusively of colored talent, the management having endeavored to select only the very best artists. That they have succeeded admirably is attested by the expressions of praise bestowed on the performance by the press of nearly every large city in the country. "The Coontown 400" has been pronounced the best singing and laughing show ever put together, and its engagement here should prove successful, both artistically and financially.
