E. D. C. Winners.

The Every Day Club team galloped off with a game of baseball from the Clippers last evening, 14 to 2. They played on the old shipyard. This evening the E. D. C.'s will play the Young Victorias on the same ground. There was some loose playing in last night's game, but also some very clever play.

A Challenge

The Centennial second team is anxious to meet the Allison second team in a game on the Barrack Green next Saturday and would appreciate an acceptance through the Times.

To Play on Saturday

A bunch of burly athletes from Tor-burn, known as the Canadiane baseball team will go to Fair Vale on Saturday and clash with the Fair Vale club in a nine inning encounter. The Canadiane, although they would hardly be recognized under this cognomen, have been playing some steady ball this year and hope to bring home a good sized victory with them. They will take with them the following artists, named in order of their appearance at the game: Gallagher, 1b.; Stewart, 2b.; Rathburn, 3b.; Finley, 4b.; Daley, 1b.; Sutherland, 1b.; McKel, r.f.; Gardner, c.; Carleton, p.

East St. John Events Up
By winning last night's game from Little River, the East St. John baseball team evened up matters, taking the second game in the series, 5 to 0. Sterling and Ross formed the battery for the winners, while Gurley and McHugh did the honors for the losers. The next game will be on Friday evening.

Fairville League.

The Athletics and Cubs held a seven inning session last evening and demonstrated a good brand. The Athletics won 6-3. The batteries were: For the Athletics, Cronin and Henderson; for the Cubs, Ed. Baker and Murphy. The feature of the game was excellent work of both batteries, there being no hard hitting off either pitchers. Rev. H. H. Boyer, formerly of the Baptist church, were, played first base for the Athletics.

Diamond Sparkies

"Rube" Marquard of the Giants is on the sick list. He has been going very badly for the last two weeks, and has been putting up the poorest ball he has pitched since he got out of John McGraw's nookie class.

The Brooklyn Feds had 40 men at bat against the Pittsburgh Poles in a game the other day making only five hits and scoring one run. There was not a pass issued by Dixon. The one run, however won a 12-inning game.

Flag Up But No Game.

Philadelphia, July 15.—While thunder endeavored to drown the music of two bands the world championship flag which the Philadelphia Athletics won last fall was raised at Shibe Park this afternoon. Through miniature lakes and ankle deep mud the visiting St. Louis Americans and the champion Athletics paraded the field and during a momentary let-up in the almost continuous thunder showers the pennant was hoisted. Both games of the double header scheduled for today were postponed.

Carpenter and Smith.

London, July 15.—The king today clinched his interest in the Carpenter-Smith match by graciously replying to a telegram sent to him by those in charge of the affair. That there will be an extraordinary attendance of women is evidenced by the fact that tickets have been sold to 700 of them, English, French and American.

According to the announced weights, Smith weighs 182, and Carpenter 170 pounds.

Armstrong, of Halifax, was third at 600 yards with 34. A total of 35 by Sergt. Martin, of Calgary, at 800 yards, brought him into first place at this distance.

Another Canadian to do well at the morning series was Private Falconer, of New Brunswick, who finished in second place at the 1,000 yards. Gunter A. D. Noble, of Montreal, was third at 600 yards in the evening series and Sergt. Russell, of Ottawa, second with a score of 82 at 1,000 yards.

ATHLETIC.

Jackson Retires.

Norman S. Taber, an American Rhodes scholar at Oxford, in a letter to George V. Brown, of the Boston A. A., stated that he will sail for the United States on August 1 and will then prepare for the National A. A. U. track ## and field championships to be held at Baltimore September 11 and 12.

Taber states that Capt. A. N. S. Jackson of the Oxford University Athletic Association will never compete again. This Jackson told Taber when the latter tried to have the great English athlete cross the ocean with him.

Jackson's loss will be a severe blow to sport in England. He will be remembered as the athlete who defeated America's best in the 1500-meter race at the Stockholm Olympic Championships in 1912. Jackson was also anchor man on the Oxford University four-mile relay team that defeated University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia last April.

ASTOR AND SON IN ENGLAND AT ODDS

Reported Breach Over Remark Made by the Junior's Wife

London, July 16.—Behind the announcement of William Waldorf Astor's intention to sell the Observer and the Pall Mall Gazette lies an extraordinary story of a family quarrel which may affect the eventual disposition of his immense fortune—in other words may bring about the disinheritation of Waldorf, the eldest son by his father, William Waldorf Astor.

The trouble originated in a chance remark by Mrs. Waldorf Astor, who is celebrated for her wit, which often carries a barbed shaft. One of these shafts is ranking in the breast of her father-in-law.

Exactly what it was Mrs. Astor said the correspondent is unable to ascertain but it referred to her father-in-law's control of his "money bags." It so happened that William Waldorf overheard the stinging phrase, and the outcome is a breach between father and son, the latter taking his wife's side in the domestic quarrel that followed.

Selling His Two Papers

The proposed sale of the Observer and Pall Mall Gazette is the first move in the open war which is now declared between father and son. The original purpose of giving publicity to his belief in one case to advance the son's political ambitions and in the other to realize the father's dream of founding a family which should rank among the titled nobility. Both objects have been sought in recent years.

Ever since William Waldorf used the Pall Magazine, which he bought for the purpose of giving publicity to his belief that the first Astor millionaire was a direct descendant of a Spanish grandee in 1912, Jackson was also anchor man on the Oxford University four-mile relay team that defeated University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia last April.

Some titles can be obtained cheaply. William Waldorf could buy half a dozen continental titles with an expenditure of money that would hardly be missed from his annual income. It was, however, an English title on which he had set his mind.

In those days, as Cecil Chesterton said the other day, the traffic in "honors" was a regular business and one had only to pay to the political party in power an amount graduated according to a fixed scale, in order to obtain a baron, a baronetcy, or a knighthood.

It might have seemed easy for Mr. Astor to realize his ambition, but he looked higher than a barony or even an earldom. He wanted a dukedom. He relinquished his American citizenship and became a British subject as the first step.

Unfortunately he had not the gift of making friends and even had the habit of making enemies.

Discourtesy to the King's Friend
An incident in which he refused to admit Sir Berkeley Sheffield to his house is a matter of history. Sir Berkeley was a friend of King Edward, and the monarch, who was naturally in a position to know how Mr. Astor was pulling wires to obtain a title said emphatically that he would sign no honorific, no matter what ministry presented it, on which the name of Mr. Astor appeared.

This ended William Waldorf's ambitions for a title during King Edward's reign. He was considerably out of pocket also owing to his contributions to the Unionist party chest.

There came a time when Mr. Astor concluded that his desire to see himself enrolled among the dukes must be abandoned. His ambitions then centered on his son Waldorf. The latter's marriage to an American had been a severe blow to his father, who would have preferred an English woman of title as his daughter-in-law.

But Waldorf elected to follow a political career, and as young politicians with money are welcomed in either of the English parties, Waldorf was soon provided with a seat in parliament. In 1911 he was returned for Plymouth after a serious canvass of the constituency, in which his father spent money like water.

A seat in the House of Commons among the Unionist minority is only a stepping stone to a seat in the House of Lords, which young Waldorf seemed certain to obtain once the Tories returned to power, particularly if during the period of opposition the young member's services to the party and his personal prestige provide any justification for such an honor.

A "young blood" belonging to the "newly rich" was invited by a friendly patron to his home at Tuxedo and given a ride on a blooded horse. It was a novel and most disagreeable experience, but somehow or other the young fellow maintained his balance until he came round to the starting place. Then, with an effort, to appear perfectly at his ease, he said:

"Cholly, dear boy, I'm just stuck on this horse of yours."

"Lucky for you," said the owner, "or you would have been on a dozen times."

FASHION FADS.

The newest skirts are short and "alt-less."

A white "wescut" is the correct thing with a tailored suit just now.

The military cape is popular. It is invariably lined with startling stripes or checks.

The survival of the fittest, fitting is the present state of affairs in millinery.

The Paris shops are showing hand-bags, purses and card cases made of plaid ribbons.

The hip rakes on some of the new skirts is a marked feature. This rakes is not tight. It really suggests the same line given by the rather loose hip girdle. But it does serve to hold in the fullness of the skirt at the waist line, and it is quite satisfactory.

A feature of the new gowns is a jacket having a ripple hanging full from about the middle of the back between the shoulders.

The vogue for bordered effects has resulted in the production of an exceedingly clever double-bordered veil. This novelty has a different pattern on each edge of the veiling so that it can be made to serve the purpose of entirely two different bordered veils. Sometimes a narrow floral border will appear on one edge and a velvet or chenille-dotted border on the other.

The boldest of evening gowns have diminished until there is nothing left but narrow strips of lace over the shoulders.

A great many buttons in mother-of-pearl, crystal, amber and tortoise shell are now being worn.

Of the 170 rank-and-file officers of the Pennsylvania Railroad System, 163—including the president—started at the bottom, sweeping out cars, carrying wash-buckets.
