SEBALL. Yankee Pitcher Married. Detroit's pitcher, Mar. 8—Urban J. Baker, who two years ago pitched for Toronto in the International League, was married here Friday to Miss Mervin C. Venport, a former actress, who is now in the stage some time ago. Shocker will take his bride with him to the own's training camp when he starts his next week.

The ceremony was conducted in the unit Building by Judge Hurlbert, and a newspaperman acted as witness. Baker was traded by the New York Yankees to the St. Louis Browns this spring.

Lajoie to Leave Toronto. Indianapolis, Ind., Mar. 5—Larrie Lajoie, former major league star and manager of the Toronto International League, will play first base and manage the Indianapolis American Association team coming season, provided he can obtain his release from Toronto, so it is understood here today.

Lajoie and James McGill, owner of Indianapolis franchise, met here today, and after the conference, Mr. McGill stated that an agreement of terms had been reached with Lajoie, and that in all probability the veteran would play the Indianapolis club, and succeed Jack Hendricks, who is now manager of the St. Louis Nationals.

In baseball circles here it is regarded as highly improbable that the International League will start the season, and for that reason, Owner McGill feels almost certain that Lajoie will hold down first base for the local club. Jack Leary, who played first base last season for the Indians, is now in the navy.

To Give Jinx Another Fight. New York, Mar. 5—Frank Gilhooley, former Montreal and Buffalo International League star, already has started his training campaign for the 1918 season. A broken ankle in 1916 and a broken collarbone last season having curtailed his activity in his two years with the Highlanders and possibly have prevented him from advancing to the front ranks of his profession.

Gilhooley may be found daily in an armory near his home in Toledo playing indoor baseball and engaging in other exercises. He plans to do a little outside work as well before reporting to Huggins at Macon, Georgia. It is not likely that Gilhooley will be called upon for army work this year. He registered for the national army last June and was called for examination, but owing to his injured collarbone he was sent back home and ordered to report later. He since has been placed in Class 3. He is experiencing no difficulty from either of the injuries which he sustained after joining the New York club.

HOCKEY. Plans for Play-Off. President Frank Calder, of the N. H. L., announces that since he wishes to employ officials who have no personal interest in either the Toronto or the Canadian teams, he has secured the services of Harvey Purford and James McKinley, of Ottawa, to referee the play-off matches in Montreal and Toronto for the championship of the N. H. L. Kennedy had a talk with Charlie Querie, the manager of the Toronto team, and came to an agreement on the two dates for the play-offs, which have already been published, namely, March 9 and 11.

Contrary to expectations, however, in view of the chances that the longer a match is postponed at this time of the year, the worse the ice in the Jubilee is likely to be, the first play-off match will be held in the Toronto Arena a week from last Saturday, and the second in the Jubilee here, a week from last Monday.

The Canadians will hold practices today and Thursday morning. Malone, who did not go to Toronto, because he was suffering from lumbago, is expected to be in shape again, and Pitre is also expected to be with the team for the occasion.

"THE COWARD"

WHAT THE CRITIC SAID WHEN IT WAS BEING SHOWN AT TWO DOLLAR ADMISSIONS:

THIS management of the Knickerbocker Theatre, where is being shown the Triangle programme, for the third week of its season, continued over the subjects which had held the screen for the second week. One of the reasons contributing to this action well may have been the strength of "The Coward," in which Frank Keenan is starred. The story is in six parts. It is a straight and simple tale, from the pen of Thomas H. Ince, who is also the producer. Mr. Keenan has the role of an old southern colonel, and it is a role that he knows right down to the ground—a man proud of the line of Windsor; from what he has done, from what his forebears have done, he has a right to expect much from his son in the coming hostilities between North and South.

It is a remarkable interpretation of the rugged old Colonel Jefferson Beverly Winslow Mr. Keenan gives us. Restraint is the keynote—to the verge of boldness; but it is always impressive. He smiles as he contemplates with pride the photograph of the tintype of his son; he rages, but not boisterously, when he learns of the young man's cowardice; the failure to enlist he condones, but takes measures to see that the youngster alters his mind; when the quick desertion follows, the old man shoulders the gun the young man laid down; the mind of the father is so upset by the strain on the family's honor that he refuses to acknowledge as his own the boy in bed suffering from a wound the father had inflicted. It is only when finally he is made to understand the day's victory is due to the great bravery of his son that the reaction comes. It is a situation of heartache as the old man takes his son in his arms.

NEWS OF THE SOLDIERS

The members of the depot battalion made a fine showing yesterday in a route march. The battalion, headed by Lieut. Col. J. L. McAvity, paraded the principal streets of the city. They were highly commended upon by the citizens.

Among the hardships undergone by the depot battalion was the fact that they were made to march in the rain and cold, and were not allowed to stop for rest or refreshment.

On Monday evening residents of Pearsonville, Kings county, and the surrounding district assembled at the home of Mrs. Bessie Solder to pay honor to her son, Private Coleman Solder, a returned soldier. Private Solder went overseas when but sixteen years old. He went with the Canadian Army Dental Corps and, after going to England, was transferred to the 43rd battalion. He reached the firing line but was returned to England owing to illness.

BIG-E-NUFF

IS CANADA'S ARMY UN-EMOCRATIC?

(Toronto Star.)

The charges publicly made in the Ottawa papers recently by Lieut. John Quinney concerning the unjust treatment of soldiers returning to Canada are about to be investigated, it is said, by an officer who has been appointed to head a committee of inquiry into the military districts.

While this inquiry is being arranged, it is stated that Hon. S. C. Mewburn and Hon. N. W. Howell will accompany Sir Robert Borden to England very shortly. It was stated during the recent election campaign that these two ministers would go overseas as soon as possible to look into certain desired reforms in the overseas military establishment. It would appear that there is work to be done over there in the way of reviving Canadian ideals which have begun to droop in Argyle House.

Some of our Canadian officers, or officials, seem to have been away from their native land too long. They need to be sent back for a while, at least, to have their batteries stored again with the Canadian point of view. They need to be sent home to have their mental chronometers adjusted.

THE BARRIER

LYRIC TODAY AND ALL THIS WEEK

"The Barrier" unfolds the most beautiful love story ever produced as to the bad system that has prevailed in the matter in the past. Hon. S. C. Mewburn ought to familiarize himself with the system that prevails now and for the new world to which Canada belongs. As a people we are fighting to destroy Prussian militarism, but yet we have in our army those who would embrace the whole cult of militarism and enforce military caste to the last. As we said editorially, on Jan. 29 in discussing the charges made in the Ottawa papers by Lieut. Quinney, "Just now we are not in a position to say it is anything of the sort. It is so against the protest and the widespread efforts of a certain class of Canadian officers who regard it as a deep reproach for our army to be called demoralized."

A soldier who is returning to Canada is coming back here to resume his citizenship in a free country, and he is entitled to the best accommodation on the journey that the country, in the present scarcity of shipping, is able to provide him. The journey home must of necessity be well-ordered in every way, but the military snobbery that assumes our private soldiers to be an inferior order of beings who must be jammed into the storage while the modern accommodations of the decks overhead are empty has no place in the Canadian order of affairs.

It is stated that Hon. S. C. Mewburn and Hon. N. W. Howell will accompany Sir Robert Borden to England very shortly. It was stated during the recent election campaign that these two ministers would go overseas as soon as possible to look into certain desired reforms in the overseas military establishment. It would appear that there is work to be done over there in the way of reviving Canadian ideals which have begun to droop in Argyle House.
