

POETRY

"Who is this that cometh from Edom?
With dyed garments from Bozrah!
He that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength."—ISAIAH.

By Dr. Spencer, Archdeacon of Bermuda.

Days are gone—by many a token
Long foretold, but slighted yet,
Now the seventh seal is broken
And the sun in blood is set.

All the powers of Heaven are shaken,
Ocean yet suspends its roar,
While the Eternal oath is taken,
"Time itself shall be no more."

Hark! what voice of more than thunder
Fills the wide expanse of air;
Mid the purple clouds asunder
See the Son of man appear!

Rob'd in Bozrah's garments gory
Edom's colors round him spread,
Travelling from the heights of Glory
In his strength the Earth to tread.

Not despis'd, forlorn, rejected,
As on Cavalry's mount he stood,
By his timid friends neglected,
"In the vesture dipp'd in blood."

By his Seraph-guards attended,
Down he bends his Sovereign way;
At that Light of Lights offended,
Sun, and Moon, and Stars Decay.

One known tongue to every nation
Strikes the ear, and bursts the tomb,
Each long slumbering generation
Wakes to individual doom.

Midst that host of sinners crowded,
Not one deed of guilt conceal'd;
Every wicked act unshrouded,
Every shameful thought reveal'd.

Where is now the bold blasphemer?
Palsied in his daring tongue;
While he looks on that Redeemer,
Whom his impious words have stung.

If the best, thy great salvation
Must attain with trembling fear;
Lord and Judge of all creation,
Where shall sinful man appear?

God of Love! and mercies tender,
Stern to vice, to weakness mild,
Teacher, Saviour, Sir, Defender,
Save, oh! save thy suppliant child!

By the claims which saints inherit
From thy blood for converts pour'd
By thy all-prevailing Spirit,
By thy covenanted word.

By thy tears—in sorrow weeping,
Over harden'd sinners' doom,
Take me to thy gracious keeping,
Lead me to thy glorious home.

AMERICAN ANECDOTE.—During Congress, members of either house are, at times, invited to dine at the President's table. Once, with some others, a raw buckskin was thus honored. Being awkward, and not knowing the names of the new fashioned dishes, when his plate was changed, and he was asked, what he would choose next? "More bacon and greens," said he, true to old Virginia, and awhile after, when his plate was again changed, and he was again asked, what he would take next? he again answered, "I think I'll take a little more of bacon and greens." When, after dining, the waiter brought to the buckskin an ewer of water to rinse his fingertips, up he took the ewer, and drank it off; and presently again came the waiter with another ewer full, when he, already bursting with water, began to quaff this also, not daring to refuse in fear of being thought ungentle; but when about half done—"By Jonah!" cried he, "I believe ye mean to burst me; and I'll be drowned, if I drink any more."

An etymologist was asked whence gin had its name? "That is obvious enough," said the scholar, "from being a snare to old women and all who drink it."

A very numerous herd of swine, passing through a narrow street in Paris, was thrown into confusion by the approach of carriages. One of these animals, without being noticed by the driver, found his way into an entry, went up to the third story and there finding the door open, he entered a chamber inhabited by an old woman, who had gone out for a short period. The pig discovered behind the door, which closed upon him. The good woman, who had forgotten herself, in gossiping, until night, was the more disappointed at finding her door shut, when she had left the key inside. Meanwhile, hearing a noise in the room, she thought that some one wished to be amused at her expense, and asked to have the door opened. The pig began to grunt, and she thought she recognised the voice of her facetious neighbour, Joseph, who answered, her, "No." In a rage, she abused this unfortunate Joseph, who being one of the first to run to her, clearly proved his innocence. All the lodgers immediately assembled on the landing place; it was decided, that the room was in the possession of robbers; summoned to open, the bystanders distinctly heard a "No" pronounced in a terrible voice. All became confusion in the house—the ex-members of the National Guard gave thanks that they were still left the means of protecting themselves, whilst their wives, in tears, desired the application of force. They ran to arms, and disputed amongst each other the post of danger, and every passage by which the robbers might escape was at once blockaded. At length the Commissary of Police appeared, followed by a detachment of troops suited to the gravity of the occasion; he ascends to the invaded chamber with all necessary caution and summon the robbers legally to open the door; a "No," energetically pronounced, was again the only answer received. The door was immediately forced open; the pig, terrified, endeavouring to escape, got between the legs of the commissary of Police, carried him to the staircase, down which they rolled pell mell together with soldiers of the escort. At last in spite, of numberless terrible tumbles, the pig arrived in the street, where he was at length seized, to the great satisfaction of his keeper who had, up to that period, passed his time in fruitless search.

CURE FOR THE TOOTH-ACHE.—To a table spoonful of any kind of spirits, add the same quantity of sharp vinegar, and a teaspoonful of common salt; mix them all together; hold the liquid in the mouth, so that it can enter the cavity of the tooth. It will give almost instantaneous relief.

The following ludicrous advertisement was observed posted in a window near Worcester Cathedral: "henny body that whants henny saft water my father will carry it for yo."

Division of Time.—"Murphy," said an employer the other morning to one of his workman, "you came late this morning, the other men were an hour before you." "Shure and I'll be even wit 'em to-night then."—"How, Murphy?"—"Why, faith, I'll quit an hour before 'em all, sure."

A BUSY BODY.—A down-east editor says, "I have to edit my paper, keep my books for the paper and other business, do all my out-door business, put up all orders for goods, do all my correspondence, generally direct my papers, wait upon my customers, have the care of my printing-office, saw and split my wood, make my fires, feed my hens, instruct my children, tend the babies, besides other plans and other business. With all this, and rigid economy, I hope to gain something when I get a good start!"

The following advertisement appeared in a Bristol paper: "To Master Bakers.—A journeyman baker wishes to obtain work. The advertiser fears God, has a thorough knowledge of the business, and is member of the temperance society. Preference will be given to a place where no baking is done on the Lord's day. Address, &c., Temperance Hotel."

The gentleman who carried off an old and curious iron candlestick, belonging to the collection in the hall Abbotsford, is hereby informed that it is only a model of that said to have been used by Robert Bruce. He is at liberty to retain it, as there is another in the collection; and he may exhibit it as a memento of his visit to Abbotsford and ungentlemanlike conduct."
