TO FORM EXCHANGE

The Objects of Organization Set Forth in Interview by W. J. Brandrick.

(From Monday's Daily In order to improve results to the fruit shippers of the province, in the prairie markets, a fruit and produce exchange has been organized in Brit-

This organization was designed to embrace all the associations of fruit growers in the province, but at present it represents five associations only, out of a total of eighteen. The associations epresented in the exchange are the Kootenay fruit growers, the Revelstoke fruit growers, the Salmon Arm fruit growers' association and exchange, the Kamloops fruit growers and the Chilliwack farmers' exchange.

An educational movement is nov afloat to encourage all the other as sociations to enter the exchange copartnership. The meeting held at the Parliament building to-day had for one of its objects the purpose of having the principles and advantages of the exchange explained to the local fruit growers, James Johnstone, L. M. Hagar and W. J. Brandrith, president manager and secretary of the ex-

A maximum charge of five per cent. attaches to the shipments for this service, which includes collecting, but should the cost of sell-ing and collecting be less than this the difference is returned to the shippers. In the State of Ohio, where a similar organization exists, it has been found that the collecting and selling can be done on a basis of one per cent., although the maxmum change of five per cent. was calculated, and Mr. Bran-
