CHATHAM. - - - - MARCH 15, 1883 Political Notes

The Moncton Times' leader of 7th nst. was devoted to Mr. Hanington, in York. whom it contrasted favorably with Ho Mr. Blake. From the Times' standpoint Mr. Hanington is the greatest of EARTHENWARE, great men, but the article may be inhad carried it to defeat. Mr. Hanington, as known to ordinary observers o WRINGERS, the late local Premier was a very affable person to his political friends, so long as they carried on the joke of pretending to believe that he was a leader of men, but to the majority of people who came in contact with him and were not visibly impressed with his greatness, he was about as offensive a person as could well be imagined. The first personal pronoun expressed the object of his veneration, and of his constant soliciwhich every other interest recognized by him must revolve. His own "humble udgment" was infallible—his peculiar prejudices were immutable facts founded on undoubted principles, and whatever and whoever did not coincide with his views-conceived or expressed-was sure to be visited by his undisguised and harmless scorn. That a gentleman so constituted ever appeared in the Assembly as the head of a Government, can only be accounted for by the supposition that he possessed the largest share of ability of the kind left in the unfortunate combination which so soon crumbled under his leadership. Instead of being the angelic being pictured by the Times Mr. Hanington always seemed to be overbearing and intolerant. even to the length of insolence. Great > ATTENDING TO BUSINESS. - Referring to the visit of Hon. Messrs. Ryan and Gillespie to St. John last week, the Telegraph says, -The Chief Commissioner of Public Works and the President of the Council met a considerable number of our citizens, within the last two days, and obtained a good deal of inormation about matters in this part of the province, including the road and other services. We have reason to believe that the impressions formed of these gentlemen, who are not so well known here as some other members of the new Administration, were decidedly favorable.

The Newcastle Advocate, in its comments on the change of Government.
says: "There are three gentlemen it asks for an explanation. Nothing is easier than to explain this. Chapter 20 of the Consolidated Statutes provides that "there shall be a Board composed of a Chief Commissioner and two other members, being members of the Executive Council, which Board shall be styled "The Board of Public Works."

Board of Public Works, but, perhaps, the explanation of the Telegraph was necessary in order that even the shiretown paper might have an additional tem of information added to its too neagre stock.

The Advocate, though endeavoring to gain the favor of the new Local Governnent seems particularly spiteful towards Hon. Mr. Gillespie. It says,-

It will no doubt cause considerable surprise, that this County, which has for so long a period been represented by the head of a department, is now lef out in the cold, probably because Mr.
Gillespie had not the pluck to demand an office and trust himself in the hands of his constituents for re-election. lespie's failure to press the elaims of the county for a department will at once be attributed to want of pluck on his part, and fear of defeat had he accepted an office with salary, and returned to his constituents for reclaims of the county for a de election.

Was it a "want of pluck" that induced Mr. Gillespie to reject the offer by a member of the late government of ne position of Surveyor-General if he would go at once and be sworn in ? Is there any spitefulness in the Advocate's references to Mr. Gillespie because he J. D. B. F. MACKENZIE. could not see his way clear to accept have "axes to grind."

The exist-will be quite capable of guarding its privileges against Government encroachments—especially when they are attacked for purposes which are recklessly subversive of the most cherished and time-honored safeguards of constitutional liberty. If the late Governnent could, of its own motion, "abolhe can never be, because he is too much ish" Mr. Kelly as a legislative councilnflated with bumptiousness-with the heapest and most palpable kind of selflor, it could abolish the whole council, by simply abolishing the members, one by one. The Local Government cannot, however do this and it was because they attempted to do so much that was high-handed and illegal and so little that was in the interest of honest and capable administration that they were obliged to resign and allow more capable men to take their places.

The desperation of the late Government is shown in the efforts being made by its displaced members to work up opposition to the return of the members Works was as brief as his abilities and experience were limited, seems, with the aid of other disappointed persons, to have accepted the candidacy of the returned fortune-seeker, Mr. Estabrooks, who publishes a card announcing that he is running against Attorneysionership restored to him.
