The "Thank You" Essay. Once upon a time I listened. Lined and while the quick tears glistened 'neath the drooping lids that hid them, as a little girl said—

"Papa," spoke the little trembler, "Papa, dear, do you remember When that gentleman was here to tea, his sober, solemn air?"

"God is good, and Jesus blessed them, And his sacred arm caressed them, Murmuring thus, he touched the child-brow with a passionate, swift kiss

Personal Habits of Children. If children are expected to grow into refined, cultivated people, nothing can be more important than commencing very early to train them into the habits of gentleness, truthfulness, and industry.

Drunkenness prevails among the inhabitants of Russia in a marvellous extent, and the government has lately adopted a new system for its suppression.

Remarkable Outrages. History in the dark ages of despotism and tyranny reveals itself in these days of light and liberty.

Don't put on the mending from week to week. Don't you know that vinegar will clean the insulating in the stove door?

Don't hesitate to place a piece of zinc on the live coals in the stove; it will clean out the stovepipe.

Don't throw away the nice woolen stockings when the feet are worn out, but cut them down for the children.

Don't say "micky" for milk, "ridey" for ride; baby will understand "hand mamma your little dress" as readily as if you said "bring my little dress to mamma."

Don't talk servants or family matters to callers, and don't tell them the exact date of their last call. They will be likely to make the interval longer the next time.

Don't fall in conversation, to occasionally pause and give the listener an opportunity to speak, and don't mistake polite listening, prolonged, for interest in your subject.

Don't let dirt from one piece of furniture to another and call it dusting, but take it up carefully in a dusting cloth and shake it from the window.

Don't let your "micky" for milk, "ridey" for ride; baby will understand "hand mamma your little dress" as readily as if you said "bring my little dress to mamma."

The whisky and tobacco men and their cohorts in this country are always ready to the government, if it is not for profit to be without liquor and tobacco.

This is "high license or tax"—the price of blood and souls of men—"for revenue." For it, the Government grants and guarantees to manufacturers and dealers in liquor and tobacco entire immunity and protection from all government officers and authorities within the prescribed limits.

It grants the capture, it is estimated, of 60,000 or more sober, civil citizens annually, and their conversion into loathsome, polluted and polluting demerits, and a greater number of madmen, flit chews and smokers. It grants the keeping of millions of such in the land, growing more and more miserable and loathsome for years, until they—at least the former—reach an infamous death of body and soul.

It grants the retention of 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 of their families, friends and dependents to wretchedness, degradation, poverty and want, endangering the lives, property and welfare of all. It grants the source of nine-tenths of crimes, resulting evils and their cost—nine-tenths of murders, suicides, incendiarisms, defences, assignments and failures. It grants the means of causing these poor victims, indirectly, to pay annually $121,000,000 through liquor and tobacco "revenue," into the United States treasury (not including the "high license" of some of the States), throwing the chief burden of supporting the Government on the miserable enslaved few.

It grants the means by which manufacturers and vendors annually extort from these same victims $1,500,000,000 for liquor and tobacco, and in the past seven years, since 1889, the enormous sum of $13,500,000,000 in exchange for these poisons—a sum greater than the combined national debts of the world, though not including indirect costs, losses, squandered and perverted capital and time, land, man, brains and support of criminals, paupers, prisons, asylums, hospitals, etc., and a still greater civil and social evil. This is confiscation.

With all this against us how can we escape bankruptcy and utter ruin under the weight of this just and obvious God's curse? With its removal would not the world be almost the paradise described in the sixty-fifth chapter of Isaiah? Still, many who do hope are good people, give all their votes and their influence for "license and revenue," and sternly oppose every direct effort to stop intemperance. If Hiram and Ahasuerus were guilty, let him who can show the United States or other governments are clear. T. K. GALLOWAY, Montgomery, O., May 5, 1886.

Wine for Strength. "But, doctor, I must have some kind of a stimulant," cried the invalid, earnestly, "I am cold and it warms me." "Precisely," came the doctor's crusty answer. "See here; this stick is cold"—taking up a stick of wood from the box beside the hearth, and tossing it into the fire—"it is warm; but is the stick benefited?"

The sick man watched the wood first send out little puffs of smoke, and then burst into flame, and replied, "Of course not; it is burning itself!" "And you, when you warm yourself with alcohol," you are literally burning up the delicate tissues of your stomach and brain."

I have amply tried both ways. I gave alcohol in my practice for twenty years, and have now practiced without it the last thirty years or more. My experience is that acute disease is more rapidly cured without it, and chronic disease much more manageable.—John Higginbottom, F.R.S.

THE FARM. To keep off squab bugs, place a cob of corn in a pot of water, and carry to the field, wrap up the jar in a woolen cloth. It will then keep fresh and cool six hours. Keep the cloth wet.

with them for the ensuing twelve months, they will give a different report next year.

English and French Horses. England is noted for producing better horses, says an exchange, than the Continent, simply because her breeders invariably reject those animals which are defective in the required good points.

How much better any one can work if working to a plan. When a carpenter is to build a house, the first thing he does is to draw a plan of the house as it is to appear when completed.

But what if the carpenter builds without any plan? We often see such; a building is put up and then additions are added to it from time to time, as the occasion and circumstances demand.

We verify before that systematic effort count for more in the long run than any other system.—Rural World.

A Surgical Operation. The American Ambassador at Vienna, Mr. Kasson, has lately forwarded to his Government an interesting account of a remarkable surgical operation lately performed by Professor Dillroth, of Vienna.

After a time the patient spits up food, soon after eating, sometimes in a sour and fermented condition, sometimes sweetish to the taste. Ordinarily there is a palpitation of the heart, and the patient fears he may have heart disease.
