

APPENDIX.

NOTE A.

Hear the learned and excellent St. Augustine, who wrote thus: "Then didst thou by a vision discover to thy forenamed Bishop, (St. Ambrose) where the bodies of Gervasius and Protasius, the martyrs, lay hid (whom thou hadst in thy secret treasury stored, uncorrupted, so many years) whence thou mightest seasonably produce them to repress the fury of a woman, but an Empress. (Justina.) For when they were discovered and dug up, and with due honour translated to the Ambrosian Basilica, not only they who were vexed with unclean spirits (the devils confessing themselves) were cured, but a certain man, who had for many years been blind, a citizen and well known to the city, asking and hearing the reason of the people's confused joy, sprang forth, desiring his guide to lead him thither. Led thither, he begged to be allowed to touch with his handkerchief the bier of Thy saints whose death is precious in Thy sight. Which when he had done, and put to his eyes they were forthwith opened."—St. Ambrose preached a sermon on this miracle. Libr : of the Fathers of the Holy Catholic Church. 1 Vol. 167. sec 16.
