

Good Gates as a Factor in Farming

H. Ralph Steele, Guelph, Ont.

If a man has not sufficient pride in his farm to keep his fences, and especially his gates in repair, the consideration of economy should compel him to give them attention. Neighbourhood disputes, animosities and serious altercations are fostered by the been strong on his job, "if" it had been a respectable farm gate instead of an eyesore and an impatient excuse, this accident or that would not have occurred. Dozens of stockmen have had occasion to reflect along this line. "If" they had used the right kind of gates the "ifs" enumerated would never have emerged to rebuke and condemn them in their own minds and in the public eye.

gates commonly used on some Canadian farms. Stock farmers, above all others, realize the importance of gates that will be reliable duty all the time and everywhere. Where pure bred stock is maintained it is reckless extravagance to use doubtful gates. Live stock breeders cannot afford to risk poorly constructed plank gates that are short-lived and easily wrecked. If they are heavy enough to be reasonably strong they are too expensive in

It is a common observation that comparatively few farmers are awake to the advantages and economic importance of practical, dependable gates for protection and convenience. Their tolerance of the crude, ineffective affairs used as gates argues a want of enterprise and business judgment that in some sections is astonishing. Experiences are common in every agricultural community that should induce stockmen, particularly breeders many communities to warrant their use, especially in the face of opportunities to employ steel gates costing less in the long run.

The breeder whose $300 pure-bred cow has been served by a scrub bull that made his way through an old patched-up gate, has had his lesson. He will fix up gates without further reminders. Hundreds of costly accidents and complications in the conduct of a breeding farm are traceable to gates that fail of their duty. "If" the gate had been shut, "if" it had of pedigreed stock, to maintain their gates and fences in the best possible condition. Many a $2 gate has allowed stock to smash through it, and destroy $50 worth of grain. A saving of 50c in making or repairing cheap, inferior gates often results in a loss equivalent to the cost of enough first-class steel gates to supply an entire farm. There is no economy in the average type of plank or wooden gate.
