Our Children's Corner. For the Provincial Wesleyan. Little Ella. BY M. E. H.

(Presented to her bereaved Parents.) The twilight hour returns again, The fire gleams brightly as of yore,-And prattling voices sweetly sound, But one alas ! is heard no more.

No longer at her mother's knee, She offers up the simple prayer,-Forgiveness for each childish fault, And blessings on her parents dear.

No longer with a youthful band, To Sabbath school she joyful wends Her place is vacant ; from her lips, No more the song of praise ascends

Where is she ? Ah ! that lovely form, In earth was-laid with grief-wrung tears The narrow grave hath buried now, The promise rich of riper years.

Where is she ? Blessed spirit, say, Where now thy bright abode may be ? Oh ! could we draw aside the veil, How many hearts would envy thee !

Snatched from the sin, the care, the grief, That future years must surely know, Untasted all life's bitterness Why should we mourn to let thee go Into green pastures gently led, "Beside the living streams of bliss; Safe folded in thy Shepherd's arms, Who would not crave a lot like this?

Not lost, but early taken home We shed no bitter tears for thee, But only ask, life's labour done, That such our happy portion be December 24.
