THE WICKED HUSBANDMEN .-Mark xii. 1-12

1.-This parable is founded on Isaiah's description of Israel as the vineyard of the Lord (Isaiah v. 1-7). Israe i and Judah are, of course spoken of in their covenant relation to God, by which they were constituted His ancient church. The figure of a vine or a vineyard is familiar throughout Scripture, and as applicable to the Coristian as to the Jewish Church. Jesus Carist calls himself the true vine and his disciples the branches (John av. 2-8).

The Hedge - A secure fence was necessary to a vineyard, because of a thorough and systematic reform in the wild animals with which the country was infested. In some cases a stone wall was erected, but a cheaper fence was a hedge of prickly pear. The Wine-fat - Multitudes of winevats are still to be found in Palestine. A sloping rock being selected, a trough was hollowed out two or three feet in depth, and four or five, or more or less according to circumstances, in length and breadth. This was the winepress proper. Then below, in the same slope, another trough of smaller dimensions was cut out, with an aperture or apertures, communicating with the compartment above. Into this the juice of the grapes ran when they were trodden in the press. Thence it whould be taken out and put into large bottles or skins. The Tower .- Of these watch-towers, a traveller says:-"They cannot my attention first as I approached Bethlehem from the south-east. They appeared in almost every field within sight. Those which I examined had a small door near the ground, and a level space on the top, where a man could sit and command a view of the plantation."

2.-The principle on which the vine-yard was let still prevails in eastern lands: that a certain proportion of the proceeds should be given to the proprietor as rent. These unscrupulous men thought to seize the vineyard for themselves. The application of all this is very obvious. The husbandmen to whom the Lord's vineyard was entrusted were, of course, the elders, rulers, and priests of the Jewish nation. God had committed His vineyard into their keeping, that He might secure from it the return in the obedience, love, and righteousness of his people. But He met with the disappointment mentioned in Isaiah's prophecy; and this was the result of the neglect and abuse of their trust, of which those He sent His servants-prophets, min- | turist. messengers—to remind these unfaithful men of their duty: but they not only refused to listen to them but insulted, ill-treated, and murdered them. (Matt. xxiii. 29-31,

"We cannot, indeed, imagine the Pharisees even in their most secret councils, ever trusting each other so far, or daring to look overwhelming force. They wanted laundry. to keep the vineyard for themselves. The food of the eye is light, as is "The Son was the heir, and He came

Jesus, in conclusion, asks them if the Psalins (exvii. 22). "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner." He was the stone which God proposed to lay in Zion as the foundation for perishing singlers to rest upon (Isaiah xxviii. 16). COUNTRY ROADS.

The importance of good roads, both as a matter of economy and pleasure, cannot be easily overrated by the farmer, or the residents of rural districts generally. Much has been written and said on this subject, and there has been more or less legislation; but the results thus far have not been satisfactory, as a drive over the great majority of country roads abundantly proves. There is need of this matter. Viewed in its economical aspect the loss to individuals and communities in wear of vehicles and breaking of harness, the injury to teams and waste of time in light or heavy travel is beyond computation, and it is a wonder that in so many farming sections, and where matters pertaining to economy are so carefully considered, so little attention is given to the subject. In many cases, of course, an expenditure beyond the ability of the "road district" would be necessary to make a good road, but in most instances the easily-perormed labor, of removing the loose stones would improve the road vastly. as peas. If one likes vinegar, a It has been estimated that the damage to horses, wagons, and harness upon an ordinarily-travelled road en miles in tength during a year will amount to thousands of dollars, while the removal of the stones causing this loss would not cost a hundred dollars. The inhabitants of agricultural districts should interest themselves in securing such legislation as will insure them better roads.

WATERING PLANTS.

Unless one has an abundant supply of water, so that its use, when once begun, can be continued, it is better, as a general thing, to not water at all. In the drouth which we so often have this month, a mere sprinkling of the leaves is worse than no water at all. Still, we all may have in the vegetable as well as in the flower garden certain plants that we would like to favor. In such cases, instead of watering the plant, the water should be applied to the soil; draw the earth away from the plants, forming a sort of basis around them; then pour on water gradually, and let it soak in around the roots. Afterward return the removed dry earth to its place, and this will act as a mulch to keep who had charge were guilty. Then the roots moist.—American Agricul-
