NEW LIEUT-GOVERNOR SWORN IN WEDNESDAY

The last of the present series of changes in officialdom in the administration of affairs of the Province of New Brunswick took place Wednesday evening when a new Lieutenant-Governor was sworn in at a public ceremony at the Assembly Chamber of Legislature, just one month after a new Premier had assumed office.

Hon. William F. Todd, of St. Stephen, became the Lieutenant-Governor succeeding Hon. William Pugsley, when Hon. Mr. Todd took the necessary oaths of office, after the official commission of his appointment had been read by Kodolphe Boudreau, C.M.G., Clerk of the Privy Council, Sir Douglas Hazen, as Chief Justice of New Brunswick, administered the oaths, after the new governor had sworn allegiance to His Majesty the King.

The great seal of the Province of New Brunswick was then delivered to the new governor by the deputy Provincial Secretary, R.W.L. Tibbitts, and in scarcely 15 minutes from the time it commenced, the ceremony was completed with the presentation of a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses and carnations to Mrs. Todd. The presentation was made by little Miss Mary Barker, granddaughter of Robert S. Barker, who became official Secretary to Mr. Todd as the seventh governor under whom he served. Lieut.-Col. W.J. Osborne was also in attendance with the new governor, but was not in uniform.

CHATHAM DEFEATED AT CHARLOTTETOWN.

By a score of 4 to 1 the Abbies hockey team, champions of the eastern section of the New Brunswick and P.E.I. hockey league, defeated the Chatham sextette, the north shore champions in the second play-off game of the league Wednesday night.

The score at the end of the periods was 1-0, 2-0 and 4-1. In the first and second periods the Abbies had to work hard for their goals, Chatham putting up a splendid fight and the play was close throughout, Morgan having quite a number of hard shots to ward off.

It was on the whole a good exhibition of hockey but lacked combination. The first period was unexciting the second was very fast with hard skating. There was a tendency to "rough it" and Referee J. J. Twaddle handed out twelve penalties during the game. In the second half of the last period the Abbies outskated the Chatham team and bombarded the latter's goal heavily.

Mr. George Watt, collector of customs at Chatham received word last Friday from Richibucto, that a large unknown steamer had been seen about half way between Richibucto Cape and Prince Edward Island.

Winter Hard On Baby

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. William Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

THAT ATLANTIC SUB-DIVISION

A line of railway will presently connect the Transcontinental with Toronto and the Grand Trunk system throughout Ontario and the State of Maine.

Cochrane, Ont., is protesting again Toronto control of the Transcontinental. That Ontario town would sooner be under the railway jurisdiction of Moncton. One reason doubtless is that Toronto now has no direct communication with the Transcontinental. That will be changed. The new line was projected long before the present railway controversy arose. It is right enough that an important centre like Toronto should have a direct connection with the Transcontinental where it runs through Northern Ontario. Perhaps when the new line is completed Cochrane's objection to Toronto may cease, or at least be modified.

For the Maritimes the important question is—what will be the effect of this new line connecting the G. Trunk system with the Transcontinental at a point near Cochrane upon through traffic? Will Toronto have a tendency to exert a pull upon Transcontinental traffic in the direction of the Grand Trunk system? Quebec City has an interest in this question. The Winter port probably has a greater interest, though it appears to be unconcerned. The traffic on the Transcontinental now may not be important; but it may be of great importance in the future. And the principle of the railway policy established now will determine the future of the "Atlantic Region" and Maritime ports.

PARTED BY WAR

Civil Strife Caused Separation of Noted Churchmen.

Missionary Centennial Recalls Affection Between Bishop McIlvaine and Bishop Polk, on Opposing Sides.

A striking memory of Civil war history is awakened in connection with the centenary of the Episcopal Missionary society, falling this year, which centers about two devout bishops of the church. Bishop McIlvaine of Ohio and Bishop Leonidas Polk of Tennessee, life-long friends, whose consciences made them "enemies" when the war divided the country.

Bishop McIlvaine was the elder of the two and was chaplain at West Point when young Polk, son of the family which gave a President to the United States, arrived at the academy bent on a military career. At the end of four years Polk was graduated into the army; but so marked was the influence that McIlvaine had exerted that, a few years later, the chaplain having in the meantime been elevated to the episcopacy, Polk resigned from the army and took clerical orders.

With the passage of the years it fell out that McIlvaine and Polk became identified as leaders in the movement within the church which resulted in the dispatch of missionary bishops into the unsettled areas of the country, and brought about those triumphs which are being acclaimed now in the missionary centennial. Polk was made the first missionary bishop of Arkansas and later first bishop of Louisiana.

Then came the war between the states, which arrayed father against son and brother against brother; and these two devout men of the church did not escape the perplexities of the situation. Bishop McIlvaine answered the call of Lincoln and went to England with Archbishop Hughes, Henry Ward Beecher and Thurlow Weed to exert their influence against British recognition of the Confederacy. Bishop Polk answered the call of Jefferson Davis and became a general in the Confederate army.

Thus actively aligned on opposite sides in the conflict, the stage was set for one of the most dramatic episodes of the war. Back in the West Point days the two men had entered into a solemn compact that when they separated, wherever they might be they would pray, each for the other by name, every Sunday morning. And now, the one fighting in the field for the South, and the other engaged in a delicate diplomatic mission for the North, enemies as to the political principle which was involved, their solemn compact was sacredly carried out until the end came with the death of Bishop Polk at the battle of Pipe Mountain.

History tells of the success of the mission to England, of which Bishop McIlvaine was a part.

The kind of soldier Bishop Polk was is related in the general orders issued by Gen. J. B. Johnston, commanding the army of Tennessee on June 14, 1864, the day Polk fell. It read:

"Comrades: You are called to mourn your first captain, your oldest companion-in-arms. Lieut. Gen. Polk fell today at the outpost of this army—the army he raised and commanded, in all of whose trials he shared, to all of whose victories he contributed. In this distinguished leader we have lost the most courteous of gentlemen, the most gallant of soldiers. The Christian, patriot, soldier has neither lived nor died in vain. His example is before you; his mantle rests with you."

There is a striking picture, too, of this warrior-bishop contained in a letter he wrote to his wife less than a month before he fell.

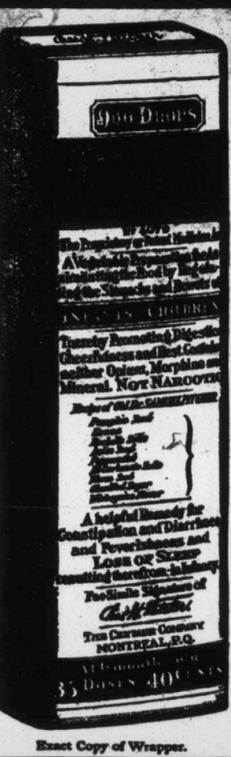

"You will be interested," he wrote, "in hearing that the first night of my arrival with the army I baptized Lieut. Gen. Hood. It was on the eve of an expected battle. The scene was a touching one—he, with one leg, leaning on his crutches, a veteran in the midst of his and my officers and I the officiating minister. His heart was fully in it."

A few nights later he also baptized General Johnston.

Corrosion of Metals.
 The committee on corrosion of iron and steel of the American Society for Testing Materials reported that tests which have been in progress for five years in the Pittsburgh district on uncoated metal sheets are nearing completion and have reached the point where the committee definitely concludes that "copper-bearing metal shows marked superiority in rust-resisting properties as compared to non-copper-bearing metal of substantially the same general composition, from which superiority we may truly anticipate a marked increase in the service life of copper-bearing metals under atmospheric exposure of uncoated sheets." Other corrosion tests are being conducted in different parts of the country, and before very long a final report may be expected in which results of importance will be stated.

Nothing Wrong to Him.
 Mother was terribly upset by Tommy's appearance, particularly his unwashed face.
 "Tommy, Tommy," she scolded in great distress, "how can you look so filthy, so dirty, so unclean, so unclean as this in the middle of the morning?"
 "No, mother," said Tommy, with a contented smile, "I don't wash my face, but I wash my hands."
