elliptical, and supplementary reading.
Silent Reading—If the reading lesson be taken, as it often is, in the afternoon, when the energy begins to fiag and the body to feel weary, five minutes of silent reading come as a great relief. In junior classes the teaching of silent reading is a necessity. Young children find it difficult to read in a perfectly inaudible mancult to read in a perfectly inaudible man-ner. Even after considerable practice

Where the class is composed of fifty children it is hard to get round it in a short time; A pack of vieiting cards with the name of each pupil written, one on each side, has been found of invaluable assistance. These are shuffled before each time used and neither you nor the children know whose turn comes next. No time thus is lost in calling upon the pupils and none are omitted. Giving each a sentence one can get round even fifty children in twenty minutes. Each child then feels that she has taken part in the lesson.

Dual Reading—A plan advocated by an old and experienced teacher who had found it serviceable. Have the children in twenty minutes. Each child then feels that she has taken part in the carm of the province of the bequest and the pupils and not an old and experienced teacher who had found it serviceable. fun-loving propensities how much enjoyment the children get out of the exercise. The way of doing it? Read; and as you read, accidentally, as it were, leave out words or substitute others, and allow the children to correct; for adjectives you may insert those of an opposite character. This they think very funny, and little heads will soon be eagerly on the watch in order to detect the next error. Only a few minutes spent in this way are advisable. As soon as new interest is awakened, slip back to what you were engaged in before.

Then a purple swelling similar to that on the legs, broke out on the forehead, extending from the right to the left eyebrow. It had a gloomy appearance, in fact looking as though it had been varnished. We were greatly alarmed, for my little boy's condition was pitiable and every effort we were making to relieve him only ended in failure. One of my neighbors advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as his case was so desparate that I was willing to try anything that might better it, I decided to do so. Before two weeks had passed there was a decided change in his condition. The spots that had covered his legs and forehead began to assume a greenish tinge and to disappear. How gladly we continued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, feeling that we had at last discovered a medicine that would cure our child. Nor were we mistaken. His stomach trouble left him, the swelling from the arm disappeared; his appetite returned, and he began to grow strong and healthy looking, and instead of having to lay in bed all day he began to run around once more and play like other children. We still continued giving him the pills, and strong as if he had never had a day's sickness in his life. He now goes to school every day, walking a distance of over a mile, and he enjoys the very best of health. I am confident that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my child's life and I feel that I would be doing an injustice to suffering humanity if I did not tell of their wonderful merit.

ATARRH Mrs. Dobell, of London, Ont.

Cured for 25 Cents Poctors Could Help, but Couldn't Cure-Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure Released the Prisoner, and To-day She is as Well as Ever-She Says it is a Great Remedy

"Yes, I am Mrs. Dobell," said a comely, pleasant-faced woman at her home on Horton street to a News reporter to-day, "and I will very gladly tell you what you want to know. About three years ago my husband was very ill, and I had frequently occasion to rise in the night and go for a doctor or to the druggist. In my hurry I often neglected to properly clothe myself, and contracted several heavy colds, which turned at last to chronic catarrh. I tried doctors, who helped me, but did not cure me, and several special catarrh medicines, I was relieved but not cured. I was suffering intolerably when Mr. Shuff recommended me to try CHASE'S CATARRH CURE, and it began at once to help, and in about two months had entirely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of this remarkable medicine, and cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from catarrh." The blower included is a great help to sufferers.
