Session. The town is quiet. El Correro, ministerial, says: "It is reported from Washington that in the event of the Senate's resolution prevail-ing President McKinley will avail him-self of his privilege of ten days before giving the resolution his approval, providing he does not employ the actual veto. Amid much excitement the note providing he does not employ the terminoy veto. Amid much excitement the note of war with Spain prevails at Washing-ton but further delays will probably oc-cur owing to parliamentary routine and President McKinley's vacillation.

Washington, April 18.—When the Sen-ate resolution was read in the house to-day it was moved to concur with the amendment striking out the recognition for clause. This was defeated, and the re-solutions were returned to the Senate, which promptly sent its section back to the house again with the section recog-nizing the Cuban insurgents retained. The house without division refused to accept the obnoxious section, and a con-ference committee was called for. The Senate also declared for a conference, and both houses took recess until 8 p.m. At the conference the Senate members agreed to drop the section recognizing the Cuban insurgents, but insisted on the first section of the resolution, reading: "That the people of the Island of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." This the house re-fused to accept and a disagreement was reported to both houses. "The Senate, after having declined to confer further with the house commit-tee, changed its mind and another con-ference was held, the Senate taking a recess until midnight to await the report Washington, April 18 .- When the Sen-Take bonds which are to be sold at par. He said to a Col-onist correspondent: "On the way from s Winnipeg I took a run inland to a cer-tain stream-well, not a hundred miles from a railway: In one spot a lone In-dian was working a crude rocker of the most primitive pattern. I examined a piece of the blanket he had to catch the fine gold, and in the fuz of the cloth I found the yellow dust had gathered thick. I then took the pan and washed a handful of his tailings and got more than a hundred colors. I am sure that with this primitive rocker the Indian was washing up $10 a day. With a proper appliance $30 a day should be made by one man. I will not go to Klondike now. This is better than Klondike for me. I do not see what those countless thousands who are Klondike bound are thinking about, stampeding to a frozen country far from railways, homes and friends, taking their lives in their hands for a long off chance to strike naw, dirt when thor, e hould be

A combination has been in force here among steamboat agents for some time but as the rush subsided somewhat and the steamers capable of accommodating a large number of pas-sengers became more numerous, the strain became too great for some of the agents who surreptitionsly cut rates. When this was found out it was a sig-nal for a general scramble for passen-gers at any rate that could be secured, and now the steamboats are all at it hammering prices down in ruinous com-petition. The cutting of rates is consid-ered regrettable by every one but the prospective passengers, as the northern trade will be in a state of chaos with possibilities ahead of a ruinous rate war. The cut rates were in force for one week before the cut was known by all those interested.
