Removes Warts

"ENGLISHWOMAN" writes to the Montreel Star:
"I read a letter in your paper asking for a remedy for warts, and as I found one that took an ugly one off the side of my forehead I will give it to you. I had a bottle of Minard's Limiment in the house that I use for rheumatism, and casually reading directions I saw it was a good thing for corns and warts, so being so simple I tried it. Just dab it on with the cork two or three times a day letting it dry on. Well it all went away in about two weeks, dried up and came off by degrees.

OUR EMPIRE.

The following paper was read at the last regular meeting of the W. C. ft. U. on Empire Day:

The following the w. C. ft. U. on Empire Day:

The following the word of the description of the first inhabitants of the days of the dawning of the nationalities of the first inhabitants of the countries which gave birth to the group of nations which today form the splendid British Empire. The days of the Picts and Scots, the Angles, Saxons and the Romans, all of which had their influence, we must skip over, nor is it necessary for us to again review the terms of magna charta of the various wars and revolutions or lives of group of nations which today form the splendid British Empire. The days of the Picts and Scots, the Angles, Saxons and the Romans, all of which had their influence, we must skip over, norm is it necessary for us to again review the terms of magna charts of the various wars and revolutions or lives of great men, all of which influence to a great extent the future which is now the present of the empire. We canonly consider today in a general way how we came to be and try to discern the niche in the world which we are destined to fill.

As early as 1559 the term Britannia Major was usel in Scotland to designate both England and Scotland, but in England the term did not neet with much favour for some time. However in 1604 the King issued a proclamation, saying Great Britain is the true and ancient name which God and time have imposed upon this isle.

What we may term a legal union did not take place till 1707. When the Cross of St. Andrews and the Cross of St. George united by order of James I to form the first Union Jack. Still later in 1801, Ireland joined the Union and Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Red Cross and the White Cross and under the title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Red Cross and the White Cross and the Cross of St. Patrick formed the meteor flag our pesent Union Jack. Perhaps these three countries and Wales have influenced the circle of nations which form the British Empire more than we think. Sootland has contributed a clear mindedness, and has charmed the English speaking world. Ireland has contributed so much to the empire in the past with her hardy immigrants and her folk the last few years in loving forbear-ances, praying that she soon again may be her happy-hearted self. Per-haps too, some of us are more closely-bound to this little island when we remember that St. Patrick may have been an Irishman of credit and renown but he was at the same time of excel-lent Scotch birth so far as known.

The Mother Land

At first "this little group of coun-ries" paid scant attention to the the Union Jack. For a great number of years the colonies represented a sort of back yard kitchen, they were dreamed that money should be spent on them. But gradually it cafe to be realized that here and there were gathered together a little group of people who were steadfastly building homes and schools and churches, edu-cating and training their children to the best of their ability. Forests gave way to farms and mines and manufacturing plants were opened up and the commercial light which has been of inestimable value to the emire came into being. So were form-d the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and the Dominion of anada, and the various smaller colon outh Africa and a number of small islands and seaports to the empire.
What then constitutes our duty to the Empire? We should without doubt cherish the best traditions of the past, but perhaps our greatest duty is to rule our own house wisely and well. Not so long ago we had no country.

We lived in a province, with a prov-ince or two to the west of us and be-yond that a vast amount of fresh water, a breadth of wild prairie and water, a breadth of wild prairie and undeveloped and little known country stretching towards the Rocky Mountains in one direction and the North Pole in another. Today these territories constitute the provinces of Manitola, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia with a more or less settled country northward. We have grown and progressed, but there is yet much to do. We sometimes here the province of Quebec referred to as a problem, in a line of voice which suggests that it would be a rather welcome surprise if it would pick itself up, and propel itself towards the coast of Labrador and noiselessly sink into the ocean, never more to rise. It has been said that French Canada was a Jesut Mission grafted on the for trade. This is epigram but not history. It is doubtful if history can be written—epigrafimatically, Dr.

If Stomach is Sour, Food Won't Digest

There are those who represent the extreme Ultra montain or nationalistic parting as the people of Quebec, but the traitors of Tooley Street are not the people of England, are a handful of, short-sighted people, we hope, either the people of the Province of Quetec or yet the Dominion of Canada. We are expennuating in the making of the nation it is true. Yet slowly we are using all the elements of the nationalities of our early pioners and present immigrant, Germans, Icelanders, Belgians, Ruthemain Hungersians, Indians and so, on, thickly descendants of the Old French Regime.

We have other difficulties and problems. In 1840 a dispute arose with China about the importation of opium into that country. The Emperor blamed the ifportation and seized and destroyed many cargoes which British merchants tried to smuggle into Chinese seaports. 'War ensued, the British were successful, Hong Kong became a British port. The Chinese had to pay a large sum of money, and the dreaded opium habit has never since been salisfactorily dealt with. Will it ever be! Sometimes opportunity comes twice but not all ways. Today we hear much of the Chinese problem, and the difficulty of assumproblem, and the difficulty of assu-ulating the Oriental on our Pac-coast and quite enough of the ground of the drug habit not so much in lation to this foreign population as to the very best of our own white-skinn ed Canadians. The mills of Go grind slowly but unless we are alto gether blind we must see that the eventually do grind. Have we reape-what we have sown. Nations pa

KEEP THEM IN ORDER.

The police have been doing good work in keeping auto drivers to the proper side of the street. They should now get after truck teams. A driver who was pulling in to the wrong side of the street and who was told by an auto driver that he was on the wrong side got very abueive and persisted in his course. Such drivers should be promptly summoned to court.
