Residents of the Northwest Portion of A meeting of voters in favor of Sunday cars was held in the Orange Hall, Euclidavenue, last night. The hall was filled and Mr. Walter Davidson was elected to the chair. The first speaker was Mr. W. F. Maclean, M.P., who presented forcible arguments in favor of the cars. He was followed by Mr. Alfred Jury; he contended that it was the greatest selfishness for people to deny to their fellowmen a benefit which they do not desire themselves. The cry about the street railway employes that had been raised was sentimental and insincere. The employes had secured a good agreement and now must fight their own battles. They could not expect to be nursed. There was nothing to prevent them organizing. He could instance the West End Railway Company of Boston, a concern three times as large as the Toronto Railway Company. The employes of which had organized and secured an agreement even more favorable than that of the Toronto men, and that by their own unaided efforts with no assistance from the city officials. After the cry came, not from the men, but from those selfish people who don't want to see a street car on Sunday. The statement that because street car on Sunday.
