There is no use in applying any particular amount of salt for the purpose of perserving it, because the very slightest salting is sufficient for all the effect salt can have as a preservitive of butter. Generally one ounce of salt to sixteen ounces of butter, so as to obscure in a measure the faulty taste, the flavor of salt being less objection, able than a strong or faulty taste, the flavor of salt being less objection, able than a strong or faulty taste in butter. But if the flavor is very fine and full it will not be desirable to hide it, but on the contrary to give it more descriptions executed at the office of this paper.

Salt to suit the taste of the consumer.
