The Post Vindicated.

Mr. GRIP takes this opportunity of correcting a wrong impression which may have gone abroad in connection with the recent visit of His Excellency Lord LORNE to the mansion of the talented and hospitable Mr. PLUMB. It is stated, in the newspaper account, that the vice-regal guest departed shortly after having taken luncheon, and some people may infer from this that Mr. PLUMB had suggested to entertain his brother-in-law by reading to him the manuscript of his last original poem. This is not the fact; the vice-regal visit was cut short simply for want of time.
