A STORY OF COURAGE:

Annals of the Georgetown Convent of the Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary from the manuscript records: by George Parsons Lathrop and Rose Guinness Lathrop.

Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop have a keen appreciation of delicacy and purity in all things, and this account of their visit to the historic Visitation Convent in the neighborhood of the city of Washington is a study of religious life that cannot fail to deeply interest all Catholic readers, and prove instructive to Protestants also.

The Visitation convent Georgetown may be described in word as being the Ursuline Convent Quebec in Canada, although perhaps not so rich in association with the heroic age of warfare in North America.

The annals of the Georgetown Convent cannot of course be touched upon without recalling the entrance to the monastic life of Sister Mary Austin Barber, a young woman of 28 and the mother of five children, when she went into the convent. Her husband Rev. Virgil Barber was an Episcopalian minister and was converted to the true faith by reading the life of St. Francis Xavier.

The annals of the community since form indeed a story of courage, but it is to the extraordinary circumstances leading up to its foundation that general interest must attach.

Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop have performed the duty together of writing with admirable literary skill, and they have imparted to their work throughout a spiritual color typical of the Order to which these devoted nuns belong.

THE CONVENT GIRLS' PRAYERS:

A Complete Manual of Devotions for Church, School and Home. Compiled by a Religious: Montreal and Toronto, D. & J. Sadlier & Co.

A prayer book offered specially to our young girls when it is a really beautiful offering is something to write pleasantly about. The prayer book which a pious-souled woman has made the companion of her life is a precious possession.

He beheld—whether in a dream or in a waking trance we do not know—a long procession of religious women headed by St. Anne de Chantal and clad in a peculiar costume which he afterwards learned was the prescribed "habit" or dress of the Visitation order.

The details of this spiritual disclosure as Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop happily call it, remained fixed in Father Neale's memory, though enough to what they signified he could not even guess.

A most interesting chapter is devoted to the foundations of the Visitation Order in Savoy and France by St. Francis de Sales and St. Jane de Chantal. It is a story of both saints are also given with great attention to detail.

to this time it is a rather strange fact that Father Neale knew little or nothing of the Order which he was determined to establish. He had never seen their rules or their costume—except in his vision. Provisionally a Carmelite habit had been adopted, but at last one day, in a package of devotional objects which came from Europe, a lithograph of St. Jane de Chantal was discovered.

says St. Francis de Sales, "to be well dressed, but without pomp or affectation."

No young girl could have put into her hands by relative or friend a manual of devotions more certain to be prized than this. The book has the imprimatur of Edwardus, Car., Arch., Maritima opolitana.

STORIES OF THE PROMISES. and other Tales. By Mrs. M. A. Sadler and her daughters. Montreal and Toronto, D. & J. Sadlier & Co.

Mrs. Sadler and her daughters are too well known by name to all readers of Catholic literature in Canada to need comment on these collected short stories originally contributed to the Canadian Review of the Sacred Heart.

A LIFE SAVED BY TAKING AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. "Several years ago, I caught a severe cold, attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest night or day. The doctor pronounced my case hopeless. A friend learning of my trouble, sent me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured, and I believe I have never since been troubled with a cold. W. H. WARD, 8 Quincy Ave., Lowell, Mass."
