

TELEGRAPHERS UP ON BETTING CASE

Tell How Early Information on Horse Racing Was Received.

Stories or how "fashes" regarding the results of horse races before the results had been officially passed, were received over the G. N. W. wires by operators, were told yesterday afternoon in the general sessions, when the trial of George L. Thompson and Thomas Taylor, G.N.W. telegraph operators, was commenced. The charge laid was the transmitting and receiving of betting information over the wires contrary to the criminal code. They were represented by P. J. Hughes.

The first witness called was W. J. Smart, a telegrapher for the stock-broking firm of Stoneham & Co. He said he had had several conversations over the telephone with Thompson about a month ago, who wanted to know if he (Smart) would get up a quick bet with him. Smart said he told him he did not know anyone, but would ask the boy if he did. The boy, however, did not know anyone the whole thing fell thru.

"What did he mean by a quick one?" asked Crown Attorney Greer. "He might have meant when the race was over," answered witness. "I object to that," interrupted Mr. Hughes.

In answer to a question put by Judge Winchester, Smart said the terms "fast" and "quick one" were technical terms relating to the first horse that passed the wire before it was made official by the judge. He added that a chance had to be taken as the horse might be disqualified afterwards.

"In other words it means to get a bet on a supposed winner before the result is posted," asked Attorney Greer. "Yes," replied witness.

Head Office Operator. Max Benson, a G. N. W. head office operator, one of the men with whom the accused were alleged to have conspired, was next called. He said Taylor was an operator and Thompson had charge of the wires. Notes had often been handed to him by Taylor to be sent to operator B, a man named Butler, at Detroit.

"What were those notes?" asked Mr. Greer. "They referred to horses," answered Benson. "Continuing," he said Thompson had told him that Ryan and his brother had been cut in, and that he (Benson) would have nothing to do but just to send them to R. B. (Ryan) and B. O. Asked if he could remember any of the notes, the witness said that one from Taylor to Butler at Detroit read, "Try and get some up today if it comes thru."

"What did Taylor ask you to send those notes for?" asked Judge Winchester. "As a favor. He made no proposition to me." "He gave you some explanation?" asked Mr. Greer. "Witness," he said they were going to bet on it."

Line of Defense. Frank Hughes, counsel for the accused, suggested that the line of defense would rest on a plea that the telegraph company had been transmitting such messages for years, and that his clients being employees of the company, were not the parties against whom the charge should be laid.

His Honor was of the opinion that the fact that the company was not charged and also that they were not employed to do what was charged could hardly be called a ground of defense, but Mr. Hughes stated he was prepared to go on if the company would produce certain messages which had been transmitted both before and after the discharge of the accused.

Mr. Crowell, the G.N.W. representative, raised an objection, and said they could not be produced in six months. Judge Winchester, however, stated emphatically that they would have to be produced within ten hours. The case is proceeding.

"SERVICE"

And by that word we mean plumbing service. SERVICE is the last word of our name—and it's the last work, in SERVICE. When we promise a thing you can count it done—and WELL DONE. Done by expert plumbers—men who know every detail of their work. We serve people in all parts of the city. It's as easy for us to answer your call from the extreme parts of the city as it is to do a job for our nearest neighbor.

EXEMPTIONS GRANTED TO ONLY TWO MEN

Judge Morson presided at a Toronto exemption tribunal yesterday and refused exemption to 25 men, these including the case of an employee of the hydro-electric, who was allowed 30 days' grace so that he may aid in the completing of some of the commission's contracts. Exemptions from military service were granted two men, one of these, Frank Abbott, having had two brothers killed in action, one more who had lost a hand and still another serving in the trenches. G. C. Craik, 114 Bellevue avenue, a member of the Plymouth Brethren, was refused exemption, Judge Morson saying "Don't waste my time on sympathetic objections." Chief Justice Duff has settled that question.

Exemption Refused. P. P. Loyd, 265 Lansdale avenue; William Bulcher, 278 Jarvis street; H. A. Greenan, 64 St. Lawrence street; J. M. Gould, 85 Brunswick avenue; Hugh MacDonnell, 1000 Bay street; John Scott, 48 Alexander street; J. D. Hamilton, 431 Bathurst street; A. V. Whan, 47 St. Clair Gardens; G. C. Hocking, 32 Walker avenue; Thomas Davies, 72 Victor avenue; H. Wilmott, 10 Lytton boulevard; W. Harris, 212 Grace street; Norman McCulloch, 75 Gladstone avenue; C. L. Nicholson, 119 Concord avenue (30 days' grace); P. Davis, 592 Shaw street; D. T. Samuels, 949 Shaw street; W. M. Cowells, 570 College street; A. S. Ferner, 640 Bathurst street; W. R. MacDonald, 152 Sunnyside avenue; W. W. Desjardis, 1537 West Block street; Extension Granted. A. L. Shelgrove, 126 Roxborough street, June 16; Frank Abbott, 147 Woburn avenue.

RARE COLLECTION OF CAMERA PORTRAITS. Seldom is such a rare collection of camera portraits on view as those seen at the Prince George yesterday afternoon, the exhibitor being Mrs. Minna Keene, F.R.P.S., a member of the London Salon. The pictures included many taken by the artist in England and South Africa, besides a number of well-known people of local prominence.

The methods of grouping and posing were features of the exhibits, the arrangement in many instances being such as to give the portraits the appearance of groups by the old masters. This was very conspicuous in a trio of figures—the mother and babe from work; also in the group seated about the tea table. "Threading the Needle," representing an old lady in an act of trying to insert the thread, was one of the most realistic of a very realistic collection.

Groups of African women, including that of the Zulu mother with her babe packed away comfortably at her back, were in a special section, and another of children, among which was a portrait of the infant son of Guy Drummond, evoked much interest. African plants were shown in much perfection of detail, the protea, because of its novelty, finding many admirers. Still another group showing the dissemination of the seed of the flowers, found many students, and that his clients being employees of the company, were not the parties against whom the charge should be laid.

Among local portraits were those of Lady Hendrie, Lady Hearst, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, Mrs. Huxford, Miss Margaret MacMurphy, Dr. Margaret Patterson, Mrs. VanKoughnet, Mrs. Wainwright and others. The collection in charge of Mrs. Edmund Bristol, a musical program was given during the afternoon and tea was served. Mrs. VanKoughnet and Mrs. H. S. Joseph's being among the hostesses. The proceeds are for the Queen Mary silver jubilee.

MANY AT SOLEMN TRIDUUM. St. Joseph's Convent Crowded for Closing Exercises. Many extra seats were placed in the spacious chapel of St. Joseph's Convent last night, yet there was not sufficient accommodation for the hundreds of women who attended the closing exercises of the Solemn Tridium, conducted by Rev. R. McBrady, under the united auspices of St. Joseph's College Alumnae Association and of Loreto Abbey for the successful issue of the war and for the soldiers.

The closing sermon was an exposition of the consoling doctrine of the communion of saints and an eloquent appeal to turn to the Lord that the great endowments of faith and piety may have exercise in the soul. Benediction of the blessed sacrament was preceded by the singing of the Ave Maria by Miss Buckley. The altar was beautifully decorated with lights, roses and gladioli. The papal benediction was given at the close.

DEALERS UNDER LICENSE. "As far as we can we are getting every day under license," said Mr. Thomson, "so that we can keep a check on them. We know these men are as loyal as anyone else." The desire of the board was not to disrupt business, and to date everyone had given fullest co-operation.

The questioning of rationing the homes had been discussed, and it was proposed to ask each province to call a committee together and draft a set of regulations. It was felt that Canada did not want any direct orders, but rather a standard for each province to live up to. "And we know full well the people will loyally live up to it," he added.

"The conservation of wheat is the most important question we have to face today. We must supply Great Britain and her allies between now and July 1, and we know you will do it. We have food enough to spare, and we are in this war to the finish. The people will help.

Figures Prove Saving. Conservation to date had amounted in wheat to 62 per cent, more than the average for the three years preceding the war, and by the end of July 1 40 per cent. more would have been shipped than the average for the three years preceding. Pork shipments had increased since the war started over the same average by 172,000,000 lbs., beef by 72,000,000 lbs., butter by 12,000,000 lbs., cheese by 30,000,000 lbs., eggs by 15,000,000 dozen and wheat and flour by 35,000,000 bushels.

"Canada must save more beef. As far as pork is concerned, the shipments in March, 1918, were twice that of 1917 and three times that of 1912." The people said there was no use of saving, it was foolishness—a mistaken notion.

"What we want is volunteer efficiency," said Mr. Thomson. "There are many things we've got to do." While there had been little criticism, there were people who said the food board was costing a lot of money and not doing very good. The total cost of the food board to date had been only $57,480.30. This was because of the volunteers who had undertaken the various activities.

HELP OF PROVINCES TO DRAW UP RULES IN FOOD RATIONING

H. B. Thomson, Head of Food Board, Tells of Scheme Now on Hand.

ALLIES REQUIRE MORE Volunteer Effort, However, He Points Out, is What is Wanted Most of All.

A huge drawing of a mother and her child sitting at the breakfast table, with an inset showing soldiers on the battle line, and bearing these words: "Remember, we must feed Dad, too," served to remind the large audience which almost filled Massey Hall last night of the purpose of the meeting. Placed in conspicuous positions throughout the hall were banners which gave this warning: "Save food or starve."

The audience, composed largely of women, many of whom have ere this given tangible evidence of their sympathy by sending their sons, husbands or brothers to the fighting line, was keen to learn by what means practical economy could be practised and the danger of leaving the men at the front without food minimized.

Thus it was that H. B. Thomson, chairman of the Canada Food Board, spoke to the effect that however great have been the sacrifices in the past it is only necessary to point the way to further duties and a loyal and devoted community will eagerly follow that path. It was not surprising then that the assembly applauded when the announcement was made that each province is to be asked to draft regulations by which each home will be placed on rations. And when the speaker said that already 4,750,000 people, mostly women and children, had starved to death in Europe, that four out of every five loaves of bread which Great Britain consumes must cross the ocean; that Canadians had been eating a proportion of nine bushels of wheat per head as compared with three for other countries; and that Canada and the United States must supply the bulk of the food that England and the allies must have, there was a new appreciation of actual conditions and a new determination to "play the game."

Shoulder to Shoulder. Sir William Hearst, chairman, referred to the sacrifices being made by the men composing the Canadian corps at the front. The statement that men were needed more than food did not lessen the importance of production but rather showed an even greater need for the men. "The men are willing to obey every command even tho' it means death, surely we at home can stand shoulder to shoulder and show by our sacrifices that we are people not afraid to enter in order that justice and truth may prevail on this earth," he said.

Eloquent praise for the gallant Canadians now holding the line was given, and the reply of Sir Arthur Currie in recognition of the patriotic resolution of the last session of the legislature was read. In part the Canadian commander said: "The days to come will undoubtedly demand the fullest measure of sacrifice not only from the troops but from all the people at home and in order to achieve victory the full resources of the empire, both in men and resources, must be thrown in. It is, therefore, a source of the greatest encouragement and satisfaction and we are fully alive to their full part towards the attaining of the great result."

Await Further Orders. Sir Robert Falconer, in introducing Mr. Thomson, said the men who had gone overseas had done so freely, and the people at home had given freely of their substance. The last three years had seen many changes—control and now the country only awaited further orders.

Mr. Thomson should be received in the right attitude and then his commission would mean success, he said. Prolonged applause greeted the speaker of the evening. Toronto had measured to well and had given loyal support to every call he said.

Dealers Under License. "As far as we can we are getting every day under license," said Mr. Thomson, "so that we can keep a check on them. We know these men are as loyal as anyone else." The desire of the board was not to disrupt business, and to date everyone had given fullest co-operation.

The questioning of rationing the homes had been discussed, and it was proposed to ask each province to call a committee together and draft a set of regulations. Rev. Peter Bryce moved a resolution of support and a vote of thanks to Mr. Thomson, and it was seconded by Hugh Blair, the audience signifying approval by applause. The Motion picture giving practical lessons in food conservation were shown, and during the program the band of the 4th Highlanders under Lieut. John Slater rendered patriotic selections.

TO DRCP FROM BALLOON.

Harry Melville Will Land With Help of Parachute.

Harry Melville, Toronto's popular aviator and aeronaut, one day last week called upon Manager Hubbard of Scarborough Beach with the intention of renewing his business acquaintance, and after an interview Mr. Melville explained, of course, some of his flying experiences in the south. Manager Hubbard stated that while all Melville's experiences were no doubt exciting enough, he did not think Melville still had the nerve to sit on the small trapeze base of a parachute and jump from a balloon at a height of 2000 or 3000 feet, as he did at Scarborough Beach in the season of 1914. Melville offered to wager that he still had enough nerve left to do it. A car was sent in for an auto, a party arranged and a motor speeded to Scarborough Beach. After getting over the ground a suitable location was selected, the wagon effected, and on Saturday, May 18, Melville will have a chance to prove to a parachute and jump from a balloon at a height of about 50 feet in diameter and 75 feet in height, which is almost large enough to carry two passengers. However, Melville being a veteran at this business, he, no doubt, will give Scarborough Beach Company a run for their money.

Keen interest is spreading rapidly, and it is expected a large crowd will be on hand to see the winner of the stake.

Anniversary of the Passing Of Children's Protection Act. Celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the passing of the Children's Protection Act, which occurred May 18, 1893, will be observed, he observed in the parliament hall, although the ceremonies may be postponed for a week or two owing to a conference of some of the principals, among whom is Sir John Gibson, provincial secretary at the time of the passing of the act and now overseas on government business. Rev. W. M. H. Quintermaine, honorary secretary, treasurer of the association of Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, had a conference yesterday in regard to the proposed event. On this occasion two presentations will be made, one to Sir John Gibson and one to J. J. Kelso, who has been superintendent of the department of neglected children of Ontario since 1893.

AUSTRIAN ARRESTED. Charged with a breach of the Immigration Act, Controk Protzek, an Austrian living at 72 Edward street, was taken into custody by the police last night. He will go before a magistrate this morning.

BUILDING PERMITS. Building permits issued yesterday amounted to $28,300, and of this total, there was one permit for $8000 for a two-story brick dwelling on Norman avenue, another for $3500, and two for $6000. Other permits ranged from $700 to $25. In all 15 permits were issued.

REMAINED FOR SENTENCE. In the general sessions yesterday afternoon, Wm. Fleming of 378 Gilmour street, was found guilty of theft and receiving and was remanded for sentence until for the Wm. Townshend Co. Mervin and Dundas streets, West Toronto, and it is charged that he delivered C.O.D. orders and received about $24 for same, which he failed to return to the company.
