The President Delivers a Brilliant Address of Welcome— Other Items. In closing, the Grand President thanked her co-workers in office for their efficient work and ready sympathy scooled. She hoped wise choice would be made of officers for the ensuing two years.

The Ladies' Auxiliary, or, as officially known, the Ladies' Society of the Brother-hood of Locomotive Firemen, held a session in the morning in the Auditorium. The president, Mrs. J. A. Leach, of Sedmin, Personal Chats. in the morning in the Auditorium. The presentent, Mrs. J. A. Leach, of Sedatia, Missouri, occupied the chair. The purpose of the auxiliary is to assist and encourage the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen in their entire work and ambition, and to elevate the social and intellectual standing of both organizations. Their membership aggregates 1530, with 90 lodges, a large increase over the last convention, when their membership was only 877. This is the fourth biennial convention of the Ladies Auxiliary. Their present officers are: Mrs. Moore, Grand Secretary, Stratford. The society has $1500 in the treasury, and the members carry an insurance of $100 each.

On the Twisting Trolley.

Last night a string of the Toronto Railway Company's electric cars, marked "Private," and gaily lighted in colors, took the delegates and visitors for a moonlight trip over the city. One could see the garb of New York and other states, and hear the different intonations of speech, the enquiring eye and the interrogatory tongue which marked the stranger, and en route citizens saw the gay procession and heard the cry, "What's the matter with Toronto?" and the answer, "It's all right!"

The crowd was numerous, enthusiastic and composed of hubbys and wives, brothers and sisters, who are simply out for a good time, and are evidently having it. A great many visitors landed in Toronto expecting to see busses and wild Indians, a postofice where plug tobacco was to be had in barter, and a flock of wild-eyed Canucks, who would gaze at them in surprise; but they like Toronto, only they don't on Sunday, which is not strange, even in a stranger. are familiar to her and so many new ones, and trusts that every delegate has with her somethins for the good of Grand Lodge and of the society, which she represents. Changes are observable in the past two years. Grand Lodge officers have not been free from cares and difficulties, but it has always been the endeavor to adjust everything to the satisfaction of all. Past Grand Vice-President Sister Groner is mentioned as being responsible for the rapid growth of the order at Huntington, Ind. Costume Section.

In the mantle and costume section are shown all the newest and up-to-date garments, in jackets, capes and wraps, all personally selected in the fashion centres of Berlin, Paris and London. Jackets are shown in a variety of c'oths, such as whitpcord, beaver, cheviot and covert cloth, many being handsomely lined with fancy silks, some beautifully trimmed with braid and others with such furs as sable, Peas'an lamb, thibet, etc. Many rich plush garments are shown, both jackets and capes some elaborately trimmed with passenneterie and rich furs, and best of vil, marked at reasonable prices. A handsome long evening wrap in pearl grey ladies' cloth, lined throughout with a contrasting slade of silk, was a garment much admired.

Dr. Sutherland then ryoke at some length and explained that what the conference needed was a strong deliverance and that was not in the resolution before them. He objected to the tendency of to-day to say what was not and what was sin, and said that the Methodist Church was drifting in this respect towards Romanism.

The conference was so divided that the report was returned to the committee.
