QUEEN VICTORIA.

"Queen's Birthday" is still a factor in the lives of Canadians. Long may it be. The woman whom it commemorates is one of the great figures of history; partly because of her public career rich in patriotism and devotion to duty; partly because of her time and era; partly because of her domestic virtues and the blamelessness of her life. Only Queen Victoria is and will be an everlasting answer to the jibe "only a woman."

QUEEN'S WEATHER.

Saturday was King Sol's day as well as King's Plate day. It is many a long day since Old Sol reigned with such warmth and vigor. He seemed to be making up for overtime spent behind the dark clouds of a late spring. Saturday he started in early to make his presence felt, and as if afraid to overreach himself he allowed his side-partner a gentle cooling breeze to help in making the day the banner one up to date in this year of grace.

One of the best friends we have is Old Sol, and Saturday, and Sunday, too, he was the friend of everyone. Nature in and around this city seemed to respond to his cheery greeting. The grass in the parks, lovely in its coat of velvety green, sprinkled with the gold of the dandelions, was a delight to the eye of the child and the younger alike. Everywhere the bursting rays of the sun seemed to expand into fulness of form and beauty of color the drooping flowers of the garden and wood, making them objects of delight to the poor as well as the opulent.

How Old Sol did beam on the Woodbine course and enclosure! He smiled and set off the colors of the rainbow in the costumes such as he only can. Even the losers never lost their good spirits, for the sun seemed to freshen everybody as well as the horses who champed at the bits, fretful to get away. Old Sol was present, too, with the thousands who left by rail and boat for the holiday, he was with the children of the squalid slums, he eased the cough of the sufferer in the sanitariums of the outskirts, he pleased the railway and steamboat men, he revived business, he caused the farmer to rejoice and be glad, he made the pessimist of the stock market go way back and sit down. Nothing straightens out the kinks in humanity so quickly and as well as does a "solar plexus" from the heavens.

THE ONE BEST MAN.

Of all the men running in Toronto W. K. McNaught is the one most deserving the unqualified support of the electors. He has been loyal to the city, to its interests, to public ownership, above all to public ownership as applied to Niagara power. Every man in North Toronto ought to give one of his votes to Mr. McNaught.

NOT PANNING OUT.

Who invented the "A" class and "B" class as applied to the representation of Toronto in the Ontario Legislature? They say its one object was to ensure the certain election of the then sitting members who were to be the big game, were to go into the "A" class as superior mortals, were to be elected by acclamation inasmuch as no "freshman" would dare to enter above "Class B"; now the speculative politicians are busy making combinations and books that figure out a certain defeat for the men on the "Class A" pedestal! This would be a holist-with-his-own-petard!

IMPROPERLY MARKED BALLOTS. In defence of Mr. Aylesworth's proposal to legalize improperly marked ballots, the extraordinary plea is made that it was intended to prevent the "possibility of a deputy returning officer spoiling a ballot by putting a distinguishing mark on it, either deliberately or otherwise." This ingenious explanation is not convincing and in any even no regulation capable of easy and fair abuse ought to affect the absolute secrecy of the ballot. If the minister of justice is desirous of preventing marks being improperly placed on ballot papers by dishonest officials, let him propose the adoption of the British system, which requires the voter, after marking his ballot paper, to fold it up so as to show the official stamp on the back of the folded paper, and thereafter to deposit the latter in the box with his own hand. The practice of handing marked ballot papers to the presiding officer is fruitful of abuse and is quite unnecessary.

VOTE FOR CHEAP POWER.

Provincial Liberals, from their leader downwards, carefully refrain from giving any indication of their policy regarding cheap Niagara power. This is a curious attitude to assume towards the leading issue of the present election, all the more so because the electors have repeatedly been assured that the party as a whole trusts the people and stands for public rights. This assurance, it is true, does not come from any responsible source. It is given by the party organ whose peculiar province it is to declare loyalty to public and provincial rights, while continuing to urge that unbounded confidence be placed in political leaders who are content in nothing but encroaching and justifying encroachments upon them.

Premier Whitney's power policy holds the field. From the moment of its first announcement it has been steadily adhered to by the government and the plenty of inconsistent criticism has been poured upon it by the provincial opposition, no alternative policy ever been formulated. If cheap electric power is in the interest of the people, as it certainly is, the government desires to be supported in making it a practical success. Premier Whitney and his colleagues are pledged to carry it thru. Mr. A. G. MacKay and the candidates of his party not only refuse information regarding their own position, but remain silent when, from their platforms, it is ridiculed and denounced. If the people of Ontario are in earnest about cheap power and about the conservation of the provincial resources and utilities, they will return the only government that has made a serious and honest attempt to protect public rights.

SALVAGE CORPS WORKED WELL.

Prevented Quite a Bit of Loss at Furniture Firm Fire.

An accurate estimate of the damage sustained by the O'Malley furniture firm at Queen-street and the Avenue, has not yet been made, but it is expected that the work of the salvage corps will be found to have been very effective in keeping it down. Credit is due Capt. W. J. Smith of truck one at five headquarters, of which the salvage corps is an adjunct. The truck does not respond to box 42, which called out the western section, but as soon as Capt. Smith learned where the blaze was he hurried the salvage wagon to the scene and a large amount of furniture was quickly covered with tarpaulins. The blaze was a stubborn one and three firemen were laid out for a while by the smoke.

Yesterday's fire was: 2.25 p.m. box 132, frame shed in rear of 9 New-street, damage $5.

3.30 p.m., still alarm to hose four and truck one, roof at 23 Eastern-avenue, damage $15.

6.18 p.m., still alarm to hose 15 and truck six, curtains in basement at 150 Dowling-avenue, occupied by Rev. B. Bryan, damage $5.

Closing Service at Massey Hall. A splendid audience attended the closing meeting of the series of popular religious services that have been held the last five months in Massey Hall. The views of Victoria and the King and members of the royal family aroused the enthusiasm of the vastest of Mr. Wilkinson paid an eloquent tribute to the late Queen. A splendid finale to a series of popular religious services. Mr. Wilkinson, who has directed them, announced that they would be resumed next winter on a much larger scale, as this season was only an experiment. He thanked the people and press for their patronage, and the users and all who had assisted in making the services a personal pleasure and profit.

PORTUGUESE PUMMELED.

Politicians Meet in Lobby and Fight It Out.

LISBON, May 23.—Former Minister of Finance Martinez Carvalho, who on Wednesday last challenged Alfonso Costa, one of the Republican leaders in the chamber of deputies, to a duel, because Costa in a speech declared that Francoist ministers had abandoned every shred of political and private honor when they signed the decree of Jan. 31, yesterday met Costa in the lobby of the chamber, and the two men immediately exchanged blows. They pummeled each other vigorously for several minutes, and the spectacle was only ended by the intervention of other deputies. Both men bore numerous marks of the fray. Later Senator Costa had another altercation in the lobby of the chamber with Senator Chagas, editor of the Diario Illustrado.

WHAT GAMBLING IS AND WHAT IT DOES

Canon Cody Takes a Subject for Sermon That is of General Interest.

A clear-cut, practical address on the ill of gambling was delivered by Canon Cody in St. Paul's church yesterday morning. There were, he said, many Scriptural commands which had application to gambling, such as "Love of money is the root of many kinds of evil," "Be ye kind one to another," "If any man will not work neither shall he eat." The betting and gambling evil was one that had grown to colossal proportions. It was not the sport simply of a wealthy few, but was an evil that attacked all classes of society and was the twin sister of drunkenness. It was not spontaneous, but organized, and was encouraged by the great army of bookmakers and persons who made up the "talent," so-called. The bookmakers went from city to city, encouraging the wage-earner to risk his money and to make a fool of himself by parting himself from his hard-earned money. It was said on good authority that yearly $25,000,000 was lost to the hazard by the wage-earning class of Great Britain.

Canon Cody quoted Lord Beaconsfield as having said that betting was an engine of moral demoralization. The late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman had given the opinion that betting and gambling came next to drunkenness, in the curse brought on society. Governor Hughes was fighting a magnificent fight to have race-track gambling made a criminal offence, and no doubt such a law would be done away if there were no gambling.

A law officer of the crown in Toronto had told him that half the criminal cases would be done away if there were no gambling.

Many respectable people attended merely to see the races, but others, not of the same class morally, came from the different United States cities, not for their health, but for what they called a "make out of it." One reason for public apathy as to the evil was that it had the outward countenance of the civil government, and the reason why reasonably good people indulged in it at times was that they didn't think clearly what it meant. In all commerce there was an element of chance, and it was almost impossible to draw a hard and fast line between legitimate and illegitimate speculation. The transferring of stock was the legitimate work of the stock exchange, while the whole business of gambling, the element of chance bulked largely.

A Definition. Gambling was determination of the ownership of property by an appeal to chance. It was a stake upon chance for gain without labor, and was a perversion of the natural instinct of human nature, which instincts might not be wrong in themselves. One was the instinct of adventure, the desire of a man to put himself against the forces of nature. Another was a natural instinct for excitement, for something that would give him a thrill. The instincts of the human mind were not wrong in themselves, but they were not to be used for the purpose of making money. The desire for money was a natural desire, but money should be fairly earned. The temptation to secure an easy way to wealth was, however, extremely strong.

The influence of gambling upon character was destructive. No skill was involved in betting upon a race, and save in the inner circle, no one knew which horse would win. Reason and judgment were laid aside, and the bettor gave himself up to his emotions and passions, literally killing the higher elements of his nature. Gambling threatened the disintegration of society. The gambler sought to gain by someone else's loss, which was opposed to all true commerce whereby all parties were benefited. All the good old laws of hospitality were violated by a host who won money from his guests at bridge.
