SELINA FOLLOWS THE CROWD

AR be it from me to be a grafter, but bein' a great student of the drama, both silent and otherwise, I hiked out to feed today, and mistakin' a hour for a rubber neck, I stretched it into a whole afternoon, and on the first turn took in my favorite indoor sport—the fashion show, which is equivalent to modern drama. With prices shot so high I ain't been able to pull down enough change to slant a real show this winter. I spotted the "spring has come" ads. and considerin' it a bid I hiked into one of the big stores and was some gleeful' to flind myself on the inside without gettin' the gate, listenin' to sweet musics and lampin' a show in which "FIGURED" (!!) willowy young dames clad in glad raiment, portrayin' to the best of their ability the role of the idle rich. There was sweetle peach blondes—and I might say in passin', that a pill behind me said that blondes were made so that brunettes might be appreclated properly. I dunno!

But, say! when it come to steppin' out, them models shore showed me rcd. You know yourself what a lotta experience I've had down to the paint factory. When I was a mere boy I posed for baby food posters, and ever since then I've tot around studios, watchin' buds bust on trees while some artist guy painted my face, 'n' everything, and once I sat watchin' a old man take the receiver off of his telephone and GET HIS NUMBER. I've had some experience in posing, all right, but, say! when it comes to draggin' one foot after the other and shootin' the merry glance to the gallery, and WEARIN' CLOTHES!! I'm about as green as a cotton umbrella or a rabbi's dress suit.

Who says this town ain't got local color? I'll say it has,
