GRANDE LIGNE.

As already intimated the old station has this year attracted and almost monopolized the attention of the friends of the Mission. In the beginning of the year the church and congregation were still under the influence of the remarkable revival of the preceding year. Early in the spring the death of the old devoted missionary, Miss Jonte, was deeply felt by all the French Protestants, who all respected and loved her. At the end of April the successful examinations in the Institute drew a goodly number of friends, of one of whom we give the testimony below. Then the association of the churches in connection with the Mission, and the dedication of the Feller Institute already related, and finally the death of the last one of the two founders of the Mission, the beloved Mr. Roussy, all combined to centre interest at this station.

SIR,—The school year of the Feller Institute at Grande Ligne closed on the 28th of April with a public examination and exhibition. A written examination of a thorough character was passed previous, and the results exposed for inspection by the visitors. The students presented a fine appearance, and acquitted themselves in a way that did credit to their own diligence and the faithfulness of their teachers. The examination in Greek, Latin, second year geometry, first English and French classes, was conducted by Mons. Eugene Lafleur, B.A., B.C.L. The classes in algebra and third year geometry were examined by Mr. Parent, student of McGill College. The Principal, Mr. Roux, aided by the teachers, took charge of the other classes. It may be proper to say here that the teachers of the past winter, besides the Principal, Mr. Roux, and Madame Roux, were Miss Robbins, English and mathematics; Miss Kinsman, music and singing, both of Vermont; Miss Vadenais, household work and elementary branches; and Mr. Massé, French and mathematics.

The exercises of the day consisted of music by the pupils, vive voce examination, declamations and remarks at the close by the examiners, visitors and officers of the institution. Touching and impressive were the words spoken by the reverend and venerable pastor, L. Roussy. Among
