Imperialism Abandoned.

From La Presse, Montreal.

LONDON, June 12.—The Tory press of England has undertaken a campaign against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who is considered disloyal, because he has squarely refused to support all the propositions tending to restrain the autonomy of the colonies. Thanks to the attitude of the first minister of Canada, all the imperialistic proposals have been abandoned, and the autonomy of the colonies has been affirmed more explicitly than ever.

Mr. Asquith, the first minister of England, is of the same opinion as Sir Wilfrid, and it is this which explains the ill-humor of the Tory journals which reproduce with joy the attacks of The Witness and The Winnipeg Free Press, and of other organs which seem ready to sacrifice everything for Downing-street, something which few Canadians approve.

Yankee Thugs Beat Up Detective Wm. Wallace Seriously Hurt Officer in Pawn Shop

Were About to Dispose of Booty From Shopbreakings in Cambridge, Mass., When Detective Single Handed, Attempted to Make An Arrest.

Three badly wanted American thugs are in custody, and Detective William Wallace of headquarters staff is in St. Michael's Hospital in a critical condition from a terrific beating received at the hands of the trio after a plucky fight of 15 minutes, when he attempted, single-handed, to arrest two of them in a York-street pawnshop, where they were attempting to dispose of the booty from two burglaries committed by them a few weeks ago in Cambridge, Mass.

Wallace entered S. Helpert's pawnshop at 167 York-street at noon Saturday. There he found two men trying to dispose of a quantity of rings, pins and other jewelry. He questioned them as to how they had come by such stuff and was told to mind his own business. The men told him that he could not arrest them without a warrant, whereupon he laid his hand upon one of them, a stocky young man with sandy hair and complexion.

The man showed fight and indicated by the way that he handled himself that he knew more than a little about fighting. He later turned out to be a combination veggie man and pugilist. Wallace, nevertheless, got his man down and seemed to be having the best of a strong battle, when the other man who had been in the shop ran out the back way, returning a moment later by the front door, accompanied by another man.

Set Upon Detective. These two set upon the detective, who was holding the other man down. They used not only their hands, but also their feet, kicking him about the head, face and ribs. Wallace turned to meet the addition of forces, but was soon beaten into insensibility. The trio then fled and made their way north to Adelaide-street, followed by the detective. Then they came upon Police- man Macdonald.

Detective's Injuries. Meanwhile Detective Wallace, who was in a semi-conscious condition, had been helped to headquarters by Henry Street St. Patrick-street, after Mrs. Helpert had done her best to wash and dress his wounds. He was covered with blood. He was removed to St. Michael's Hospital in the police ambulance, where it was found that there was a fracture of the bones of the skull which may extend to the skull.

North Toronto Annexation. Now is the time to complete the municipal integrity of Toronto by annexing North Toronto town. The town is anxious to come in, the city controllers seem favorable, no such opportunity will again present itself.

The Globe says the main question is a single fare on Yonge-street. It is not the question. The question is to get in North Toronto and for the city to take up the Yonge-street problem as a whole, and at the same time to go in immediately with the municipal system of tubes and surface railways, including a service on the two proposed streets parallel to upper Yonge-street running into the line on St. Clair-avenue.

Manager Fleming of the Street Railway is dead opposed to annexation because it means the immediate construction of the tubes and the municipal system. The Globe and The Star seem to accord with his views.

TOLD IN A MINUTE.

The Place—S. Helpert's pawnshop, 167 York-street. The Time—Saturday noon.

William J. Farrell, who started the fight with Detective Wallace, 21 years, pugilist on probation for assault in Massachusetts. George J. Farrell, 18 years. Victor Olsen, 20 years. All are charged with wounding Detective Wallace.

INJURED—Detective William Wallace, headquarters staff, at St. Michael's Hospital with broken cheek bones and possibly fracture of the skull condition serious.

A drawer at the back of the counter had been opened and a revolver and 22 jewelry and clothing found were the proceeds of two shopbreakings committed by them at Cambridge, Mass., four weeks ago.

On the same night they had entered J. Keenan's haberdashery store in Central-square and rifled the store. Then they entered M. Karmey's grocery and novelty store in Norfolk-street and robbed a showcase of jewelry and notions.

The men came to the city Saturday morning on the Steamer Kingston, from Port Charlotte.

James G. Wallace Candidate for N. Oxford Riding

Will Make Fourth Attempt to Add the Constituency to the Conservative Following in the Dominion House—Robert Lockhart Candidate for Local Legislature.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 17.—(Special.)—James G. Wallace, barrister, of this city, who has several times before contested what used to be the hopelessly Liberal riding of North Oxford, will again carry the Conservative standard at the forthcoming Dominion election.

Last year Woodstock Conservatives, owing to certain adverse circumstances, did not do their duty in the ratio to the excellent work done in the country or this riding would have been won from the Liberals. What used to be a Liberal majority of 2000, last year was brought down to 174. The meeting to-day gave every indication of the Liberal majority of 174 being wiped out.

The convention was a big one. The platform of the town hall contained more prominent Conservatives than used to attend the annual gathering and the hall was well filled.

Mr. Wallace's nomination was made unanimous on the first ballot and in accepting the position he said that July and August being slack months in his profession he proposed to spend the few vacation on the back concessions. The audience caught the enthusiasm and when meeting closed there was a "howl" from every corner that he would get out and make the coming fight a winning one.

Robert Lockhart, of Blandford, a prominent farmer, was selected to contest the riding for the local house. Addresses were delivered by Major Currie, M.P., of North Simcoe and Major Beattie, London.

BONES CRUSHED IN BRIDGE JUMP

William J. H. Black Throws Himself to Death From Howard Street Bridge—Letter From His Mother in Ireland Found on the Body.

William J. H. Black, aged 31, employe of the T. Eaton Co., and a boarder at 57 Parliament-street, jumped to death over the Howard-st. bridge at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Practically every bone in his body was broken. He landed on the roadway in the Rosedale Ravine. The man was quite dead when Charles Sage, a drug clerk, reached the spot where he lay.

His body in its flight struck the girders of the bridge and his boots were torn clean off. Several boys were playing baseball in the ravine and saw the body fall. Harry Boyce, 106 Rosedale-avenue, heard somebody shout, "You dam fool, get back!" and, looking up, saw Black jump from the railing of the bridge. Fred Stewart, 132 Rosedale-avenue, and Harry Pfeilau, 42 Sunnyside-street, were playing ball in the roadway when the suicide occurred. The body struck the ground within a few feet of Jimmy Buck of 141 1-2 Bleeker-street and Harold Ryan of 575 Sherbourne.

Black was an Irishman and had friends living on Margueretta-street. There was no money on him, but he had been working recently. In his pocket was a letter from his mother in Ireland, Chief Coroner Dr. Johnson was notified.

He has been despondent for some time, owing to being short of money. He borrowed a dollar from his landlady on Friday and a letter from his brother at Pittsburgh, Pa., was found on him, in which the brother asked for the return of a loan.

Weight of Opinion For Annexation Of North Toronto

The World made an effort on Saturday afternoon to get the views of the aldermen on the proposed annexation of North Toronto. It is understood that the board of control will recommend the step. It will be opposed by the corporation influences, which have already shown their hostility, and which do not wish to have the city involved with their franchise grabs. It is believed that the chief opposition on the council will be inspired by these interests.

Of the twenty aldermen very few are willing to state their views in advance. Ald. May, Chisholm and O'Neill are known to be opposed to annexation, but they are light weights and not expected to be progressive.

Ald. Graham, McMurrich and Pheasant were out of town. Others who could not be reached by telephone were Ald. Baird, Heyd, Hilton, McBrien and McCausland. Of these eight the majority will support annexation.

Ald. Dunn is the dean of the doubtful. He wants to investigate first, but is not likely to oppose the city's advance. Ald. Maguire is not opposed, "but you'll have to show me his way of putting it." Ald. Maguire can find any information he wants. We trust he will support the measure. Ald. McBride would not express any view till he heard the evidence, nor he knew anything about the question, he said. He was more disposed to favor the North Toronto than the Humber annexation. Ald. Yeomans remains also in doubt.

There remain four aldermen not afraid to make up their minds; up to date, in their information, and typically active and progressive men in council. Ald. McCarthy recognizes that annexation is a thing that should be done. "From my standpoint, it is the best thing we could undertake," he said. The details, he agreed, could be adjusted. Ald. Sweeney is favorably disposed to the measure. Ald. Rowland went up to see the town, with a prejudice against annexation, but came back convinced that "it will have to come." "If there done, 'twere best done quickly." Ald. Weston is entirely in sympathy with the proposal. The quality of the situation to-day and get any advantage there is. The city is 12 miles long and five wide. The extra two and a half will only make the width half the length. In think it is the city's chance," the alderman concluded. This is the general view of citizens.

WRECK OF INTERNATIONAL LIMITED

The pictures do not indicate that any great damage was done to the cars, tho the seats and inner fittings were badly twisted. It is remarkable that with the train going along at 65 miles an hour only one passenger of the 250 was killed. Most of them escaped without a scratch.

CORONATION ALL A GIGANTIC FARCE

Andrew Carnegie Calls the Ceremony Connected With the Crowning of the King a Foolish Display, a Ridiculous Waste of Money, and "a Last Final Fling."

SKIBO, Scotland, June 17.—(Special.)—Declaring that the coronation is all a gigantic farce and a sinful waste of money, Andrew Carnegie at Skibo Castle to-day expressed the belief that England will never stand for another. "Do you think I would leave this for London on coronation day?" asked the laird. "Not much. I don't know if there will ever be another coronation, but I don't believe England will ever stand for another foolish display such as this. The people will gradually wake up to all such nonsense. The investiture of the Prince of Wales with the Order of the Garter is another old custom which is simply ridiculous. Of course, England always has had coronations, and the saying is, 'England never changes anything,' but I believe they are making such a nuisance of this one that it will prove a last, final fling."

Brahmin Shot British Official Murder Committed a Revenge for Englishman's Activity in Prosecuting Strikers—Assassin Succeeded.

TRICHINOPOLY, British India, June 17.—Robert William D. Ashe, British collector for the maritime district of Tinnevely, was assassinated to-day by a Brahmin attorney, who then committed suicide. With his wife, Ashe was sitting in a car of a railway train at Maniyachi, when the Brahmin approached and, without a word, shot the collector dead. Ashe conducted the trial of the Tutchinri rioters last year and his murder is attributed to revenge.

HIS LAST BATTLE

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is coming home from London a tired man, with reduced physical energy. The London trip has not agreed with him in any sense. It is not likely he will ever go back; he went this time against his inclinations. But he is hastening home to take up the political fight, for fight it is, and an election before the snow comes. He is more than dissatisfied with those colleagues of his who persuaded him out of his determination to go, to the country shortly after he had launched his reciprocity deal. George Graham was the most pronounced against an election. Now it turns out that Sir Wilfrid was right; that the chances grow less bright as time advances. He is returning to Canada to make his last stand before Canadians.

SIXTY THOUSAND MARCHED IN SUFFRAGETTE PROCESSION

Line-up Extended for Five Miles and Was the Greatest Demonstration of Women in Support of the Suffrage Movement the World Has Ever Seen.

LONDON, June 17.—The coronation procession of suffragettes, which traversed the streets of London this evening prior to the meeting at Albert Hall was probably justly described by "General" Mrs. Drummond, as "the greatest procession of women in support of the suffrage movement that the world ever has seen."

BRILLIANT SOCIETY EVENT TOO MUCH EVEN FOR REPORTER

And He Bankrupts the Dictionary in a Vain Attempt to Describe the "Bewilderingly Beautiful Spectacle" at a "Dazzlingly Brilliant" Coronation Costume Ball.

LONDON, June 17.—One of the most dazzling brilliant social functions of the season was the coronation costume ball of the Royalist Club at the Botanic Gardens last night. The charming grounds were beautifully illuminated, the trees and shrubs being studded with fifty thousand electric bulbs in various colors, forming a veritable picture of fairy land, while a magnificent

HEROIC NEGRO SAVES MANY LIVES

Colored Porter on Wrecked International Limited Risked His Life for the Passengers—Much Bigger Calamity Very Narrowly Averted.

NEWCASTLE, Ont., June 17.—(Special.)—The body of James Madill, who was crushed to death in yesterday's wreck here of the International Limited, was taken to Toronto on the noon train to-day, accompanied by his brother. A coroner's jury was last night sworn in by Coroner A. S. Tilley, and viewed the body in the station, after which the inquest was adjourned to resume here Friday, June 23.

In the intervening time a thorough examination into the circumstances attending the wreck will be made. The wrecking train from York arrived about 6 o'clock, and at 10 o'clock traffic was again in progress, a temporary track being laid all night. The wreckers and navies loaded and by morning two of the ditched cars and the engine were on the rails, fitted, of course, with new trucks. The work of clearing the way is proceeding with all possible haste, but it will be well if operations are finished by Sunday.

The body of Madill was covered with a tablecloth and lay two or three hours by the car that crushed his life. Dauphensis, the Frenchman, who was most seriously injured, was carried down the bank into a thicket, where first aid was administered. The passengers on the train displayed great presence of mind, which accounted for the tiny casualty list. The heroism shown by an unknown negro porter was spoken of in glowing terms also. Passengers state that with the first shock a number of the occupants of the third coach rushed for the doors, but were barred in their progress by the porter at his own great personal risk.

Rumors were in circulation this morning that a human leg had been discovered in the wreckage last evening, but they proved false. An idea of the closeness by which a much bigger calamity was avoided was gained when it was discovered that so close did the ill-fated train pass the No. 12 east-bound passenger train from Toronto that a rod was knocked from the side of the toppling rear coach of the International by the eastbound.

Laurier and the Imperial Conference.

This imperial conference, the first in its history, of a long series coming in the reign of King George V., has in its later sessions surpassed the earlier conferences in the quality and extent of the work it has accomplished. If disappointing to the impatient to anticipate what they have predetermined to be the course of the imperial evolution, the conference has certainly revealed a remarkable spirit of adaptability. The various discussions have all along been marked by earnest endeavor to find the line of least resistance and to secure the highest measure of practical co-operation. At no previous assembly of the imperial prime ministers and representatives have so pressing issues been so generally responsive to the call of closer union. The one discordant note has unfortunately been sounded by the premier of the Dominion of Canada.

Where the ministers of the motherland and the sister states have been receptive and eager in their efforts to strengthen the tie that holds the British peoples in an imperial band, reaching round the world from England to England again, the Dominion premier has chosen to assume the part of the indifferent, and even cynical, critic. The cold glitter of his rhetoric rather assisted than hindered the impression that Sir Wilfrid's heart was never really at the council board of the free British nations. Reciprocity and continentalism have dogged the premier like shadows across the ocean, have darkened his counsel and cooled his ancient enthusiasm for the cause of imperial union. Sir Wilfrid Laurier will not return to Canada quite as he left her shore. Suspicion that reciprocity would influence his attitude accompanied him to London, and suspicion is now merged in certain knowledge, for he has done this thing in the green of the Washington agreement, what will he do in the dry of it? Canadians will want to know his answer.

THE WORLD WILL BE THERE.

MR. W. H. Greenwood of The Toronto World, who has been in London for the past month, will have a seat in the Abbey at the coronation ceremony on Thursday next.
