ALL SIGNS INDICATE DEATH OF MR. BURNS

Aged Caretaker of Suspension Bridge Had Not Returned to Home Last Night and Hope is Given Up.

There seems to be little doubt that Robert Burns, the caretaker of the Suspension Bridge, was killed yesterday, shortly before noon in a fall off the rocks between the bridges.

An investigation was begun and it was learned that Mr. Burns was missing. He had been making some repairs to the rear of his house, which is near the eastern end of the Suspension Bridge, and about 3 o'clock it was discovered that the platform was broken and that there was a track in the earth to the water below, a distance of about 30 feet.

It is thought that when the platform broke, Mr. Burns was dashed down the steep embankment, and was killed before striking the water in the falls.

Mr. Burns was 65 years of age, and had a wife, a daughter, Mrs. Tower, and a son who resides in Milford. The police are making an inquiry into the matter and stated last night that the caretaker had not been located.

Mr. Burns had been in charge of the bridge for a number of years, and during his time there, he had saved many persons from the death which he himself is thought to have encountered.

INSANE GIRL BROUGHT HOME FROM BOSTON

Conveyed to Vancuboro by Immigration Officials and Passes Through on Return to Old Home at Tracadie.

On the arrival of the Boston Express in the I. C. R. depot last night there was considerable commotion caused by a young woman who was insane. The girl is a native of Tracadie, but for some time has been a resident in Boston, where a few weeks ago she lost her reason.

On Monday she was taken in charge by the United States Immigration Officials and was conveyed from Boston to Vancuboro. While on the way east she was quite violent and attempted to jump from the train on a number of occasions, the officials having considerable difficulty in controlling her.

She was held at McAdam for inspection by the Canadian officials and was met there by her brother. In company with her brother she arrived here last night and was reported to have acted quietly during the run down from McAdam. On leaving the train here to board the Halifax express she became quite violent and resisted the conductor and her brother. She said she wanted a ticket to return to Boston and it was finally found necessary to forcibly place her on board the train. As the train pulled out of the station the brother and another man were having considerable trouble in holding the woman in the seat, she was struggling hard to get off the train.

She is being taken to her old home in Tracadie.
