

472 SIR WILLIAM BUTLER: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

Soldier as ruler, 100.

— profession of—

England, service in—Humour of make-believe, etc., 215, 217.

Mental citadel in misfortune, 348-9.

Poverty and honesty—Business incapacity of the true soldier, 138-9.

Principles for—'Go on again,' 136; 'Go where you are asked to go,' 268, 385.

Solomon, Mr., 391.

Soltan, Lieut., killed at Ginniss, pet dog at funeral, 328.

Soudan campaign, 1884-5. Rising of the Madhi—

Announcement of destruction of Hicks Pasha and his army, 266.

Authorities in London and Cairo—Weakness and vacillation, resulting delay in face of a situation where time was all-important, 267, 268, 269, 272, 274, 275, 277, 308, 312; causes, 269-71; despatch of Secretary for War—illustration of Government tone and temper, 274-5; extracts from home letters, 293.

Baker's expedition—Annihilator, 267-8.

Gordon's mission to Khartoum, 268, 270; line of communication which might have been kept open—cost, etc., 270; relief expedition, see sub-heading Relief of Khartoum.

Indigenous peoples, hostility to the British, 331-2.

Levantine interpreter's pay and vocabulary, 137.

Official History of the Soudan Campaign, 310.

Relief of Khartoum—Nile route selected, order given to Butler to find or build 400 boats, 272; building of the 'whalers,' time taken, etc., 271, 272-4, 276; Butler's pay and allowances, 295; Egyptian army, disposition of, 283; journey up the Nile with boats—constant obstruction, overloading of the boats, etc., stultifying efforts by which Khartoum might have been reached in time, 276, 277-82, 284, 286-7, 288-90, 291-2; attempt to see Lord Wolseley—rebuff, 283-6, 295; position at Korti—despatch of Desert and River Columns, delays, etc., 292, 295, 296-7; recognition of services—absence of Butler's name from Gazette, 312; River Column, 299-306; Kirbikan—Butler's escape, etc., 301-4; land and water duty, 300; return to Korti on collapse of Desert Column—last day's work, 306; special correspondents, 297; subsequent fortunes of Desert Column, 301, 306; success of the whalers, 276, 284, 286-7, 292-3, 294, 295, 305; too late—news of fall of Khartoum, 297, 301; Gordon's death, news of, 304-5; treasure missed from ammunition convoy, 290; discovery at Abu Klea, 291.

Retention of Soudan after fall of Khartoum, question of, 308.

Retirement from Soudan—Butler's command at Meroë or Abu Dom, 306, 307, 309.

Retirement to Dongola after completion of preparations for hot weather at Meroë, 309, 311; camels lost on march—success of Butler's precautions, reception by superior officer, etc., 310-11; Jandet Effendi, Vakil of Dongola, action on withdrawal of British forces, 310.

Wady Halfa frontier, command of, 312; British and Dervish forces, position to be held, etc., 313, 317, 319; cavalry, weakness in, demands for reinforcements ignored—possible explanation, 316-18; Butler's plan of campaign, fort built at Kosheh—advantage of previous experience of Arab strategy, 313-15, 317; Dervish moves, Butler's counter-moves—success of fort at Kosheh, attack on Ambigol Wells, etc., 315-20, 321, 322; Ginniss, action at, night march, etc., 323-7, 329; Dervish fleet, capture of, 330-1; night alarm after Ginniss, 329—explanation, 330; preliminary reconnaissance, 321; recognition of Butler's service, absence of—no prospects of gazette, 348; humours of the campaign, 320; officers, 315 note; recognition of