

On Cleanliness in Education be urged on them and advertised as what it is—a luxury. With regard to the poor also the practical course is not hard to harmonise with our thesis. If we want to give poor people soap we must set out deliberately to give them luxuries. If we will not make them rich enough to be clean, then emphatically we must do what we did with the saints. We must reverence them for being dirty.
