

EPILOGUE

439

merge into the deepening duskiness of coming night, over all the graying world there breathes a brooding melancholy. Brushing the cheek with a touch of fairy lightness, from the distant gulches of the mountains comes a long-drawn sigh, as if the ancient soul of Nature were sorrowing secretly for the days that are no more.

THE END