"WE KNOW HOW"

But though Theo was always on the lookout for him, Dick managed to keep out of his sight while he remained in the city. After Dick had sailed, some boy told Jimmy where his brother had gone, and so at last the news reached Theodore.

Since his return from the bishop's, Theo had had few idle moments, but after losing the five dollars he worked early and late to make up the loss. He grew more silent and thoughtful, and when alone his thoughts dwelt almost continually on that happy day when he should look once more into the bishop's kind face.

"I'll tell him all about it," he would say to himself, "how I saw that Mrs. Russell drop the pocket-book, an' how I slipped under the wagon an' snatched it up out o' the mud, an' used the money. I'll tell it all, an' ev'rything else bad that I can 'member, so he'll know jest what a bad lot I've been, an' then I'll tell him how sorry I am, an' how I'm a-huntin' ev'rywhere for that Jack Finney, an' how I'll keep a-huntin' till I find him."

SOME ECHO!

In the mountains of Scotland a Highlander and an American were walking. In due course they came to a basin in the hills from which a wonderful echo could be obtained.

Having explained matters to his companion, the Scotsman proceeded to demonstrate. He emitted a shout, and after nearly three minutes the echo returned as per programme.

"Mon," said the Scot, "ye can't show anything like that in your country."

"I guess we can," replied the other. "Why, in my camp in the Rocky Mountains, when I go to bed I just poke my head out of the tent and shout, 'Time to get up! Wake up, there!' Eight hours later that echo travels back and wakens me!"

HOWLERS!

A school principal lately told us some of the answers found in pupils' examination papers. Here are three of them: "What is a volcano?" "A volcano is a mountain that sometimes blows the equator off." "What is the difference between a mountain and a hill?" "A hill is like a mountain, only a mountain is a little more hillier." "What became of the locusts of Pharaoh's time?" "John the Baptist ate them."

The war has furnished many strange coincidences. Here is another. A young officer came home on leave and brought his fiancée a piece of a shell fired by the Germans, but which had evidently been among ammunition captured from us. He thought it would interest her, and it did, for she was able to identify it as having come from the munition works in which she worked. It interested her still more when she found her own mark on it.
