

A MARVELLOUS MINING CAMP

GREATNESS OF THE CITY OF BUTTE AND WHAT HAS MADE IT.

Men Who Are the Leaders in the Financial World of Montana—Clark, Daly and Heinze.

General Charles S. Warren, who has just returned from Butte, Mont., gives the following interesting and brief summary of the condition of affairs in that marvelous mining camp. He says: "We very frequently hear of the marvelous richness of South Africa, we hear of the richness of the Yukon, we hear of the great gold production of West Australia, we hear of the marvelously rich gold fields of British Columbia, we occasionally hear of Butte, Mont., but few of your readers dream of Butte or its wonderful resources. Within 1,000 acres in extent and within a circle of three miles of Butte court house has been demonstrated the richest spot upon this earth. Within this circle last year there was contributed to the treasury of the world in the neighborhood of thirty-five million of dollars. This year, 1899, fifty millions of dollars will be poured into the treasure vaults of the United States. Butte alone this year will contribute more in the shape of gold to the wealth of this earth than the states of Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Alaska, British Columbia and the golden Yukon combined."

"Butte is a city comprising about 60,000 people. You take the mining cities and towns of the states, territory and province combined and they comprise a population of nearly 400,000 people. Butte has never had a boom. There are no wildest stock schemes there and every man is a worker. They mine in Butte for dividends only. No mining companies there have ever been accused of crookedness. Had Montana nothing else than Butte that name would be known throughout the civilized globe. The mines, however, do not make Montana. The men of Montana have made that great state and Butte has made Montana. A hero and a heroine of Spartans happened to settle in Last Chance gulch, since called Helena, and designated as the capital of the state. Everyone of them was a hero. They undertook to build up a city in the wilderness and a civilization second to none, and in a measure they succeeded, and today there is being erected to civil and religious liberty a temple called the capitol of the state of Montana, and of which we are all proud. We may have differed as to the location, but that is by gone history, and today Helena, Montana, is a measure of the financial distress of the past five years is a city which any old miner may feel proud of."

"Getting back to the text, we undertook to tell you something of Butte. There are three men in Butte occupying today a position and all entered for the first time in the history of the world, and race and the financial world. These men are Marcus Daly, William A. Clark and F. Aug. Heinze. All of these men are a part of the history of the golden state. I desire to say now that I am under many obligations to all of them, and I may say should not be taken as being discourteous to the others."

About six months ago there appeared an advertisement of the Amalgamated Copper company, signed by Marcus Daly, H. H. Rogers and Wm. G. Rockefeller, placing upon the markets of the world certain mines in the Butte district upon a basis of $75,000,000. After the advertisement had appeared for less than 10 days this stock was subscribed four and one half times over. At once all kinds of dire disaster were predicted. They had raised a howl of departmental stores, reduction of wages and other things. This seemed to strike terror into the hearts of many who had lived for years in the country. Mr. Daly, returning from the east, announced that notwithstanding press reports he intended to remain in Montana and to make it his home, and to remain at the head of this trust, and this restored confidence all along the line, and his word is recognized throughout the financial world is his bond."

"Hon. W. A. Clark, U. S. senator from Montana, has been an important factor in building up not only the industries of Butte, but of the state of Montana. In the early sixties he packed his black and white coat with the energetic pioneers of those times. He knows what poverty is and he has not a single dollar but what he has made honestly and uprightly, and is perhaps today the largest individual mine owner on earth. His property has not turned his head; his friends are now in poverty and affliction. He was recently elected United States senator from the state of Montana, and while he has many enemies in the state we bespeak for him a brilliant career in the councils of the nation."

Last, but not least in the galaxy of stars of this marvelous mining region is F. Aug. Heinze. I knew him when he came to Butte as a youth, a graduate of Columbia college. In a modest, unassuming kind of a way he went to work for the Montana Copper company as a mining engineer. He seemed to drift along with the tide, gaining information here and there and suddenly there appeared a new star on the horizon. He came to British Columbia and erected the Trail smelter. He constructed the first railroad for Canadians and Englishmen to follow him. He is today at the head of the Montana Ore Purchasing company, one of the great mining corporations of North America. He has blazed the trail for others to follow. He is engaged in legal complications in the Butte camp that have interested the mining world. In judgment owing to his knowledge, foresight and practical ability and business methods he will never meet a Waterloo. These three men, Daly, Clark and Heinze and Governor Hauser of Helena, today are practically financially the state of Montana. These four men placed anywhere upon earth would manufacture, mine and make it pay."

"The reporter here said: 'General, you are wound up for a long yarn. How about the politics of Montana?'"

"I venture the following prediction. I don't go anything on silver Republicans, but in my judgment the next governor of Montana will be the Hon. Lee Mantle, the next senator will be F. Aug. Heinze or the Hon. Thomas H. Carter, the present incumbent, who is one of the best senators Montana has ever had. It will be a battle royal."

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Water and Light Agreement Not Yet Concluded—Will Close Today.

The mayor and council held another long conference, Monday, with Mr. L. A. Campbell and his solicitor, Mr. C. R. Hamilton, representing the West Kootenay Power Company, and Messrs. W. S. Norman and Manager H. W. Fellows, of the Rossland Water and Light Company, in which the details of the formal agreement to be entered into between the city and the water and light company were again gone over and discussed.

Whatever agreement is finally entered into will be made with the Rossland Water and Light Company. The controlling shares of that company may be held by Messrs. Norman, Campbell, McArthur and others, but it will be with the water and light company, as a company, that the agreement will be made.

As stated on Sunday, the city is to pay $40,000 for the water end of the concern, and in addition will take over certain supplies on hand at invoice prices. The company will supply electric light, not to exceed $1.25 for business houses and 75 cents for residences, per light per month, this to be reduced by 25 cents a month in each case for prompt payment. The city obtains the right to take over the lighting contract at the end of five years at a valuation to be fixed by arbitration, together with a bonus of 5 per cent.

The council met in the morning at 11 a.m., but adjourned until 5 p.m. for want of a quorum. At the latter meeting the mayor, Aldermen Clate, Hoosen and Thompson met the gentlemen mentioned and for an hour discussed the terms of the agreement.

Mr. Abbott will draw the contract, and it is expected that this morning the document will be executed by the water and light company, and at the regular weekly meeting of the council this evening the city's assent will be given.

ANOTHER BURGLARY.

T. R. Morrow's Residence Entered Sunday Evening and Valuable Stolen.

On Sunday evening, between the hours of 6 and 11 o'clock, the residence of T. R. Morrow, situated on the corner of Butte street and East Le Roi avenue, was entered by burglars and the whole house ransacked. Mr. and Mrs. Morrow left the house about 6 p.m. to spend the evening with some friends, and on their return about 11 o'clock discovered that an entrance had been effected through one of the front windows. The thief must have come up the front steps to the verandah and forced the window. Once inside the house the intruder made a deliberate search for money, turning over everything in sight, ripping off pillow covers, upsetting the contents of cupboards and generally turning the house topsy-turvy. A valuable pocket-book containing cash was overlooked, but the thief made off with a watch and chain presented by Mr. Morrow to his wife a year ago, and of special value for this reason. Several minor articles are missing, but just at present Mr. Morrow was unable to say what the actual loss was. After going over the house pretty thoroughly the thief escaped through the back door, leaving that exit open behind him. A neighbor saw a man on the front porch about 8 p.m., but, thinking it was Mr. Morrow, took no particular notice. The police authorities have been informed of the matter, but, so far, no arrests have been made. There have been so many cases of the kind lately that some special effort should be made to catch the offenders and put a stop to such occurrences.

Eastern Visitors.

Mr. W. Farwell, of Sherbrooke, general manager of the Eastern Townships Bank; Mr. H. B. Brown, Q. C., also of Sherbrooke, and Mr. G. Stevens, of Waterloo, Que., directors of that institution, came in Monday from the Boundary country, where they have been for the past week inspecting the properties controlled by the Miner Graves Syndicate. The Eastern Townships Bank have recently opened a branch in Grand Forks, in the same way that the Bank of Toronto followed the Gooderham-Blackstock into Rossland. Today the gentlemen will visit the Mascot, owned by the Big Three company, and the California, on Red Mountain, controlled by the Miner Graves Syndicate.

Benledi Sent to Calgary. Mr. Ernest Kennedy yesterday shipped his racing mare to Calgary, where she will take part in the races to be held there on the 9th and 10th of August. Benledi has won four out of the five races in which she has participated since Mr. Kennedy purchased her. The race which she lost was a quarter of a mile dash. Benledi is best in a three-quarters of a mile or a mile race.

NO SUFFERING IN CAMP.

From Dread Catarrh—Dr. Agnew's Catarrh Powder Kills the Disease Germs and Cures the Distressed Parts—Relieves in Ten Minutes.

Alf. Leblanc, of St. Jerome, Quebec, says he used Dr. Agnew's Catarrh Powder for an acute case of catarrh in the head and it cured him. He has 125 men working under him in the lumbering camps, and what it has done for him it has done for many of them. He buys it as a quick relief for colds in the head and the surest cure for catarrh. ## HON. T. MAYNE DALY'S TRIP

INTERESTING ACCOUNT OF THE PROGRESS IN BOUNDARY.

Rapid Development in Brandon &amp; Golden Crown—The Okanagan Free Gold Mines.

The Hon. T. Mayne Daly recently returned from a trip through a portion of the Boundary country. To a Miner reporter yesterday Mr. Daly said, in reference to his experiences: "The main object of my recent trip was to make one of my periodical visits to the Brandon & Golden Crown property, situated in Wellington camp, nine miles from Greenwood. I found that the compressor plant and machinery, which was installed about two months ago, running very satisfactorily, and the sinking of the main shaft progressing at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 feet a day. As the formation is very much the same as that encountered in the War Eagle mine is good work. The manager will commence crosscutting at the 250-foot level about August 15th, and will also commence stoping and taking out ore at the 100 and 150-foot levels, so as to have a good supply of ore on hand when the railway gets a spur up to the mine. This is expected to be completed about November 1st next, when the company will be ready to ship at least one carload a day. Development all through the mine is making rapid progress and three shifts of eight hours each are working."

"I was glad to see the machinery in operation on the Snowdon, put in place under Mr. Astley's superintendence. This property was recently bonded by Mr. A. J. McMillan for his London syndicate. I found that a great change had taken place in the neighborhood of the Old Ironsides, Brooklyn and Stenwinder. The timber has been cleared off and a number of buildings have been erected, and what was only a few months ago a dense forest, is now rapidly becoming an important centre well named Phoenix. This camp," added Mr. Daly, "is likely to be the centre of great mining activity in the very near future."

"One matter that has impressed me greatly is in progress in the neighborhood of all these camps," continued Mr. Daly, "and is unique in the history of railway construction, namely, that from a common centre on its main line situated in Summit camp, the Canadian Pacific railway is building branch lines and spurs to all the important mines, which will enable the various mining companies to dump their ore right into the cars for transportation to the smelter. When one takes into consideration that the whole of this section of country is heavily timbered, and that the expense of cutting out the right of way is scarcely exceeded by the construction of these branch lines, there being many rock cuttings and fills encountered, one cannot but congratulate mine owners in this favored region on the enterprise that has been exhibited by Canada's great railroad. A year ago the mine owners in this section used to congratulate themselves upon the prospect of only having a nine-mile haul down hill to Greenwood city, but now they will be able to dump the ore from their properties into the cars at their very doors. The most sanguine of them never hoped for such excellent shipping facilities as will now be afforded."

"I found Grand Forks very lively indeed and its good citizens much excited and uplifted over the location and building of the Granby smelter. Grand Forks possesses today, in the Yale, one of the finest and best conducted hotels in the country. The rotunda of the Yale is the daily and nightly rendezvous of all the business and mining men in the camp. I was informed on the best authority that Mr. John R. Reavis, who so long and ably edited The Miner, is about to be made the editor and manager of the Grand Forks Miner. Business is very active in Greenwood and this city is fast growing into the importance that its position demands."

"I drove from Greenwood to Rock Creek, passing through the splendid townsite of Midway, which will be for some time the terminus of the Canadian Pacific railway, and will consequently be a place of considerable importance. I passed south through Cheesus and along Myers Creek, which is now the scene of great mining activity. A number of properties are changing hands in this neighborhood at good prices. It is an ideal future country, the prospects of the future mines being situated in one of the finest bits of ground in the Boundary country. I have been my lot to see. When this reservation is thrown open it will become the home of thousands of settlers."

"From Cheesus I drove to Oroville, which is situated between the Okanagan and Similkameen rivers, in Okanagan and Okanagan Free Gold Mines, of which I am the president, is situated, 2 1/2 miles west of Oroville, on the banks of the Similkameen river. Accompanied by Mr. Edgcombe, the company's superintendent, I made a thorough inspection of all the recently completed. The machinery is all in working order and the stamps will be falling before this interview appears in print. I was more than pleased and satisfied with the way Mr. Edgcombe had performed his work, accomplished under many difficulties, and the machinery having been hauled in wagons from mountain roads. My tour through the tunnels, shafts, open cuts and other workings convinced me that our company has a splendid property here, and one that will yield a handsome return in the shape of good dividends to those who have invested in the company's shares. If experience and careful management can make a success of this property Mr. Edgcombe is the right man in the right place. A word of praise is due to Mr. A. W. Burnet, the mill foreman, under whose direct supervision the mill has been erected and the machinery installed. The company is very fortunate in securing Mr. Washburn's services, he having been highly recommended to them as a man of great experience in operating a plant of free milling ores. Mr. Washburn came to us from Baker City, Oregon, where he lived for some years. He is a great expert in the business of operating a mill about August 25th, and is sanguine of very good results."

Mr. Daly completed his interview with this kindly statement: "In my travels I came across many old Rossland men who appear to be doing well. It is a great feature of my connection with these old townsmen to find that they were all most pleased and interested in hearing of Rossland's splendid progress and although satisfied with their present surroundings they had a strong hankering for their old camping ground at the base of Red Mountain."

BURGLARS ARE BUSY.

One Steals From the Rossland Club, Another Caught in the Act.

At an early hour yesterday morning a burglar rifled the till in the Rossland Club of $3.35. The marauder gained access by climbing into a window in the top story of the building in the rear. The rear of the structure abutting the bluff at that point. Then he made his way down stairs, and with an ice pick pried open the till and took the money. It is thought that he helped himself to a drink or two, and then departed in the same manner that he came. One of the attendants at the club was sleeping in one of the rooms but the burglar worked so quietly that he did not awaken him. It is the custom of the steward, when he departs for the night to take the receipts of the day with him leaving only enough for the boy to make change in the till and this accounts for the smallness of the haul made by the burglar.

A burglar was captured in the Alhambra hotel on Wednesday shortly before midnight. His name is John McNickle. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Owens were in their sleeping room when McNickle entered and began to ransack a trunk. He made so much noise that it awakened Mrs. Owens and she called upon her husband that there was a man in the room and at the same time she sprang up and the burglar fled. The plucky woman closely followed the burglar and caught her quarry on the stairs and held on to him, and at the same time she called for help. The barkeeper down stairs was hurrying to her assistance when the burglar broke away and ran into the alley. Here he was captured and held until the police arrived and he was given into their custody. Yesterday morning he was arraigned in the police court charged with unlawfully entering the Alhambra hotel for the purpose of stealing. He was remanded until today.
