Improving on Reality

By RUTH CAMERON

HOW much more attractive than the reality one can make anything sound by telling about it in a clever way!

And how often people do that!

A former neighbor of ours is now living in a distant city. Since her departure from our midst she has regaled us with letters so full of the beautiful home in which she lives, and the wonderful friends she has made that we have all been quite green with envy. I say "have been" because that is all past. Recently another neighbor was visiting in the same city, and since her return we have felt more satisfied with our humble lot.

Our former neighbor wrote us she was living in a beautiful, old-fashioned house with twelve rooms; three baths and a small conservatory. That was all true, but she quite forgot to mention that she only has part of the house, and that she pays for that part by caring for the old gentleman to whom the property belongs.

She conjured up visions of elegance by telling us that she lived on a certain street, which is almost world-famous as a centre of wealth and aristocracy. Of course she didn't explain that the street is very long and the part in which she lives is no more fashionable than our own neighborhood.

She wrote nonchalantly of attending a "tea" given by a famous authoress, and chatted about the lady in question in a manner that made us think they were old friends. The truth of the matter was that the tea was a public affair given for charity, and she has never met the authoress before or since.

And so with one light touch after another, without a single untruth, but with innumerable clever half-truths, she drew us a pretty halftone picture at which we gazed fascinated—just as she meant we should.

Now that the traveler has turned the harsh light of full truth on the pretty picture, and sketched in some of the less attractive lines, we are inclined to laugh at our old neighbor, and yet, are you and I never guilty? Don't we ever draw halftone pictures for our friends?

"Half the pleasure of my trip abroad came from thinking how I would describe my good times to my friends," said one of those rare people who try to be frank with themselves. "Even when I wasn't having such a very good time I'd think how delightful I could make it sound."

Few of us make such frank admissions even to ourselves, but if we did I fancy we should often have similar confessions to make.

Ruth Cameron

of Music on Wednesday evening the 26th. Mrs. Philip G. Buck looking very handsome in a pompadour silk gown; pretty Mrs. George D. Heyd in blue satin with black lace over-dress; and Mrs. Blake Duncan looking very dainty in black satin gown with soft white chiffon bodice, acted as chaperones. About eighty guests were entertained, the three young hostesses gowned alike, greeting them on their arrival. The platform and hall had been prettily decorated with palms, lilies and marguerites.

Miss Conboy presided at the piano. A prettier scene could not be imagined than this "not out" dance which was voted by all a huge success.

Mrs. Green who has been spending the winter months with her son, Mr. B. Forsayeth and Mrs. Forsayeth, Sheridan street, leaves for her home in Moncton, N.B., early in April.

Mr. Lyman Gould is expected in the city on Saturday from Bobcaygeon, for a short vacation at the parental home, Darling street.

Lord Dufferin who is honorary colonel of the 38th battalion Dufferin Rifles of Canada, as his father was before him, recently sent photographs of himself and Lady Dufferin to the regiment, where they have been fittingly framed and much treasured.

The Marchioness of Dufferin, formerly Flora Davis, of New York, has opened North House, Putney, for the spring season. This is one of the treasure houses owned by Americans in London, in which Lady Dufferin's taste rather than her wealth is felt. She was one of the first to attract Chinese art, having purchased Chinese porcelains and carving for fifteen years. Her collection is now worth fifteen times the price originally paid for it, and Lady Dufferin is now recognized as an expert on Oriental art. This artistic American has no such monstrosities as "Chinese rooms," but blends her oriental subjects with eighteenth century English furnishings.

Mrs. Douglas Bowie, formerly Miss Marie Ruthertford, will receive for the first time since her marriage on Tuesday, April 1st, at the residence of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Duncan.

Miss J. Haas who has been visiting Mrs. R. G. Ballantyne, Brant St., has returned to her home in St. George.

Mrs. Douglas Bowie, formerly Miss Marie Ruthertford, will receive for the first time since her marriage on Tuesday, April 1st, at the residence of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Duncan.

Relieves Asthma at Little Expense. Thousands of dollars have been vainly spent upon remedies for asthma and seldom, if ever, with any relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, despite its assurance of benefit, costs so little that it is within reach of all. It is the national remedy for asthma, far removed from the class of doubtful and experimental preparations. Your dealer can supply it.
