An Antiquated Indian.

James Fitzpatrick presented an antique and novel appearance this morn ing as he wandered about the city. He is of small stature, and is over eighty years of age with a face care-worn in comparison, while down his back there hangs four or five curls of white locks, carefully tied with a bow at his neck. Its length is its main feature, being past his hips. James comes from Hamilton and is endeavoring to sell small postcards for his bread.
