Dr. Hugos Health Tables For WOMEN

They are the prescription of Dr. Hugo, of Paris, one of the world's greatest specialists in diseases of women, a prescription which embodies the skill and experience that comes from forty years' practice as a specialist.

women, a prescription which embodies the skill and experience that comes from forty years' practice as a specialist.

They are compounded to meet the needs of sick, tired, and run down women, and of them alone. They are not for men. They contain every known medical ingredient of any virtue to women. They include special uterine tonics, which are not contained in remedies sold for both men and women.

They contain ingredients just recently discovered, proved by scientists to be of the greatest value to women. These ingredients are not contained in any other remedy. This explains in part for their being more effective than the old time remedies placed on the market twenty-five years ago.

Unlike the liquid preparations, they contain no alcohol, oplum, occaine or other harmful drugs. How many physical wrecks there are in this country due to the deadly drugs in these remedies, to suppress the symptons and stimulate the patient while taking them, although leaving her finally in a still worse condition. They make a permanent and lasting our of the ills of women, and no honest medicine in the world acts so quickly.

for table and gives the folia support of his view;

Wright, in his "Domestic Mann wright, in his "Domestic Manners of the Middle Ages," says: "One of the great objects of ostentation in a rich man's house was his plate, which at dinner time he brought forth and spread on the table in sight of his guests. Afterward, to exhibit the plate to more advantage, the table was made with shelves or steps, on which the dif-ferent articles could be arranged in rows, one above another. It was called in French, or Anglo-Norman, a dres-soir, because on it the different articles were dresses, or arranged."

It is this to which the modern poet

The Process by Which Mercury Is Extracted From Cinnabar. The chief scource of mercury is its native sulphide, cinnabar. The most important mines of this mineral in Europe are those of Almaden, in Spain, and Idria, in Illyria; in America, those

The silvery metal is obtained by coasting the ores in specially constructed open furnaces, where, by the action of atmospheric air alone, the sulphur is converted into sulphurous acid and passes on with the volatilized mercury into condensers. These are usually masonry chambers, with water cooled pipes, from which the fumes pass on through earthenware pipes and finally through others of wood and glass. Most of the yield is liquid mercury. combined with soot, which is removed by agitating the mixture in receptacles of perforated iron, when the mercury falls through. The quicksilver is finally purified by straining through dense linen and is then sent out into commerce in leather bags or wrought iron oottles fitted with screw plugs, each olding about seventy-five pounds avoirdupois.

THE WORD BOGUS.

ere Are Several Plausible The-

The word "bogus" is said by Dr. Ogilvie to be derived from Boghese, the name of a notorious American swindler who about the year 1835 flooded the western and southwestern states with counterfeit bills, sham mortgages and such like. Others connect the word with "bogie," a scarecrow or goblin, and so applied to anything fictitious or Lowell in the "Biglow Papers" says, "I more than suspect the word to be a corruption of the French bagasse." This bagasse was the sugar cane as delivered in its dry, crushed state from the mill, called also cane trash, and fit only for burning, being thus synonymous with useless rubbish.

Again, according to Brewer, there is in French argot, or thieves' slang, a vord, bogue, which signifies the rind of green chestnut or the case of a watch, and this also brings us to the idea of an outward seeming without any solid and reputable foundation.

An East Prussia Custom. summer day, or St. John the tist's day, is a festival of much importance among the Masur peasant girls in east Prussia. On this day they each make a wreath, and each in turn tries to throw her wreath so as to lodge it on a fruit tree. A girl must keep on throwing until her wreath stays in the branches, and the number of attempts is supposed to indicate the number of years she will have to wait to get married. When the girls are thus engaged the young men of the village stand around chaffing them when they miss. The girl who lands her wreath at the first attempt is vehemently applauded. The Masurs are Poles who live in that part of Prussia which was once part of Poland.

Donkeys In Egypt. In Egypt the women still follow the ancient custom of riding on donkeys. The animals are small and well trained and carry their burdens about without remonstrance. The riding under these conditions demands no especial skill of horsemanship. The women make a great convenience of these little steeds, riding them to market or to their shopping as well as on considera-
