WILL IT BE WAR?

The situation in the Balkans, which, a few days ago seemed to be clearing, again looks quite threatening. Austria-Hungary is said to be impatient of any influence attempted to be exercised upon her by the Powers, and is proceeding with military preparations which are said to be costing $200,000 a day. Serbia and Montenegro seem willing to precipitate the trouble by attacking Austria, and Bulgaria seems to be quite willing to embroil Turkey. There is a danger that Russia may find herself compelled to take Serbia's part, and there is thus a possibility of a wide-spread war. It is not probable that Serbia could long make effective resistance to Austria, but the torch of war once lighted might fire Europe. Fortunately Great Britain's influence is exerted for peace and justice, and it is great. France, too, wishes peace, and will co-operate with Great Britain. At Berlin a more hopeful view of the situation prevails, and it is thought that the Kaiser, also, wishes to prevent an outbreak. While it cannot be denied that the situation is critical, it is far from hopeless. If Great Britain, France and Germany unite for peace, their influence will probably be sufficient.

BLAMES IT ON WHISKEY.

Malone, the Simcoe Chief of Police, who was yesterday sentenced to life imprisonment for his attempt to murder a constable so that a long list of crimes of which he had been guilty might be hidden, seems to be only one more of the myriads of men who, looking back on their lives, feel impelled to drink their evils and misfortunes to oblivion. Speaking to the Crown Attorney after he had been sentenced, Malone said: "It was whiskey brought me to this." We are not sufficiently acquainted with the history of the man to be able to pronounce upon the correctness of his statement. Certainly, the nature of the crimes charged against him indicate a depraved condition of morality hardly to be brought about in a day. Malone, it seems, had been a steady drinker, and it is highly improbable that such a habit tended to elevate his mind. In his position as a guardian of the peace, he had special opportunities for profiting by wrongdoing once he gave himself up to his worse instincts, stimulated by the liquor habit. His case is one which should warn against tipping by policemen. The confirmed drinker is not a person who should fill a position of trust; no person should be a police officer. Whiskey may not have been the only evil influence acting upon Malone, but it was not an inspiration to good. It is well that Malone's effort did not result in actual murder. The city of it is that his innocent wife and children must suffer for his crimes.

BRANDY CHOCOLATES.

Some time ago a large number of Montreal dealers were charged with selling brandy chocolates, and considerable interest was attracted by the prosecution. It appears that Montreal was not the only place in which these seductive sweets were manufactured and sold. Prosecutions have now begun in Toronto, the License Department interesting itself in the work. Chief Inspector Johnston laying the information. A number of other dealers will probably be summoned. The charge in each case will be that of selling liquor without a license. The manufacturers of this confectionery seem to have succeeded in reaching the public taste, and small boxes of these chocolates, each holding a few drops of brandy, bring a large price. The danger which they present to the community does not consist in the quantity of the liquor disposed of, but in the power which they contain to create a habit in those who become addicted to their use. They are to the confirmed drinker what the cigarette is to the old smoker. They would be likely to furnish to the boys and girls of the country the kindergarten training in tipping whence they would subsequently graduate into the bar-rooms and private drinking resorts. It is a small but insidious evil which may well be stamped out.

A MYTHICAL SURPLUS.

Already the deceit of the Manitoba Government in claiming to have "a quarter of a million" of a surplus on the year's operation of its telephone system is admitted. It is now not even pretended that it has such a sum. Already the "surplus" has shrunk to $168,936, and there is every reason to believe that that is obtained by doctored books for the purpose of making a showing favorable to the Government, and that by any fair method of accounting there would be a very important deficit. The account presented shows:

Receipts from rentals, etc.	$656,486
Operation expenditures by commission	$329,000
Departmental expenses	19,319
Interest on debentures	168,231
Total expenditure	$487,559
Surplus of	$168,936

But even such a showing as that would, did it really present the facts, be creditable. But it does not present all the facts. It omits matters which no business firm or company would think of omitting, for instance, the item of depreciation. This, it was shown by experts in the Parliamentary inquiry, amounted to about 10 per cent. per annum. The Manitoba investment is about $1,400,000. If we allow only 5 per cent.

—half the amount found in practice to be required—and deduct $220,000 from the earnings, we find that there is a deficit of $32,000; if we deduct the safe 10 per cent., the deficit is $272,000! It is the practice of the telephone companies, instead of writing off a certain sum for depreciation, to carry on extensive reconstruction work each year, charging it to operating expenses, and to put aside large sums to a contingent fund for renewals and repairs. It was shown in the parliamentary inquiry that more than half the 70 per cent. of receipts, representing cost of operation, was spent in maintenance of the system. Examining the Manitoba figures in the light of these facts the Winnipeg Free Press says:

The difference between the percentages of the two sets of operating expenses—some 22 per cent.—indicates the extent of the reconstruction work on the Manitoba system, which has either been charged improperly to capital or has been "passed up" entirely in the determination to make a favorable showing during the first year of operation by the Government. If we assume, as we reasonably may, that the ratio of operation and maintenance to total revenue as determined by the experience of the Bell Telephone Company for a period of ten consecutive years is approximately the standard, and apply it to the Manitoba system for 1908 we find that the normal operating expenses should be not $300,000, but $465,700. This would make the total expenses $633,250, or practically identical with the receipts.

Nor is that all. The Bell Company, after spending about 40 per cent. of its total earnings on yearly renewals and reconstruction, finds itself called upon to have a contingent fund to which payments are annually made. In the ten years, 1893-1904, it paid into this fund over a million dollars, somewhat over 5 per cent. of its receipts, and it regards the payments as good business. The Manitoba Government system has no such fund. It allows nothing for depreciation, and makes no provision for the maintenance of the system. A "surplus" so secured is a misnomer.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There does not appear to be any knockers of local industries in the Welland Council.

Paderecki was born in Podolia, Russian Poland, on Nov. 6, 1860, and is therefore in his 50th year.

It is not yet too late to suggest that Mayor McLaren might try to arrange a special "deputation rate" for the benefit of Hamilton with the railways leading out of it.

The Presbyterian Assembly in honoring Rev. Dr. Lyle by choosing him as Moderator would likewise honor itself. There is no man in the church more capable or deserving.

The cutting of $2,600 off the Hospital governors' estimates was an unbusinesslike proceeding, especially so in the face of the Council's action as to increasing outlays on Monday night. If there should be a deficit in the Hospital finances, it will be remembered.

Premier Bond, of Newfoundland, will resign as a result of the deadlock, and Sir Edward Morris will be called upon to form a Government. Whether or not he will be able to command a majority of the House is quite another question.

How would it do to require "Indians" of the Birrell tribe to wear some distinguishing badge, that they may be known at sight by the barkeep? It would be a measure of fairness to Inspector Birrell, too, and would probably make "Indianism" less popular.

An amendment is before the United States Congress for federal control of all the water supply at Sault Ste. Marie. There is no reason why the federal Government of Canada should not take control of all power companies, which on this side derive their water supply from international streams.

Hamilton music lovers have enjoyed several treats of late, the Paderecki recital of last night not the least. This city contains a large number of capable vocal and instrumental musicians, and it is pleasing to know that their influence is felt by the community, and their efforts appreciated by the public.

The deputation from the School Board that went to Toronto yesterday does not seem to have obtained any assurance that Hamilton would get that "great Provincial technical college."

It did not even bring back a promise of a liberal grant to the school which the Hamilton Board has built; although it is hard to see how one can be refused. Their request "will receive consideration."

The Toronto News advocates old-age pensions, the Government managing and contributing toward the fund. The News advocates every money-spending scheme. It also attacks the Government for every increase of expenditure.

Toronto's tax rate is to be 18½ mills on the dollar, but it is hardly expected that the amount of taxes realized will clear the slate. It is to be borne in mind, however, that besides this general tax, Toronto collects a large sum by the frontage system.

Water for baths free would be a concession to cleanliness; cleanliness is said to be next to godliness, therefore, the proposed concession partakes of a religious character. But will that consideration weigh with the Finance Committee frantically hunting for funds?

Winnipeg General Hospital is in a fix. It has been receiving $36,000 a year from the Provincial Government, but last session Robin passed legislation cutting that sum down to $14,000, so that the institution is $22,000 short. Mr. Robin now stands off and says, "Our hands are tied."

A good many who have unpleasant memory of the time when they were vaccinated will have more or less sympathy with Kingston's Mayor, who strenuously objects to setting an example to the people by submitting to vaccination. Nothing is so persuasive in such a case as the proximity of a few cases of smallpox.

The Toronto Mail and Empire has discovered that the Globe is seeking to separate Canada from the Empire "by stealth." We have heard of an enterprising fellow who stole a red hot store, but the Mail and Empire sets the Globe a far harder job than that. How did the organ come to think the Globe would make this attempt?

Toronto papers publish a letter from a physician who seems to hold the opinion that the disease treated as smallpox is not smallpox at all, but some harmless skin eruption. It would be a pity to have measures of prophylaxis neglected because of any such guesses. In smallpox, perhaps more than any other disease, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The Dominion statutes of 1908 have just been issued. They make a very bulky volume. One of the most important of the acts it contains is the consolidated and amended Dominion Lands Act. Other notable contents are the Dominion Lands Survey Act, the French Convention Act, an act respecting juvenile delinquents, a Railway Act amendment placing telegraphs and telephones under the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission, and an act to amend the Chinese Immigration Act.

The Ottawa Journal attempts to defend the charging by that city of extortionate water rates by alleging that those who object to them do so "on injury to the city and the taxpayers." It's line of reasoning is that if the extortionate water rates were reduced the tax rate would have to be raised, and the tax rate is the chief criterion used by those seeking locations for factory or business purposes. But why levy the necessary taxes on their own backs? Why burden unjustly the water-users? The argument is hardly moral.

The Times is not among those who think it was poor policy to allow more capacity for the supply of power to be developed on the Canadian side of Niagara than our present market demands, or that we have lost anything by the export of power to the United States. Probably had we not granted those power concessions Canada would not have fared so well in the apportionment made by the Waterways Commission. In any event, the Province of Ontario gets the franchise rental; and as to the power export, that is effectively controlled by the Dominion Government. Whatever Ontario gets out of it is not profit. The water would be running over the falls anyway.

Heroic measures are being taken in dealing with West Toronto's smallpox outbreak.

One day there arrived in Kingston a young Scotch stonemason, and Agnes Maule Mackenzie, in her interesting new book "The Story of an Old Kingdom," tells us that this youth, later to become Prime Minister of Canada, and to be known as Hon. Alexander Mackenzie, worked his first summer as a stonemason and was swindled out of his pay. There and then he seems to have acquired his lifelong prejudice against dishonesty. Deane out of his money, he secured employment on a farm owned by Mr. John Mowat, father of Sir Oliver, but in 1843 resumed work in Kingston as a

Want Any Kind.
(Kingston Standard.)

The Hamilton Times is objecting because there seems to be a prospect of Hamilton "monkeying" some more with experimental pavements. So far as Kingston is concerned we here would be glad to have our city fathers monkey with any kind of pavements so long as they should prove permanent.

High Rents.
(Montreal Witness.)

Complaints about the rise in the rents of houses are so loud in the cities of the United States as in Canada, and hardly less so in the cities of Great Britain and the continent of Europe. The principal cause for this increase are the growth of city population and the rise in the price of all building materials and labor.

Sealey Making Friends.
(E. A. L. Clarke in Dundas Banner.)

One has only to be in the House a short time to see that Sealey has made a host of friends among the Government members, particularly the Ontario delegation. There is naturally a kindly feeling between the men who have redeemed Ontario seats and retired some aggressive Tory to private life. Everybody on the Government side is delighted to see old Wentworth back in his natural place and Sir Wilfrid, expressed to us his delight at having a Liberal member from this county, and desired us to convey his thanks to all the friends who had helped to send a supporter from his riding. It is no secret that the Premier is greatly pleased at the showing made in Ontario.

The Tactics of Chamberlainism.
(Goldwin Smith.)

It was the tactics of Mr. Chamberlain to go about putting to each special industry the question whether its trade would be increased by levying a duty on imported goods. It seems hardly possible that the people of a great commercial country should be misled by such caprice as this. The English capitalist would gain, of course, and out of whose pockets would the gain come but those of the English people? What right have we to denounce the Socialist's project of confiscation if we yield to the party of the capitalist for legal power to extort tribute from the purchasers of his goods? This capitalist raid is being carried on, it seems, with extreme vigor and boundless outlay of money. Should it succeed, it may have, politically, a very fatal effect. It may split the party of moderation throughout the country, and reduce moderates who are Free Traders to inaction, or, possibly, drive them into the extremist party. This the protectionist capitalists must see and by the course they are taking they show that capacity can be as unscrupulous in the capitalist as in the artisan.

Decaying Self-Respect.
(London Times.)

The invasion of privacy by the press is matched by the vanity and pettiness of those who desire publicity at any cost, and by the snobbishness of those who greedily devour any scrap of personal gossip that they can find, vainly imagining that they in some way attach themselves to the society which they cannot enter. A notable feature of the present day is the decay of that just pride which is self-respect, and the growth of a rampant desire to get one's name into print by any means that offer. In all ranks and in all professions may be noted this extraordinary lack of proud reticence. The newspapers are blamed for invading private life, when they are mobbed by persons only too anxious to have the front of their dwellings taken down, so that everybody may see their names on the door or on their breakfast. There is another public which thinks it worth while to know which is the favored beverage, and so the thing goes on. It has been said that every nation has the press it deserves, and the saying is about as true and as false as other sayings of that type.

Deserts Wife and Babies to Wed Another Girl.

Toronto, Feb. 25.—Six months ago Thomas George Flint, an Englishman, left his wife and two little ones at his home in St. Thomas, saying he was going back to England and would return. Two months later twin boys were born, but neither support nor even word came from the departed husband.

He did not go to England, but to Erie, where he met Maggie Elliott, a former sweetheart, and together they went to Bolton and were married.
