Let them think so, it does nobody any harm, and it pleases them. We would like the opportunity of showing you our Furniture, and would like you to compare, and we think we can convince you that what we say is true.

Roman News.

Rome, Sept. 10.—The Osservatore Romano of August 31 announced: "Mgr. Peter Joseph Geay, Bishop of Laval, has this morning spontaneously resigned to the Holy Father the administration of that diocese which had been canonically confided to him."

The Bishop of Dijon is in Rome also and expected to follow the good example of the Bishop of Laval.

Thus the long-threatened rupture of the Church in France which was the hope of the Combes ministry will be averted, the paternal heart of Pius X., consoled and the whole Catholic world relieved and gratified.

As the Holy Father said to a distinguished diplomat recently deploring that so many dioceses are vacant in France because of the failure of the government to allow the freedom of action necessary to their proper filling:

"It is my duty to give France good chief pastors. But not Bishops at all than Bishops unworthy of similar exalted position; consequently, so long as the government of the republic fails to present me proper candidates I will nominate no French Bishops. Episcopal vacancies are more accidents, whereas it is a real misfortune to any land to have inefficient and undesirable Bishops. What I may be unable to effect, God will, in His own good time, accomplish!"

Preparations for the fitting celebration of the coming jubilee are going forward on a grand scale. The "Marian Congress," which will precede the jubilee, will be one of the most representative gatherings of great minds ever held. Every country of Christendom is sending its most illustrious ecclesiastical scholars and orators to speak the praises of Mary Immaculate.

All the great religious orders are represented in the organization of the congress, and many countries have arranged for special preliminary national congresses for the better organization of their representation at the great "Marian Congress." One whole day will be given to the presentation of the "Marian Cultus" under the presidency of the distinguished Benedictine Father Janssens. Father Langgoge will preside over the review of the "Marian Press" the second day, and "Marian Institutes and Associations" will be discussed the third day, Abbot Primate Hempline directing. Four Cardinals appointed by the Pope will be honorary presidents, and the Archbishop of Pisa will be the acting president under them.

The magnificent preparations for the 8th of December are making Rome throb and hum with joyful activity. Innumerable pilgrimages are sending word of their coming ahead. One from the diocese of Brooklyn, N. Y., headed by its gentle Bishop, Dr. McDonnell, will not be the least interesting.

Meantime the Sunday parish gatherings in the Cortile del Pigna of the Vatican to hear the Holy Father preach on the gospel of the day continue to warm the hearts of the people toward the papacy and to edify the world. The thought of these familiar gatherings round the great white father of Christendom are an offset to the pain of the blasphemous gatherings that will make dozent people in Rome sad on the coming September 20 when the spirits of the unfortunate Garibaldi and Bismarck will be invoked with laudations and eorn of every Christian vltur.

An important item of the jubilee services in Rome will be the canonization services on the Sundays following the 8th of December up to the last of January. Among them will be the venerable Cure d'Als, who will be declared blessed, and that recent joy of the Romanists, Blessed Gerard Majella, will be raised to the fullest veneration of the Church as a saint.—N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

Action on Carlyle and Macaulay.

Excepting Froese, I think him (Carlyle) the most detestable of historians. The doctrine of heroes, the doctrine that will be above law, comes next in atrocity to the doctrine that the flag covers the goods, that the cause justifies its agents, which is what Froese lives for. Carlyle's robust mental independence is not the same thing as originality. The Germans love him because he is an echo of the voices of their own classic age. He lived on the thought of Germany when it was not at its best, between Herder and Richter, before the age of discipline and science, Germany, since 1840, is very different from that which inspired him; and his conception of its teaching was a grotesque anachronism. It gave him his most valuable faculty, that of standing aside from the current of contemporary English ideas, and looking at it from an Arohimedeon point, but it gave him no rule for judging, no test of truth, no definite conviction, no certain method, and no sure conclusion. But he had historic grasp—which is a rare quality—some sympathy with things that are not evident, and a vague, fluctuating notion of the work of impersonal forces. There is a flash of genius in "Past and Present," and in the "French Revolution," though it is a wretched history. And he invented Oliver Cromwell. That is the positive result of him, that, and his personal influence over many con-

When you sit down to Macaulay, remember that the Bays are really fishy and superficial. He was not above par in literary criticism; his Indian articles will not hold water; and his two most famous reviews, on Bacon and Rande, show his incompetence. The essays are only pleasant reading, and the keys to half the prejudices of our age. It is the History (with one or two speeches) that is wonderful. He knew nothing respectable before the seventeenth century, he knew nothing of foreign history, of religion, philosophy, science, or art. His account of debates has been thrown into the shade by Ranke, his account of diplomatic affairs by Klopp. He is, I am persuaded, grossly, basely unfair. Read him therefore to find out how it comes that the most unsympathetic of critics can think him very nearly the greatest of English writers.—Letters to Mary Gladstone.

Items of Interest.

Count Ballestro, the Oathic President of the Reichstag, celebrated his 70th birthday on Monday, the 5th inst.

The Carmelite Fathers have held their General Chapter and re-elected Father Felice Fioratti as their superior General.

The Australasian Catholic Congress, which takes place at Melbourne from October 23 to 30, will be attended by his Eminence Cardinal Moran, by several Archbishops and Bishops and the clergy and leading laity from all parts of Australia.

The Catholics of Saville, Spain, have sent their offerings, of 18,000 peetas, towards a star for the crown which the Holy Father will place on the head of Our Lady's statue of the Immaculate Conception on the occasion of the jubilee festival.

Owing to the prosecution in France, great numbers of Christian Brothers have been turned adrift from their schools. In consequence the Pope has granted a special dispensation from their vows to all of them who wish to return to the world as laymen.

The Summer School of Gregorian Music at Wroxall Isla of Wight, has dispersed after a very satisfactory first season. There were fifty students, one of whom came all the way from Colorado. It is intended to hold the Summer School again next year.

It is a rare sight to see a king kneeling at the communion rail with a crowd of people; he usually receives Holy Communion in his private chapel. King George of Saxony, when staying at Ems for the waters lately, took his place with the multitude at early Mass on Sunday.—Casket.

Mosquitoes are a nuisance in this country; but we have never taken them seriously. In the tropics, however, they have been accused of carrying malaria and yellow fever, and the charge seems proved. They breed in or around stagnant water, and the removal of this water by drainage, or the use of coal-oil on the pools where removal is impossible, is credited with having accomplished some wonderful results. Havana has been free from yellow fever for the last three years; it had not been exempt before for a hundred and fifty years. The number of deaths from malaria in the same city has been cut down from four hundred a year to fifty. The Isthmus of Panama was one huge graveyard during the years when the French were trying to dig the canal; the Americans armed with the knowledge that the mosquito is the enemy expect to bring the mortality within reasonable limits.—Casket.

The Republic of Panama thought it was doing a good stroke of business, now that the great canal is to be dug, by breaking away from Colombia and dealing directly with Uncle Sam. Already it has repented. Its Minister at Washington has made formal protest against the creation of a port of entry at Ancon within the canal zone, which diverts trade and revenue from the port of Panama.—Casket.

In the Cathedral, Eonis, on Sunday, September 4. M. St. Rev. Dr. Fogarty, late vice president of Maynooth College, was consecrated Bishop of Killaloe. His Grace the Most Rev. Dr. Fennelly, Archbishop of Cashel, was the consecrating prelate.

That distinguished Anglican, the Rev. Spencer Jones, declares (in answer to those who claim that the Catholic Church of England was at one period of history independent of Rome) that an "English Church not in conscious dependence of the Holy See in spirituals is a phenomenon unknown to history before the reign of Henry VIII.

The vestment alleged to have been stolen from Ascoli Cathedral and to have been purchased by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is eagerly demanded back by public opinion in Italy. If Mr. Pierpont Morgan will not return it without payment, then certain Italian art connoisseurs will find the money, one of them, Signor Beltrami, offering to head the list with a subscription of £200.

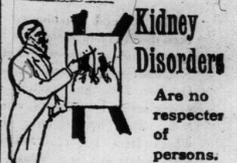

The "Temps" urges that the Government of the French Republic shall not proceed to decree the separation of the Church from the State until all citizens have had an opportunity of expressing their will in the elections of 1906. In such an important matter, it urges, democratic principles demand a reference to the people, clear, distinct and direct; should France decide for the abrogation of the Concordat, all fear of trouble would be at an end.

The news of Mgr. Geay's departure for Rome was made public through the "Croix," and from the information published it appeared that the Bishop of Laval, who had been described as a rebel, was in reality practically the prisoner of M. Combes, who made use of every means to prevent his obeying the Papal commands. Mgr. Geay left Laval for the ostensible object of going to his country house, and instead took the train for Turin, whence he wrote to his vicar general and to M. Combes, advising them of his departure, M. Combes retorted at once by publishing in the "Official" a decree suspending Mgr. Geay's stipend.

Archbishop Agius, the new Apostolic Delegate to the Philippines, speaks all the principal European tongues with equal fluency; but English is really his mother tongue, and during his long residence in Rome he was one of the two English confessors at the Church of San' Andrea delle Fratte. He was also spiritual director of the Roman community of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin, better known as the "English Ladies," and for some time acted in that capacity to the "Little Company of Mary." Father Ambrose is a young man—not much over 40 one would say—full of zeal and energy and of exquisite tact.

"St. Nicholas" (German) Catholic Church, located in the heart of the great East Side district in New York, is preparing to meet the moment question in a practical manner," says the Catholic Union and Times. "It has filed plans for a six story flat-house, which will be erected on a generous plan; it will have accommodation for twenty-four families, and will, it is needless to remark, be conducted along lines quite different from those which have made the tenement-house evil such a fester-spot on the metropolis. The experiment will be watched with interest, and its success no doubt will lead to a repetition in many quarters."

Under the above heading the Catholic Citizen says: "France was really not prepared to grapple with Germany in the war of 1870. Germany (under Bismarck's and Von Moltke's guidance), had been getting ready to tackle France since 1866. But the French were not informed about this. Neither was Russia informed of Japan's steady preparation since 1895 for the present war. And so a nation of one hundred and fifty millions reels backward under the assault of a better prepared nation of only fifty millions. In multimiform activities of public, private, and commercial life, the consumable lack of information leads to mistakes of judgment and to disastrous commitments. Over hundreds of failures may be written the epitaph: 'Not informed.'"
