Lining Up Again.

Now that the Coronation is over the Parliamentary lists are open Veto question may be expected. It is evident that the Lansdowne following are quite as anxious to force the Home Rule issue to the fore in this dispute as the Nationalists themselves. This is probably the best course that the dispute could take. For, after all, the main question so far as many Tories are concerned is not the power of the House of Lords, and this is so with the Nationalists. The object of the latter is to gain Home Rule, the object of the former is to checkmate this effort. The burden of the campaign last election den of the campaign last abundantly disclosed this. Although Home Rule issue to the fore last Decease against Home Rule and Ameri-

Our informants also say there was great destitution at Black Tickle in April, and un-less they got the food left at Hawke's Harbor by the Prospero it would go hard with the people down there. We give the story of our informants for what it is worth, but there would seem to be no reason to doubt their statements though, as a matter of course, it is possible that shortage of food in Meth. #### Harbor Grace Notes.

A couple of cases of scarlet fever developed in town to-day and were promptly placarded by the authorities.

As the time was near at hand for the midsummer holidays, His Honor Judge Oke wisely requested the School Boards to give the children the holidays now, not that there was any danger, but to give the scholars the benefit of outdoor life during the best part of the year—July and August. The schools were therefore closed to-day.

The following excellent programme was rendered at Mr. Allen's concert last night:—

1. "God Save the King," arranged by Elgar; 2. "The King shall Rejoice," C. Lee Williams; 3. "Fantasia on National Airs," by the C. L. B. Band; 4. "Te Deum" in F., Henry Smart; 5. Song, "Thanksgiving," Mrs. W. C. Job; 6. "Hallclujah Chorus," Handel, Part H.

1. "The Empire Flag," MacKenzie; 2. Ballet music from "Rosamunde,"

The people of Port aux Basques and Channel celebrated the Coronation in a loyal and certainly an elaborate manner. All the houses in both places were illuminated, the residence of Mr. Smart, Supt. of the Telegraph Office, containing more than 1000
