

Ladies' Night.

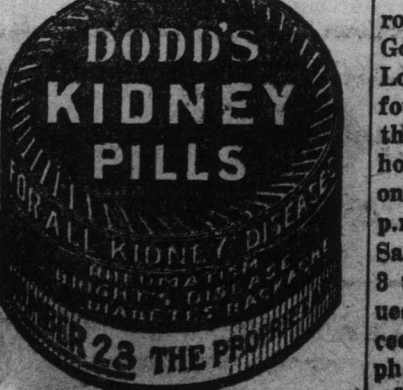

The attendance at last night's patriotic meeting, at the Casino, completely filled the room. His Excellency and Miss Harris were present attended by Lt.-Col. Knox-Niven and Capt. Campbell, and were received by Sergt. Mitchell. When His Excellency entered the O. E. B. Band played the National Anthem, the audience standing. Major Cartwright acted as Chairman, and on the platform were Miss Harris, Mrs. T. J. Duley (Daughters of Empire), Mrs. John Browning (Red Cross Association), Mrs. McKee (Khaki Club), Miss Keegan, Sergt. H. Mitchell, Sergt. Robinson and Mr. K. Blair, of the Soldiers' Committee. Major Cartwright, after a few brief remarks, introduced Miss Amoret Harris, daughter of His Excellency the Governor, who related some of her experiences while nursing with the French Red Cross in France. She went with the French at the outbreak of war, as the British were better off in regard to hospital attendance than the French. The hospital to which she was attached had been a large hotel in the pre-war days and contained 600 and 700 beds. They were in receipt constantly of hospital supplies of every description from England. The work done in hospital for their allies by the English was truly splendid.

Mrs. T. J. Duley speaking next said the work done by the Daughters of the Empire was not fully realized. The Association, a branch of the Canadian body, was started soon after the war began, but was not sufficiently large at first to permit of organizing branches in outposts. The Daughters sent their first parcels to the soldiers of "Ours" when they were at Stobbs Camp 525 strong. The work of collecting cakes was taken up with energy and met splendid success as no less than 600 were sent. In the summer of 1915 the Daughters planned the colors for the Regiment. The flag is of white with a red cross, in the centre on which is the Newfoundland coat of arms surrounded by a wreath of the Shamrock, Thistle and Rose. The flag was presented to Ours by Lady MacGregor assisted by ex-Governor MacGregor. It was received by Lieut. J. Fox and is kept in the Officers' Mess, being now at Winchester. When the gallant lady returns they will bring it with them and it will be preserved here. The Daughters raised the large sum of $1,000 through a garden party at the residence of Lady Outerbridge. Mrs. Duley then described some of the work the Daughters have done for the soldiers here in St. John's and said they have collected over 17,000 eggs for the Soldiers' Hospital Camps. The Daughters stand to help those men who after being broken through service in Gallipoli and France, are still on their firing line, in getting recruits for Ours. The Daughters motto is: "Carry On."

Major Cartwright announced that Mrs. Duley had given two of her sons, one who was at present in France, the other here suffering from wounds. Mrs. Browning, O. E. B., pointed out that the formation of the Red Cross Association was due to the two local nursing divisions of the St. John Ambulance Association who offered to work for the W. P. A. Those foremost in the effort were Mrs. Hugh Baird, Mrs. (Dr.) Anderson, Miss Southcott and the late Miss Duncan. The work of sending hospital supplies and comforts has been going on steadily for the past three and a half years, it being felt if our lads could fight through the year, those at home could at least work the same. The organization has grown to fifteen branches, 11 in the outposts and 4 in the city from whom thousands of dressings and other necessary supplies have gone across the Atlantic to the relief of the boys "over there." Few of the original members are here at present as many of them became V. A. D's and are working near where their products are needed, they have gone overseas. The first party, about 25 in number, left early in 1916 and only three have returned: Misses Herd and Galloway because of family obligations. Miss May Randall, daughter of Captain John Randall and Mrs. Randall, Port Rexton, and sister of Commander John Randall, R. N. D. S. M., has also returned and is permanently crippled in the foot and arm as a result of blood poisoning caused by a scratch when cleaning surgical instruments in a hospital. Nineteen nurses have also gone across. One in particular, Miss Lizzie Roberts, was for some time near the firing line where she suffered great inconvenience. Since the formation of the Jensen Camp 64 men have been treated, and 30 have been discharged, and are now able to continue at their work. At the Convalescent Home 150 wounded men have been treated, seven so far having recovered that they are now on a recruiting tour.

The Khaki Guild have done splendid in their efforts to supply comforts for the soldiers, and their good work must not be forgotten. They are engaged in raising funds to carry on work that will be necessary even when peace is declared. At the Waterford Hall and Jensen Camp the patients are being taught telegraphy, wood carving, motor driving and other useful occupations. Mrs. Browning further pointed out that while many of these have wealth these other heroes will have to begin life anew with nothing but a platitude. They sacrificed their ambition in your behalf and for the services they have done it is our duty to pay them back by every means in our power.

Miss Keegan was the next speaker and spoke of the work done by the women and girls during the war. They are found in munition factories, supplying guns for the men to be behind and are also found in banks and all kinds of office positions held by men in these pre-war days. She then spoke on the work of nursing which is un-

Men!

The Royal Newfoundland Regiment's position in Great Britain's Premier Division (the Fighting 29th) was won by your brothers and chums in a direct test of endurance. Ask our Returned Heroes about it. Are YOU going to allow another Regiment to take its place? NO! Let the Slogan be:—

"Keep Her Going, We're Coming."

Prove to the World's Fighters "over there" that YOU are just AS GOOD AS THE FIRST.

dortaken sometimes at great risks. At Waterford Hall the nurses are doing massage work, and then there is the knitting of socks and making hospital supplies. The term slacker can be applied to the woman who fails to make some sacrifice as well as to the man who fears to enlist. Sergt. Mitchell, after a few remarks said: "The Soldiers' Committee is only a handful and can't do much without the aid of women. He showed a flag received from Miss Rita Ryan, of Placencia, a sister of a blue puttee boy, and suggested that small ones of the same plan be worn by the mothers and sisters of soldiers, a gold bar being attached if the son had fallen, a silver one if he had returned and a bronze one if he is still on service. He announced that the smallest sums would be gratefully received towards the carrying on of the campaign and particulars as to the expenditure of the same might be obtained from Pte. M. Sheave (in care Job Bros. & Co.) or Pte. B. Harris (in care Harvey & Co.). Mrs. Duley then stated that she would pass on the suggestion as to the badges to Daughters of the Empire, and also felt that the service flags should be flown continually as a permanent sign of each family's patriotism. Major Cartwright paid a tribute to Miss May Furlong who was unavoidably absent and termed her the mother of the Regiment, a title she had won from the men through her interest in them at Edinburgh, London and while in hospital. 113 men, Major Cartwright said, had offered since Friday last. The programme for the evening was as follows:—

Looking to the Next War

The Times: We have by no means exhausted the arguments that may be advanced in support of our peace policy. There is, for example, the next war to be considered. It is not to be fought in this war, but in the next war we may be engaged. The Great Powers in the past war will probably be those who have been neutral in this war. Sweden, Holland, and Denmark will be Great Powers owing to the wealth we have enabled them to accumulate, and when they are engaged in a war among themselves they will not be able to cite from our conduct of the blockade any precedent which they might effectively use against our commerce with their enemies. This is an argument which we understand, has great weight, and the far-sighted lawyers of our foreign Office.

Two Mot

By RUTH CAMERON I heard two mothers talking about the war the other day. Said the first, "Thank goodness my son is just a year over draft age. He isn't married and he doesn't have to support me, so I was afraid they'd get him if it hadn't been for that. Your son is too young, isn't he?" Said the second,

"Well, that's good," said the other. "The war'll be over before they hold of him."

He Wanted To Enlist. "But he doesn't want to wait for the war, he wants to enlist."

"Well, that's all right. He can't enlist without your consent. Don't worry about that."

The second mother smiled. It was a wonderful smile. There was sadness in it and tenderness and courage and a fine, serene happiness.

"I'm not worrying any more," she said. "I lay awake and worried all the time, but it's all right now."

"He's given it up?"

"No, I've given my consent."

"The other woman looked at her uncomprehendingly. 'What for?' she finally managed to say."

And the other woman tried to tell him that.

Hanging Back Like Fighting For A Place In The Lifeboats.

"The war has got to be won," she said, "you can't get around that. And there's no reason that he should stay at home and let other men fight and reap the benefits. That's a beastly thing to do, he says, and I can't say it isn't, can I? It's like being on a boat that's sinking, he says, and fighting for a place in the life boats."

"I'd like to see some way out. I've tried to. That's what I lay awake thinking about. But I can't. Not with honor."

She Gave It Up.

The other woman still looked at her uncomprehendingly. "I don't see how you can bear to let him go," she said.
