A Song of Many Peoples.

Asked to name the oldest tune in the world, few could give the correct answer. It is that which we now sing the words, "For he's a jolly good fellow," and the air, which can be traced in distant Asia and Africa, as well as in most European countries, has an interesting history.

Its origin is lost in antiquity, but it is supposed to have been learned from the ancient Babylonians by the Egyptians, who popularized it in Africa and Asia Minor. It is still sung by the Arabs, says London Answers.

The Crusaders caught the tune from the Saracen enemies and sang it under the walls of Jerusalem, which to-day, perhaps, vibrates to the same notes, chanted by our victorious troops. The air was ultimately carried into Europe, where it survived in various forms among the folk songs at the different nations.

In 1709, after their defeat at Malplaquet, the French, following a false rumor of the Duke of Marlborough's death in battle, composed a satirical lament, "Malbrook Is Off to the War," detailing the supposed death and burial of the English general and the ascension of his soul to heaven.

The words were sung to the old popular air, whose lilting rhythm lent itself to the swing of the 22 verses.

Like most topical songs, this one was of short lived popularity; but in 1781 it suddenly echoed from one end of France to the other. The young Marie Antoinette gave birth to an heir, and the baby prince, in accordance with French custom, was peasant foster mother. The nurse used to put her royal charge to sleep with the old song of her village home, and the girl mother began, almost unconsciously to repeat the simple refrain.

As if by magic the song became the craze of the day. It resounded through the stately galleries of Versailles, passing to the kitchens and stables, whence it was taken up by crowds of Paris and speedily passed on from town to town and from country to country.

Napoleon himself, though a hater of music, never mounted his charger to go into action without singing softly a few bars of the ancient melody.

The air is still popular in France, as it is England and America, but few of our Tommies and their polli cums, humming in chorus, can have suspected the varied history of the simple tune.

The Original Case of 'In Dutch.'

Otokots Review:—By one of those unfortunate but infrequent (?) mistakes which occasionally are made even in the columns of the Review, the birth of a daughter to Joe Price, was credited last week to Andy. With that laudable desire to avoid trouble for which the editor is noted, we carefully kept out of both parties' way and carefully inspected every visitor through a peephole while the devil interviewed them. Unfortunately we were on the street one day and Andy saw us first. When he got through he comforted us with the information that what he had given us wasn't a circumstance to what we would get from Joe when he saw us. (Joe won't see us if we can help it.) Andy says we did it "a puppos." He requests us to look back over our file for the last few months and indignantly asks if we think he is trying to establish a world record. He also says that he objects to having a stay out of town for two or three weeks until the matter blows over, and to locking his doors against his friends and neighbors who come over to inquire after the baby, and when they can't get in to make their queries through the windows.

Is Spinelessness Growing?

Orilla Packet:—It does not seem to us a healthy sign that so many of the country papers are drawing out of politics, and affecting neutrality whenever there is any question at issue which seriously divides the community. The country press cannot hope to retain its influence if this tendency becomes general. It is part of a paper's function to lead, and leadership connotes decisiveness and dogmatism. The plea that it is not a newspaper's business to press its views upon its readers is merely a sophism to cover up lack of courage to give expression to opinions lest by doing so some enemies may be made. It is pandering to the box office. In the end, such a policy is bound to be fatal to a paper's influence, and will, we believe, be found to be poor business, even from a monetary standpoint. It is not necessary to be offensive in order to argue effectively, and when the conflict is over, sensible people will hold no grudge against the paper which is consistent and outspoken in its discussion of political questions.

O'Brien Now Does Two Days' Work in One, He Says

St. John's Man Hardly Able to Work at All Before Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has not only made me feel strong and healthy, just like a man ought to feel, but it has added fourteen pounds to my weight," was the statement made by John O'Brien, who lives at 46 Codner's Lane, St. John's, Newfoundland, in a conversation with a Tanlac representative a few days ago.

"For about a year," continued Mr. O'Brien, "I have been in bad health, so weak and run-down that I was hardly able to do my work. My kidneys were badly disordered and my appetite was so poor that I hardly ever cared whether I even went to the table or not. I had pains all over my body—in my arms, through my back and in my legs; they would strike me in all places and then, another, and at times such a terrible pain would catch me in the small of my back that I would almost fall to the ground. I was so nervous that I would actually jump and shake, and at night I was so restless that I was never able to get a night's rest or sleep."

"I am mighty glad I read about Tanlac in the papers, and saw the statement from a friend of mine who had tried it with such fine results, for that convinced me that Tanlac was a real medicine, and I commenced taking it myself. I have taken three bottles in all and I can now say that Tanlac has done for me just what other people say it did for them because it has overcome all my troubles and put me back on my feet with new life and strength. My appetite is so fine that I can hardly get enough to eat and everything agrees with me perfectly. My kidneys are in splendid condition and the pains in my back, arms and legs are all a thing of the past. I am no longer nervous and can sleep sound all night long and, as I said, I have gained fourteen pounds in weight. I believe I can do two days' work in one. I feel so fine all the time, where before I was only doing about one day's work in a week. I am fully convinced that Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world and I only wish that everybody knew about it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffett, by Thomas Wake & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son; and in Topsail, by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

The Barrister's Revenge.

He was a poor judge and a bad-tempered one, too, with a great idea of his own importance and dignity. The legal lights who practised at his court had long since been cowed into submission.

Then came the day when a young barrister came before him to conduct his first case, full of life, and not a bit terrified of the old gentleman. But it wasn't long before he got on the wrong side of the judge. He actually dared to criticize a decision made by the great man.

The majesty of law was outraged. "If you do not this instant apologize for that last remark," roared the judge, "I shall commit you for contempt of court, sir!"

The youthful barrister thought a moment.

"Very good, your lordship," said he. "Upon reflection, I am bound to admit that your lordship was right and I was wrong, as your lordship always is."

When he got home his lordship thought it over, and then had a fit.

The Killing of Hostages by Munich Reds.

AND WOMEN BUTCHERED.

The Munich Radicals who murdered innocent hostages during the Communist regime in the Bavarian capital were placed on trial in Berlin, and of them, being convicted and sentenced on Sept. 19, 1919, were executed 4 o'clock the same afternoon. They were sentenced to pay the death penalty—Fritz Seidl and five of his co-accused—Josef Seidl, Schmickhofer, Purzel, and Rehmer. Seven were sentenced to fifteen years' servitude. The brutal nature of crimes under the so-called Soviet rule was revealed in the court findings of Sept. 10, as summarized by a London Times correspondent.

The testimony showed that the hostages shot was the Prince of Thurn and Taxis, who declared that he had been expelled by the ruling family in Regensburg in 1848 because of his revolutionary views. Two Red Guards who ac-
