As will be seen by our cable des patches to-day, the revolution in Spain may be regarded as virtually accom-plished. The army has "gone over" and the Queen has fled. Of the three royalist generals in the field, Conch. has deserted, Paiva been defeated, and Novalichez dead, and his troops hemmed in among the defiles of the Sierrs Morena, with the airy track of the railroad torn up before and behind them, are left to contemplate the desagremens of their position. Worse than all Count Girgenti is a prisoner and the pretty Infanta consigned in definitely to widowed pillows almost before the honeymoon has paled. And all this Madrid is undutifully grateful, and the statue, which, from its pedestal between Ferdinand and Charles, overlooked the fountains of the Plaza Isabella Segunda to which it once gave name, has been dragged in insult through the streets. Amidst all which excitement the people are conducting themselves peaceably, and the Provisional Government commands unquestioning adherence. While Queen Isabella with the Prince of Asturias, to say nothing of the miserable Bourbon who is by courtesy her husband, has shaken the dust from off her feet, and from off the feet of Father Claret and of Sister Patrocino Father Claret and of Sister Patrocino as we may safely assume, and carried her sullied lillies to the refuge of the shadow of the Eagle. Now what next? Is the Duchess to be Queen? We hope so. Montpensier is a Bourbon name certainly, but it is one beloved through the whole peninsula, and he who knows Andalucia knows how justly. Meanwhile the ex Queen is in a hard fix. She is recklessly improvident with a privy purse chronically empty. And her family are down in the world, and her reputation fatally damning.

The agent of the New York Associ-The agent of the New York Associated Press seems to devote his Sundays regularly to the worldly task of weighing the question of peace or war on the Continent in his contemplative mind. Every Monday morning the newspaper-reading public of America finds itself treated to his more or less elaborate treatise on this prolific subject. This eminent purveyor of intelligence is afflicted with an irresistable penchant to prophesy. But, unfortunately for his reputation, his predictions have been as variable as the weather on this side of the Atlantic during the last few weeks.

The scarcity of oysters in England is now so marked, that "an oyster re-freshment," as Edmund Kean used to freshment," as Edmund Kean used to call a Haymarket supper, cannot at present be obtained without an expenditure of many shillings, as the reader may easily calculate for himself when he is told that oysters are being retailed at a cost of five halfpence each! Even in Edinburgh, where these molluses could at one time be bought retail for 1s. the long hundred (120), the price in wholesale quantities on Newhaven Pier now ranges from 4s. to 5s. per 100.

The Suez Canal.—Another great enterprise is near its comletion. It is expected that the Suez Canal will be open for vessels of the largest size in course of October. Its depth is 26feet, its width from 180 to 300 feet, it cost about $30,000,000, and it will shorten the navigation between Europe and India by about one-half. It belongs to a French joint stock company, and its construction is due to the energy, genius, and persistance of M. Ferdinand de Lesseps, a grandson of Lafayette. Much of the excavation has been done by machinery, and where heavy masonry has been needed to guard the canal against the influx of the canal against the canal against the influx of the canal against the influx of the canal against the influx guard the canal against the influx of sand from the Mediterranean, artificial stone has been manufactured for the purpose out of sand and hydralic lime. About 20,000 Europeans have been employed on the work, and are settled in new towns along the line.

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL AT ROME.—The five committees appointed to prepare the propositions to be debated by the Œcumenical Council are progressing more rapidly with their work than was expected. This has not been done without taking coun-sel with French, Italian, and German theologians, and in the course of Oc-tober or November the report of the fathers will be submitted by the Pope to an international countities. A MASTER STROKE.—The Seaforth Expositor is surely a "local institution" worth encouraging. Here is its own account of what its editor did for the villaged he represents: When in Toronto last week, we waited upon the general agent for Thayer & Noyes Circus at the Revere, and invited them to visit Seaforth, which was to be properly considered. This week you will see their advertisement for Wednesday next. They go back to St. Mary's, they do not go farther into the county, but make this their leading point. Seaforth shall never be behind!

The St. John's Telegraph thinks that unless the local government of New Brunswick shall strengthen itself during the recess, it will have great difficulty in weathering the storms of next session. It cites a number of causes, either one of which might raise a breeze too powerful to be resisted, and counsels immediate steps for strengthening the Cabinet.
