

The London Advertiser

LONDON, ONT., SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 1925.

Miss Cecilia Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Harry Lewis, Queen's avenue, London
—Study by Sanders Studio

Boat racing at Oxford, England

Mrs. R. B. Ross of Gerrard street, London, and her two children, Bruce and Jane
—By courtesy of C. Plomley.

Mrs. Arthur Mortimore, who, before her marriage this week to Maj. Mortimore of London, was Miss Elsie Chalcraft of Toronto

Miss Jessie Gillespie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gillespie, London, whose marriage takes place to-day in the First Presbyterian Church
—Portrait by Sanders Studio.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

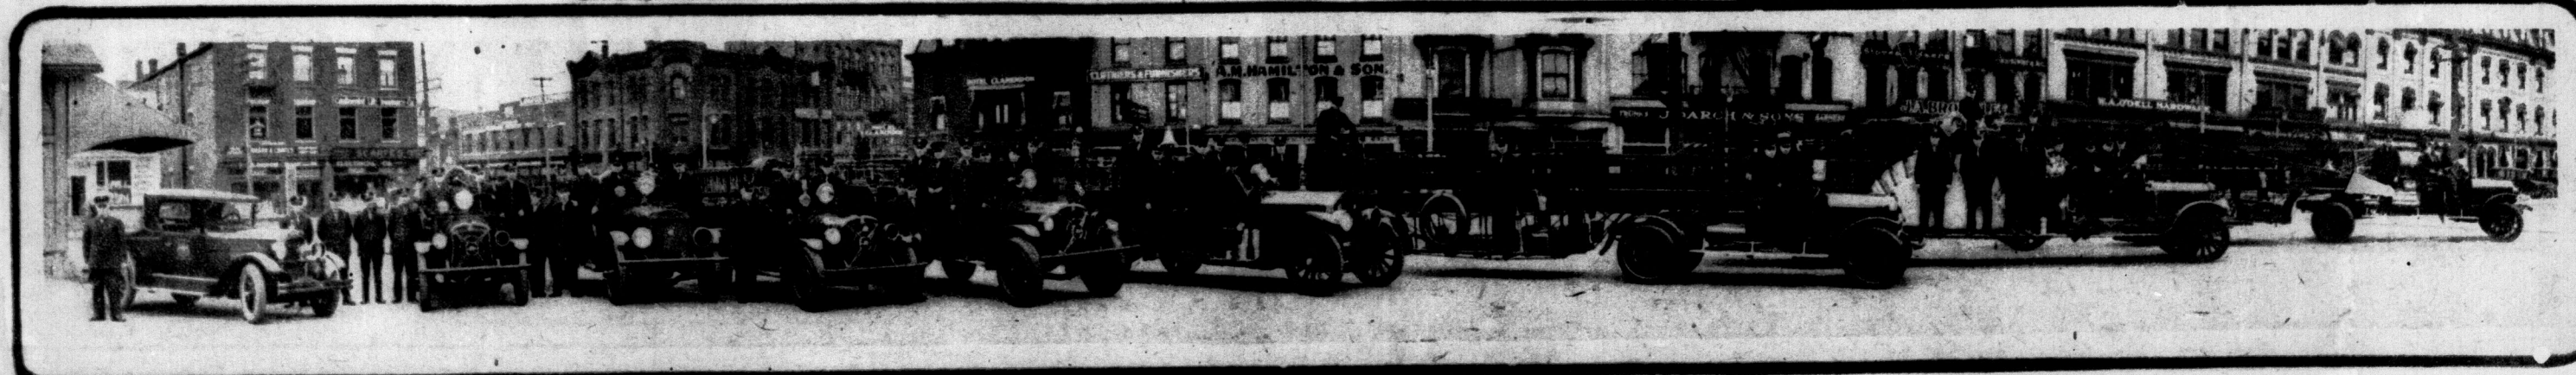

Lois Wilson, the movie star

Miss Miriam Eckert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Eckert of London, who is a graduate this year of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston

French Colonial troops marching outside the city of Rabat against the Moroccans

An efficiency and speed unthought of half a century ago is to-day routine in the London fire department. The force, now fully motorized, presents an imposing picture with its eight trucks and 65 men ready to respond to danger's call at any minute of day or night
—Photo by Rea.