The Street Railway Co. Wins an Appeat. The Street Railway Co. Wins an Appeat. Testerday the full Court of Common Pleas delivered judgment in fourteen cases, the delivery occupying an hour and a ball, Among the most important was that in the case of Bodley v. the Torento Street Railway Company. It may be remembered that this was a suit against the Street Railway Com-pany to recover damages for injuries sus-tained by being ejected from a car by the conductor. At the first wiral the jury die Agreed and at the second trial there was found a verdict for the defendant. The Street Railway Company appealed and the decision as read yesterday by Mr. Justice Rose stated that there must be a new trial, the chief grounds being that the main er denee on the plaintiff's aide was that of the plaintiff himself, who, it had been shown, had been drinking liquor before he boarded the car. Chief Justice Galt coincided in the opinion that a new trial must take place. held next Friday night, probably in the Pavilion of the Gardens. The city and pro-Pavilion of the Gardens.
